Dedication

The Tower of St Cecelia. Albi France

It is with pride and admiration that we dedicate this book to our true friend, who alone of our alumni has attained the episcopal dignity, who has in speech and works so greatly aided Alma Mater, whom we respect for his achievements, whom we love for his devotion, whose enthusiasm and loyalty we covet for our own—His Lordship, the Right Reverend Joseph C. Plagens, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Detroit and Titular Bishop of Rhodiopolis.

The Tower of London

Foreword

If herein is found a record of the works you've done; of the events of a fleeting year; a picture of a friend or a memento of a delightful day; an incident or scene you wish to keep and cherish; a memory of those who taught you and those who learned with you; if these pages can but transfer to permanence the memories of a year that else would dim and fade—the 1930 Tower will have fulfilled its purpose as a chronicle of the progress of Alma Mater and the achievements of her students.

The Memorial Tower
University of Detroit

In this book we have sought to tell the tale of Towers which gracefully symbolize the embodied spirit of university achievement, and to draw therefrom a part of the potent meaning of Memorial Tower, dedicated to our noble sons who have died in strange lands that tradition and culture might be preserved to the yet unborn generations. Symbol of the days of invited knowledge, does not our Tower mean Alma Mater to us?

UNIVERSITY

Atop Memorial Tower
four silver bells ring
out the hour of day—

Directing thousands of earnest students in search of knowledge—

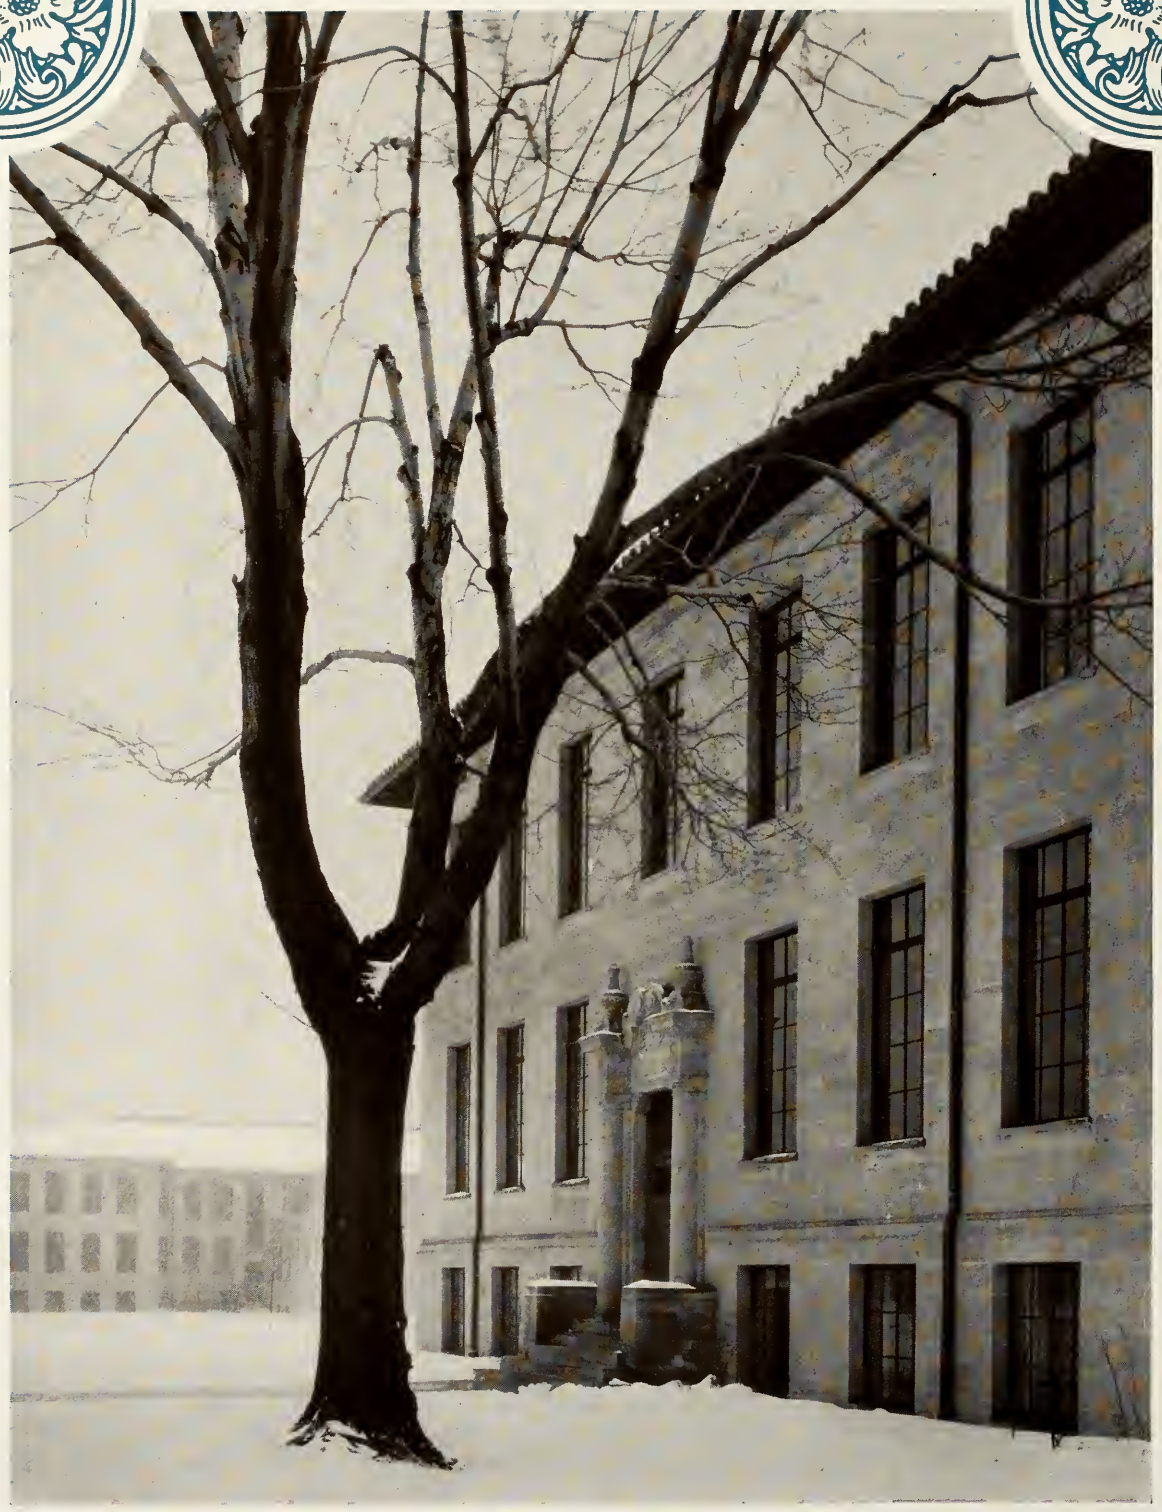
Some seeking biology and physics here in the home of science—

Others ply machines
where mechanism rules
the hand and mind—

And where abstractions receive a test before utility's judging eye—

Or perhaps some delve here into the secret and mystic elements—

And here investigate philosophy and arts or technical finance—



Until the waning day
sends all homeward, deserting the campus.

THE Senior Class Council efficiently performed the various duties which are associated with graduating from the university.

Early in the year the departmental class officers met at the Jefferson Avenue campus to elect their officers and formulate their plans for senior unity. With this preliminary work disposed of the schedule of activity was sketched.

The Council supervised the selection and ordering of the class rings and appointed Norman Valentine as chairman of the committee on invitations.

Its most important task was found in the field of social activity since the Senior Ball and all of its associated problems was entrusted to the care of the Council. The Ball represents the acme of class social functions and consequently details an unusual amount of hard work. The Council also contributed incidental support to all other class parties.

The Council concluded its activity by co-operating with the faculty in making the Commencement ceremonies memorable. As a final gesture the Council enthusiastically aided the Alumni Association in planning and staging their annual Senior Banquet.

Of all the councils of class officers the senior conclave is the most important. For it is this organization representing the officers of the graduating class of each college that officiates in the many events connected with commencement season. It is upon them that the responsibility for appropriate farewell obsequies rests, for they are the governors of the final period of the students college life—the men of destiny of their class. The work of the council this year can be pointed to with pride as an example of the feasibility of unified class effort in the university.

THE Junior class of 1930 through its council contributed in a comprehensive way to the university activities of the year. Among its members this year were found leaders in nearly every campus enterprise, including the "Varsity News," the TOWER, the annual opera, the Junior Prom, the Union, sports, and many other minor activities.

The junior officers of the various colleges met early in the year and elected from their number a set of officers to whom they entrusted the destinies of the class of 1930. This organization immediately began to function as a vital part of campus life, and directed the activities of the Juniors through a very successful year.

Four of the council members participated in the work of the Junior Prom, and the council as a whole co-operated with the committee to make the annual Junior social event the great success it was. With the advent of the annual Union Opera in April, all class endeavor was suspended and the energy of the student body was thrown almost wholly into this gigantic production. Its success speaks well for the work of its committee and cast. The Junior Council co-operated with the opera committee in promoting the opera, and many members of the Junior class lent their services as committeemen or as members of the cast and chorus.

The work of the council, while rather indefinite, is important to the proper functioning of the Junior class, and this task was accomplished so well that the council would seem to have carried out the trust placed in them by their classmates.

ONLY after much difficulty was the Pre-Junior Class Council made more than a mere name, a polite appellation for an organization that should in all reason exist. It was quite a problem to get men together who normally would never have met but for the desire to express class spirit by co-operation. The task took the better part of three years. That it was finally accomplished is witnessed in the fruitful activity of both sections of the Pre-Junior Engineers.

The "Tech Ball" took place this year as was planned. This affair, the highlight of the Engineers' social activities, has its origin in the historic Engineers' dance. It gives the Pre-Junior class an opportunity to reveal to the university its class identity.

The interest manifested by the Pre-Juniors in organizing a class council is certainly to be commended. The determination to act as a class group is worthy of praise. Their aid in reviving the traditional Engineers' Dance is but further proof of their desire to be active.

With the close of this year, the class will step into line as Juniors. For three years they have marched forward together. Unity of thought and deed is well established. The university has reason to expect much from her Junior class of 1930-31.

BECAUSE it is the somewhat ticklish job of the Sophomore Class Council properly to initiate the homesick yearlings into the daily routine of college life it is righly ranked among the most important student organizations on the campus. The Sophs organized their council early in September and had a welcoming committee on hand to greet the ambitious youngsters who journeyed from far and wide to secure a higher education at the university. With lanky mountaineers, stalwart sons of the soil, and sophisticated city dwellers the Frosh were a motley group, but regardless of age, weight, height and chest-expansion they all received the same fair treatment from the Sophs.

Early in the year this heterogeneous body is subjected to its chastisement. Ridiculous red and white pots are planted upon their heads. Peremptory commands are given and obeyed promptly and without dissent. While all this domineering may appear absurd and useless to those without an understanding of college life, it serves a splendid purpose. All false conceptions which the first year men may have gathered from the movies and the Sunday supplement are lost. The Freshmen are made to realize the true college spirit. They band together and soon become an integral and necessary part of the university.

Aside from teaching the Freshmen what to do and why, the Sophomore Class Council was instrumental in promoting one of the most successful class dances that has been staged in years and did much towards establishing the prestige of the class of '32. The annual class games were held on May 1st and 2nd, a flag hunt opening the games. All efforts on the part of the Freshmen in their search for the flag proved futile. The other events saw the Freshmen revenge themselves by scoring a 54 to 52 victory.

FRESHMEN are the victims, to a great extent, of inefficient organization. When they came on the university campus they were in a sort of daze. They knew few students and they had no leaders to depend upon. The freshmen readily saw that what was needed was efficient organization. They were unwilling to be the "under dogs," and as a consequence they finally selected officers, who were to lead them in their first year. Initiation was carried on, but the freshmen took on a new attitude. They took on a secret and "just wait" attitude. They now realized that they were strong and had efficient organization.

The Frosh Frolic, one of the most popular dances to be staged at the university, was the result of the efforts of the officers of the freshman class of each department. The officers banded together were known as the Freshman Council. In addition to the Frosh Frolic and the business relative to it the Freshman Council organized the freshmen for the Soph-Frosh games, May 1 and 2. Flag hunts, hog tying, hundred yard dashes and many other forms of competition were indulged in by the Freshmen and Sophomores.

The flag hunt ended in failure for the Freshmen, but they more than revenged themselves on the following day, when in the other events they made a sufficient number of points to beat the Sophomores to the tune of 54 to 52.

The Leaning Tower of Pisa Italy

It was in the Tower of Pisa that Galileo demonstrated the theory of gravitation. He was but one of the many men of genius produced in his time, whose activities were watched by an interested public, and whose achievements formed a part of the quickening pulse of knowledge and culture. Here in Pisa a great event took place, and it crystallizes for us the spirit of earnest endeavor for the sake of accomplishment alone, a spirit which epitomizes the activity of our students.

THE Union Board of Governors, which guided the destinies of the Union during the year 1929-30, has accomplished a year of intense and successful labor in behalf of the Union and the university. They set a record for efficiency, such as has seldom been equaled and one which is a fitting example for future boards to emulate.

With representatives from all Departments on the Board, every undertaking was begun only after its usefulness to the student body was completely established. This method of conducting business affairs made the Union a truly student affair.

The rooms of the Union House on Fairfield Avenue have been completely redecorated and refurnished during the past year. Valuable additions have been made to the Jefferson Avenue branch, which greatly added to the comfort and pleasure of the students on the downtown campus. Add to these expenditures the substantial payments made on the Fairfield Avenue property and the student body can gain a slight conception of the magnificent work done by this administration in their behalf.

The outstanding projects sponsored by the Union during the past year were the fourth annual Union Opera "Hello Stranger," and a banquet tendered to the personnel of last year's opera who did so much to make the production the success it was. This year the Union produced the finest opera of its career. Ably handled, loyally supported, and successfully presented, "Hello Stranger" far surpassed its predecessors and was a fitting token of the great body which sponsored it.

Not everyone realizes what an imposing undertaking is the annual Opera, and any credit that is given the Board is deserved. Weeks of hard work and worry are put into the preparation for the presentation, and the triumph is short-lived, indeed, in comparison to the energy expended. The Board is a real leader in student activities, and an indispensable part of the school life as the staging of the Opera amply proves.

During the past year the Union supported all the class dances. These dances were high - lights in the social life of the university and this season the functions were especially brilliant. The Frosh Frolic, the Soph Snowball, the glorious J-Hop, all owe much of their success to the Union and to the Board of Governors of that organization. The minor events given by the Union during the past year have been numerous. Realizing the desire of the students for an outlet of their exuberance after seeing the Titans crush their opponents, small dancing parties were given at Gesu Hall after the night football games of early season.

As we glance back over the history of the Union since its inception in 1918, the fact which most interests the student body is that through this organization the students of the different departments of the university have been brought into more intimate contact with one another and have laid the foundation of what will be an enduring school spirit in the years to come. Undoubtedly, the Union Board has firmly entrenched itself in the campus life.

EVERY great university has an organization which every active student has a desire to be enrolled in and membership in which is a coveted honor. Such an organization is the Activities Honor Society, incorporated on the campus in 1928 by the Faculty Board of the university. The primary purpose of the society is to honor and to form a bond of relationship between those students who have excelled in the service of their school. Secondly, the society purposes to ably support every university activity and this purpose is doubly fulfilled because of the fact that the members are represented in every university activity.

The existence of the society on the campus forms a great incentive for the students to partake in all activities.

Membership requirements are necessarily very strict, as becomes an organization of this kind.

Members are eligible for enrollment in this society when they have merited a certain number of honor points. Each activity is listed with a number of credit points which participation in it deserves and when a student has merited the number of points fixed he becomes eligible for membership.

The members then place the names of the candidates before the Faculty Board of Control, and a vote is taken by this body on the desirability of the various students. When the student has been passed upon and his petition accepted, an initiation is held and regular membership is tendered to the successful applicant. Only such extremely rigid eligibility requirements can make membership in the organization desirable, and such is the purpose of the school in having them.

The society had an active membership of thirteen students during the past year, and these members represented every college of the university and membership in every activity in the school. During the past year two initiations were held for those members who had acquired the set amount of credit points. At the first initiation held in the fall nine members were admitted.

Ralph Boone worked on the "Varsity News" and TOWER staffs for two years, was a class officer for three years and a member of the J-Hop committee this year. Armella C. Friedl was a member of the "Varsity News" staff for three years, played basketball and acted as secretary of the Women's League for two years. Frank E. Jenny, member of the TOWER and "Varsity News" staffs, officiated as class officer for two years, assistant business manager of "Hoofs My Dear!" and as a member of the J-Hop committee of 1929. John B. Labadie was Varsity cheer leader for two years, Band Manager for three years, track letterman, and a member of the freshman football team. W. Joseph Starrs, editor of the "Varsity News" and secretary of "Hoofs My Dear!" was also Varsity track manager, class officer, and associate editor of the TOWER.

In addition to these, William B. Gregory, Claire D. King and Miriam L. Russell underwent the initiation ceremonies at Webster Hall and were presented with their keys by Dr. Muttkowski. A second initiation was held in May.

THE Faculty Board in Control of Student Activities is an organization comprised of nine members of the university faculty who act as an advisory board for all student organizations and scholastic events. It is the faculty board which solves the manifold problems arising during the scholastic year, and it is due to the intelligent advice of this organization that there is a minimum of discord in campus activities.

Since it is necessary for every new organization to receive the sanction of the faculty board before it can assume a place on the campus, only the worthy organizations are registered on the university roll. It is a great problem to superintend the activities of every campus body, but the faculty board has taken up this task so efficiently that the student body can be proud of every organization on the campus.

Another of the duties of the faculty board is to supervise all the class dances. It is the duty of this body to see that the dances are handled by capable students, to see that the dates of these affairs do not conflict with any other campus activities. A member of the board is included on every dance committee so that sound and immediate advice can be tendered to those placed in charge of the event. It is a generally conceded fact that the class affairs of the past year have surpassed all records of success in the annals of the university, and to the faculty board is due a part of the credit for these outstanding successes, for it was through the untiring efforts and sound advice of this body that each class of the past year formed a reputation of success for itself in the social life of the university.

This board also sees that all social legislation drawn up by the inter-fraternity council is for the improvement of the student body at large, and in this manner there is no partiality shown to any one organization. It is always with the entire student body in mind that the faculty board approves or rejects any new legislation.

Much of the success of the various student activities of the university, particularly those of a social nature, is due to the advice and regulation offered by the faculty board. Father Scott was in attendance at almost every rehearsal of the Union Opera, and contributed in many ways not commonly advertised to the production of this annual dramatic enterprise. The fraternities of the campus have a true friend in Dr. Muttkowski whose experience with the brotherhoods of other campuses makes him especially able to make helpful suggestions. The advances made in the organization of campus fraternities during the past few years have been in a large measure due to the effective plans outlined by the secretary of the faculty board. Co-operating with the inter-fraternity council, the faculty board has rendered great service to every organization in the university.

The work of the faculty board during the past scholastic year in the governing of student activities is realized when one considers the orderliness with which all activities have progressed. The student organizations possess in the faculty board a tempering and stabilizing influence which insures efficient progress.

IN every co-educational university the Women's League is an essential part of the student life of every woman. It serves as an aid to the freshmen particularly, and is an ever-ready source of advice to all co-eds, as well as providing a medium for the girls to meet and become acquainted with one another.

The social season of the League began with a meeting and informal reception sponsored by the Senior girls as a welcome to the new students. Miss Lucie Pequegnot, in a short speech, gave the Freshmen to understand that the upperclassmen were willing to lend their assistance in every way possible. At this meeting plans were made for the annual Hallowe'en dance, which later proved to be one of the most successful dances ever given by the women students.

Various meetings were held throughout the year, each meeting having as its hostess the Junior, Sophomore, and Freshmen classes respectively. The final social event of the year was an informal dance given at the Masonic Temple on the evening of May 2nd. The Belle Hop marked a fitting and brilliant close to one of the most successful years of this women's institution.

During the year three alumni students of the League were awarded life membership certificates; namely, Mrs. Alean B. Clutts, prominent attorney in Detroit, Miss Constance T. Maier and Miss Petronilla Joachim.

Under the leadership of Lucie Pequegnot, the Women's League has progressed in a most satisfactory manner.

THE Athletic Board of Control, is the "back-stage" body responsible for much of the success of the university's athletic teams. It is a business corporation upon which fall the financial and business responsibilities of Titan projects. In its hands are placed the reins of government over athletics, it approves schedules and frames policies and executes them to the best advantage of university and students alike. Coaches' salaries, equipment expenditures, the stadium debt and the athletic expansion policy of the university all are handled by the Board.

Throughout the University of Detroit's most trying years with comparatively fruitless efforts for athletic prestige, the Athletic Board adhered to its rigid policies. It tried gamely to make of Titan aggregations, real formidable outfits. It procured efficient coaches and equipment and in every way possible encouraged students to participate in athletic contests. Finally after years of effort it was rewarded with the success of the Titans. The Board is satisfied with the results.

The membership of the Board is restricted to one faculty member, three alumni members and three student members. Fr. M. Gross, S. J., is the faculty representative. Leo J. Nebel, well known in university alumni circles. is chairman of the Board. Other alumni members are M. Clement Butler, treasurer, and Wendell Hall. James M. Brennan, a student member, is secretary of the Board. Kenneth Fournier and John Malone are the remaining two student members.

THE place of the TOWER in university life is seldom properly understood. Its outward duty, to record the student life from year to year, is evident. But the value of this record and its importance in future years is not often emphasized.

Someone has said that the best means of remembering anything is to write it down. And it is the TOWER that is the memory of the university. Printed in a form that is beautiful and that conveys more to the reader than mere fact, it presents the panorama of each year's events for present students to remember and future students to read for counsel and guidance.

The TOWER is the bearer of the university's tradition. The customs, the forms, and events of each succeeding year are built upon it. It is only with repetition that tradition grows, and the traditions of today were planted in the yearbooks of yesterday just as the traditions of the future will be founded on the records of the present.

The reference book of student activity is the TOWER. For in it are contained the records of success and failure. The work of every organization and the means of its operation are recorded here. What better counsel can the successors to these organizations in the future receive than to inspect the accurate report of their predecessors.

The staff has attempted to eliminate from this volume its own opinions, and bequeath thereby a true and accurate record. It has sought out those incidents and events which illustrate best the spirit of the university.

It is the sincere hope of the staff of the 1930 TOWER that they have gathered herein a true and complete record of the year, that this annual will take its place as the reference book of university activity and form a link in that chain of books which tell the story of the progress of Alma Mater.

Choosing a staff for the yearbook constitutes a great task each year. To find student writers capable of artistic and accurate work, and who are willing to give their time to this enterprise, is an obstacle difficult to surmount. The TOWER work requires the best journalistic and organization talent the university possesses. To find this talent among the modest and retiring members of the student body is hard.

The staff this year was chosen for its record in journalistic work. Some were members of the Varsity News organization—others were veterans of last year. As a whole, however, the staff was selected from new material which was to be organized and trained for future publication work at the university.

There are probably few other activities at the university that offer the manifold personal benefits that accrue from training in journalistic work. Facility of expression and keen observation are but two of many qualities that may be acquired from practice of this nature.

EIGHT years ago the University of Detroit issued its first annual, the Red and White, to replace the small pictorial published each June.

In December, 1928, the Board of Governors of the Detroit Union succeeded in having a "Tower Fee" added to the regular tuition stipend at the beginning of the second semester. Having a definite source of revenue and witnessing the success of last June's issue, the 1930 TOWER Staff proceeded without hesitation to plan a better and more complete annual.

An increased enrollment in the university increased the problems of the circulation department. However, thoroughness and efficiency marked every move of that department in placing in the hands of the students a treasure of memories of their college days in a university worthy of their loyalty and continued love.

When the TOWER was late in publication, a new difficulty of great proportion was encountered—and that seems the fate of a circulation staff, difficulty. How to get the yearbook to those who have left school for the year, some forever? It is interesting to note the many ruses employed by the circulators to accomplish this task. Mailing was but one of many. Addresses, especially correct ones, were hard to get.

That is but one way—there were many others used by those genii of mass distribution, the circulation staff. They work hard and do their work in the best way possible under the conditions with which they are confronted, which is all that may be asked of them.

EACH year sees a growth in the university which is little short of phenomenal. Students from every part of the United States, indeed from almost every part of the civilized world, are beginning to know and at the same time to appreciate the University of Detroit. This widespread popularity and prestige is due to many causes, foremost among which is the "Varsity News."

The "Varsity News," to a greater extent than any other medium, reflects the true spirit of the university. In it are contained evidences of that wonderful spirit which is animating the student body and which is noticeably present in each of its undertakings; vivid reproductions of athletic contests; and a clear and orderly record of every student activity.

It acts, too, as a unifying influence. Because of its wide circulation and universal appeal it draws together the different units and makes of them one unified whole.

To accomplish the all-important ends mentioned above and to perform countless other integral duties it is essential that the "Varsity News" have a large and efficient staff. This staff is carefully chosen from the student body and to it falls the task of editing the paper. The work often necessitates staying up of half the night and making sacrifices, but the efforts of the staff are at once apparent in the never-failing excellency of the "Varsity News."

The business of news-gathering is a difficult one at the University of Detroit. The tendency of the various colleges and departments is to draw within themselves, and consequently to keep what they know and do to themselves. It is the reporter's job to seek out these modest people and make known their activities to the student body through the university's mouthpiece. It becomes a hard job when they receive little cooperation, and sometimes violent rebuffs from the persons they approach.

Another difficulty is encountered by the editors in making assignments. This job requires imagination and a good nose for news. Many good stories are lost by the fact that members of the departments do not seek reports of their doings in the Varsity News—and the editors cannot know everything.

On the whole the reporting and editing of the official university paper has greatly improved this year. A greater and more comprehensive variety of activities receive publicity. Improvement is possible still, but it may safely be said that the 1930 staff of the Varsity News has done exceedingly well.

INCREASED enrollment in the university did not make easier the task of circulating the "Varsity News." When one realizes that copies must be placed in the hands of all students and faculty members in every department as well as the alumni the difficulties entailed may be estimated.

Leo Shubnell, manager of circulation again this year, cared for this task through the distribution system devised by him last year. Too little thought is given to the labor which he and his energetic assistants expend that each student may be made aware of "news-of-the-week" in the university.

The particular difficulties of two divisions in the Engineering College and reaching the alumni were overcome by the establishment of a mailing department.

Supplying the alumni with the Varsity News each week almost doubled the circulation and greatly increased the work of the staff. Shubnell was assisted by Jay Maley, secretary to the president, in this work. As a result, the university and the alumni have realized a desire of many years. The old graduates will now be kept in touch with the progressive events of Alma Mater, and a unity of effort should result that will prove of great benefit to the university as a whole.

The work of the circulation staff this year has been particularly efficient, and its members deserve commendation for a work that is not usually popular or credited with any extraordinary public recognition. Little credit and many complaints are the ordinary lot.

THE UNION OPERA

"HELLO Stranger," the fourth annual operatic venture of the Detroit Union, met the acclaim of critical Detroit as being one of the most successful student operas ever produced.

In every musical venture as large as this one it is impossible to give credit to any one individual. As chairman of the opera, Frank J. Potts assumed the manifold burdens of this stupendous undertaking. Supporting the chairman, experienced and zealous committees planned and discharged their various duties.

The direction was placed in the hands of Bill McGurn who previously staged "Hoofs My Dear." He was assisted by Charles LaDouceur, who was in charge of the book and Harry Seitz, director of the Glee Club, who trained the singing chorus of twenty persons.

Jim Pooler, an alumnus of the University of Detroit, is the author of "Hello Stranger," which was a thrilling romance packed with adventure, love, and countless laugh-provoking situations.

John Galbo, in the role of "Shuffles," the sophisticated darky who tutors the credulous immigrants, again earns the merited praise of the dramatic critics. Once more we find Jack Teubert in the feminine lead, playing the dainty French girl, Marie Petite, whose dark eyes and charming figure finally capture the heart of Seamus. Seamus, the boy with the Irish brogue, was characterized by David Leahy in a manner worthy of a professional. Pete Tocco, as Guido, and George Nebus, as Hossenpheffer, gained many a laugh with their humorous anecdotes.

The snappy tunes to which the men and "girls" danced and sang were composed by Joe Kreklow,

THE BAND

HARDLY had the university classes began to convene when the appointment of Gene LaBarre, prominent band-master, to the position of director was announced by the Athletic Association. Immediately following this selection, rehearsals were called and the De Paul game found a greatly enlarged university band, playing with precision and marching in well-ordered formations, occupying the electrically-lighted gridiron between the halves.

The feature of the band's performances was their appearance on the West Virginia field at Morgantown. Perhaps it was the uncheckable attack of the Titan football players that inspired the band members to the splendid showing they gave that November afternoon. But whether this was the reason or not, the fact still remains that no student who traveled to Morgantown for the game regretted contributing to the fund established for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the band to West Virginia.

Not only did the band play at football games. Mr. LaBarre's organization entertained at all of the gridiron rallies held during the course of the season. They likewise made their appearance at the University of Detroit High School-Highland Park High School football game played in the university's stadium.

Much of the credit for the successful season can be given to John Labadie, who acted as manager of the band for three years. His work leaves him practically unnoticed by the student body but, nevertheless, it requires arduous and faithful labor.

Bob Beale did some very able directing of the band in concert as student assistant to Gene LaBarre, and no story of the band is complete without attention to that strutting, high-stepping, drum major, Rod Marion (who threw his stick over the goal posts).

A RATHER eventful first year has closed for the Dramatic Club. Despite the great and seemingly many difficulties, the club has become firmly rooted and is filling a need which has long been recognized in the life of the University. It was instituted in behalf of the better interests of the school and its students.

Its aims and ideals were few but well chosen. The primary purpose was to search out and develop all talent necessary in producing and staging plays at various intervals throughout the year and to be non-partial in its appointments. It has attempted to bring together all students who are sincerely interested in dramatics.

"Two Gentlemen From Chicago," was the first presentation of the club. Father Scott, S.J., Dean of men, Father Horst, S.J., faculty moderator of the Club, and the Glee Club were guests of the Dramatic Club at this one-act performance. Those taking part were Lillian Dixon, Leo Schubnell, Dave McHardy, George Schweager, Bernard Duggan, and Matthew Gill.

Before the spring vacation, the Club presented another one-act play, "The Monkey's Paw." This performance showed a great improvement in the quality of acting. Marie Bunetta, James Frazer, George Schweager and Walter Vander Bossche were the performers.

At various intervals throughout the year, the club was addressed by leading men in the field of amateur dramatics, on subjects pertinent to dramatics.

THE University of Detroit Glee Club, one of the youngest organizations on the campus, has achieved remarkable records during its comparatively short term of existence, and has firmly entrenched itself in the midst of student activities.

In addition to several informal concerts, the club furnished the singing talent for the Union Opera.

The first meeting was held at the suggestion of Rev. Joseph Scott, S.J., Dean of Men. Over thirty candidates reported for the first practice held late in October, 1929. Harry Seitz, prominent in Detroit choral circles, was chosen as director. Under his guidance the club grew rapidly in size and ability, until now it is a recognized society, and has become an integral part of student life, and certainly one of its most enjoyable activities.

DEBATING AND ORATORY

THE INTERCOLLEGIATE debate class, experiencing ambitions that never before had been approached, formed a schedule that even the most indifferent must admit to be the strongest ever attempted by this university.

Unseasoned and yet experiencing a sort of transitional backwardness, the first debating team to take the floor lost by a small margin to the platform logicians of St. Xavier College on January 17. This first defeat only served to send the Titan debaters on the warpath and their plunder was great.

They met and defeated an array of speakers from Ohio State College on February 7th. Cincinnati University on February 21st and Oberlin College, on March 6th were the next victims of the Detroit forensicians. Following these brilliant victories, the Motor City logicians were hosts to Western Reserve on March 17th, Creighton University on March 19th, and St. Louis University on March 21st. Two of these resulted in decided victories while the third is questionably considered a defeat.

Throughout their extensive campaign, the question was, "Resolved: that the nations of the world should adopt a plan of complete disarmament, excepting such forces as are needed for police purposes."

The Dynamic City's array of polished speakers were even more successful abroad than at home. On March 4th, 5th and 6th a team of select speakers traveled to Milwaukee, Chicago and Evanston where they met and defeated Marquette, Loyola, and Northwestern by audience decisions.

The second debating tour was equally successful. Another team of winning forensic artists toured the Buckeye State, where they again met and defeated Cincinnati University, St. Xavier University, Oberlin College, Ohio State College and Western Reserves on successive nights from March 10th to March 14th inclusive.

Debaters in the various contests irrespective of teams were: Ralph C. Johnston, veteran of many debates, James J. Britt, who will be back at the university next year, Dave Leahy, John C. Treen, Albert J. Nagler, Ben Newton, Ellis Duncan, Otto Seebaldt and Ned A. Monaghan.

In addition to these public performances, debating activity was carried on extensively within the university organization itself. The Philomathic Society, with a greatly increased roll call, and with new and talented members, carried out a regular program of forensic activities during the year. At each meeting talks on subjects of current interest were given by the members.

The society co-operated with the debating organization in furthering forensic activity. Among its members are many promising candidates for the debating teams of next year. To furnish training in debating to its members, the society held a tournament during the second semester. A trophy was donated to the society and named the Gregory Debating Cup after the donor. Nearly all members of the Philomathic Society took part in this tourney, which was won by a team composed of Albert J. Nagler and Louis Bridenstine.

The Philomathic Society also aided the public speaking organization in being hosts for the eliminations of the Skinner Debate and the annual oratorical contest. Both of these contests were held in May.

The six speakers chosen from the candidates who participated in the eliminations for the Skinner Debate were Albert J. Nagler, James Britt, Benjamin Newton, Edward Monaghan, H. Walter Theisen, and Joseph A. Powers. The subject selected for debate concerned the need of legislation to prevent monopolies by chain stores.

Friday, May 8, at the Knights of Columbus auditorium on Woodward avenue. Britt and Monaghan vied for honors in the pre-debate choosing by debating enthusiasts. Joseph Powers, law student, proved to be the dark horse of the debate, however, and won the traditional Skinner medal for excellence in debating. Powers had been a member of the debating organization for three years.

The thirty-seventh annual oratorical contest was held on Wednesday, May 14, in Gesu Hall on the Six Mile road campus. Five speakers were chosen to compete for the gold medal in this event. They were John Peister, James Britt, Benjamin Newton, Ralph C. Johnston and John C. Treen. All except Peister, who is a freshman, were members of the varsity debating squads for 1930.

It was a closely-contested battle of words from the first speaker to the last. Ralph C. Johnston was declared the winner by the unanimous ballot of the judges. It was the fourth time Johnston competed for the medal, and was his last chance to annex this prize of the public speaking department before he graduated. James Britt was voted a close second by all the judges for his oration on the "Red Menace." Johnston spoke on "The Constitution and Education." He was presented with the medal by Vincent McAuliffe, an alumnus who had previously received the medal himself.

These contests closed the season's forensic activity. It was a highly successful year, and the public speaking activity of the students of the University of Detroit reached its highest level in the history of the university. No activity is harbored by Alma Mater that carries such tradition, and much has been done this year to stimulate interest in this cultural endeavor. Of the 1930 squad only three will be lost through graduation.

THE PAROCHIAL HIGH SCHOOL DEBATING LEAGUE

THIS year students of the public speaking department realized an ambition conceived three years ago. That was the formation of a Michigan Parochial debating league. This organization was sponsored this year by the University of Detroit after members of the debating squad, under the direction of C. Baldwin Bacon, head of the public speaking department, had secured the entry of nearly every parochial high school in the Detroit district.

The league this year comprises Detroit and suburban towns within a radius of 25 miles. In nearly all of the high schools of the new league University of Detroit debaters were instructors in public speaking.

At the beginning of the season debates were scheduled and carried out under the direction of the university. The matches were arranged by Mr. Bacon. An elimination tournament was held at the end of the season from which Holy Redeemer and St. Anthony's high schools emerged as the victors of the semi-finals. The latter defeated Holy Redeemer in the finals held at the Knights of Columbus hall on Woodward Avenue, Sunday afternoon, April 27. At this time a silver cup was presented to the winners significant of the parochial debating championship of Michigan. The name of the winner was engraved on the cup, and the trophy will pass to the winner of each succeeding tournament.

In future years the public speaking department hopes to extend the scope of the league to include every parochial high school in the state. Its beginning predicts a future of great success and benefit to its participants.

THE Sodality of the Arts and Science College has added another successful year to an already enviable record. It has well fulfilled its lofty purpose in providing for the students of the literary department a truly spiritual organization with a truly religious atmosphere.

Under the able direction of Father Scott weekly meetings were held throughout the entire year. At the first meeting of each month, the entire sodality joined in reciting the Office. The second meeting was devoted to a talk by one of the members, while the director spoke at the third and fourth meetings. This schedule was followed during the school year. The talks were always interesting and the topics chosen were timely.

The annual retreat was held on January 13th, 14th and 15th under the direction of Rev. Charles L. Crotty, S. J. Fr. Crotty's sermons were of unusual interest and the manner in which he conducted the retreat drew many favorable comments from the student body.

Collections were taken up at various intervals during the year and resulted in the sending of many generous checks to the fathers laboring in foreign fields. It is this service which the sodalities of the university have undertaken with energy. Mission collections have been extended to certain classes in some of the colleges, and calendars of donations have been posted. These designate the mission for which subscription is taken and the date for contribution.

THE sodality of the College of Commerce and Finance experienced one of its most successful years during the 1929-30 period. This organization accomplished well its work in furnishing spiritual inspiration to its members and in forwarding the Catholic spirit through the student body at large.

Under the direction of Father Scott regular meetings were held each Monday noon in the chapel of the Chemistry building. A regular program of activities was carried out which proved of great benefit to the organization. The sodality opened its year's work with the Office of the Blessed Virgin. Father Scott opened the second meeting of the year with an inspiring address concerning the purpose of the sodality in university life. One of the interesting features of the year's activity were the talks given by student sodalists at the meetings. Various phases of religious activity at the university were discussed by these speakers. The fourth Monday in each month was given over for the business of the organization.

The work of the year was climaxed with the annual retreat held on February 10, 11 and 12, under the direction of Rev. Fr. Cunningham, S. J.

This event was praised by those who attended as one of great benefit both spiritually and educational. Fr. Cunningham's wit and knowledge characterized one of the finest retreats in several years, and one which drew a large attendance from the commercial college.

THE Section A Engineers Sodality completed a very successful year during the past school term. The society has become an integral part of the Jesuit school system and the University of Detroit is no exception. In fact, the University of Detroit has one of the finest representations of all Jesuit colleges, and the Section A Engineering department is endowed with as fine a spirit and spiritual zeal as any section in the school.

Thursday noon was set aside for the regular weekly meetings of the Engineers Sodality. A fixed schedule has been drawn up by the unit so that they can accomplish the greatest amount of work possible in the short time allotted them due to their alternating schedule.

The Section A sodality follows the practice of the other divisions on the campus by reciting the office of the Blessed Virgin each month. Father Scott gave a short instructional talk at the second meeting of each month. One of the members is chosen to give a talk for the third meeting, while the fourth is devoted to the business interests of the sodality.

The annual retreat of the sodality was held on January 6th, 7th, and 8th, with Rev. Theodore Schulte, S. J., acting as retreat master.

He instructed the assembly in spiritual and moral questions, particularly those which pertain to the college student. Those who attended this retreat were unanimous in approving it as a great source of inspiration, and a balance to a year of study in which spiritual matters are too often smothered.

THE Engineers' Sodality, Section B, is one of the largest religious organizations on the university campus. The sodality's work during the year, influencing as it does a large body of students, has resulted in great spiritual blessings to its members. It has kept aglow that fervor stimulated by the annual student retreats, and has helped many to lead a better life than would have been possible without its strong aid.

Rev. Joseph Scott, S. J., Dean of Men, has made untiring efforts to make the sodality a force for good in the Engineering Department.

On January 27, 28 and 29, the sodality made its retreat. Attendance was unprecedented. The annual retreat is the major event of the sodality year and is always fruitful of much good. Rev. L. Mullany, S. J., was retreat master. Father Mullany is professor of English at Marquette University.

Each Thursday at noon the sodality convenes in the student chapel. A regular procedure, lasting fifteen minutes, is always carefully followed out. The Office of the Blessed Virgin is said, and the director and one officer each give a short talk.

Joseph A. Fisher, as prefect, is to be specially complimented for his activity in the affairs of the sodality. He was assisted by Arnold Mittig, also an officer of the sodality in 1929, and first assistant prefect in 1930. Other officers are Vincent A. McGuigan, second assistant, Eugene T. Kelty, secretary, and Roger J. Blandford, treasurer.

THE Co-eds sodality has the smallest number of members of any sodality on the campus. Yet the organization has finished a year of religious activities equal to any achieved by the others.

One of the greatest inspirations found in the sodality activity of the year was the constant advice of Rev. Joseph Scott, S.J., who acted as faculty moderator. Father Scott succeeded the Rev. James Corrigan who acted as faculty moderator last year.

Dolly Bauser, a junior in the college of Commerce and Finance, was chosen to serve as prefect. She was ably assisted by Eilleen Cross, Mary Friedl, Frances Kline and Margaret McRae.

The sodality met on the second Sunday of every month. The meetings showed a large and enthusiastic attendance, the co-eds going to Holy Communion in a body.

One of the major accomplishments of this sodality was its participation in the annual retreat which was held on March 8, 9 and 10, at the Sacred Heart Convent on Lawrence Avenue. Rev. Andrew Cook, S.J., of Chicago, conducted the exercises and offered interpretations and advice concerning the moral problems which confront the average co-ed of today. This retreat was supported by the sodalists with a large attendance and devotion.

The co-eds have accomplished much in the field of religious activity and their work in this respect cannot be overestimated. Each member of the sodality obtained as a result of her participation in the exercises, a spiritual reward impossible to estimate.

LAW SODALITY

NATHAN B. GOODNOW, Prefect.
GEORGE A. WEINS, First Assistant.
WILLIAM F. WAGNER, Secretary.
JOHN PHENEY, Treasurer.
REV. GEORGE A. MCGOVERN, S. J., Director.

THE Law Sodality has steadily assumed a place of importance among the other sodalities on the campus, and under the enthusiastic and energetic leadership of Father McGovern they have found an abundance of consolation and advice. That they have responded to the enthusiasm of Father McGovern is shown by the fact that the majority of the lawyers attend these meetings in spite of the fact that they are held after school hours. The meetings have been held every Wednesday at 11:00 o'clock in St. Catherine's Chapel.

The annual retreat for the Law School was held in January in conjunction with Section A Engineers under the direction of Father Theodore J. Shulte, S. J., Dean of Men at Loyola University, and who is more than usually familiar with the problems of the modern college student.

The University of Detroit has one of the finest representative sodalities of all the Jesuit schools, and throughout this organization there is no unit endowed with a more progressive spirit than the Law group.

It is the annual retreat which climaxes the work of the sodality season, and during which the spirit of sodality activity is revealed. Without the sodality, the religious side of education would be neglected, and spiritual inspiration would be wanting. The retreat best explains to its membership the importance of this phase of education, and lends further inspiration to the individual who attends and who understands what he hears.

Honor Awards

HOWARD WALSH MEMORIAL MEDAL

The Howard Walsh Memorial Medal was established at the University of Detroit in memory of the late Howard Walsh, a former student of the University. The medal will be presented annually to that University student who writes the best essay submitted in the Intercollegiate Essay Contest.

"The Catholic Layman in Graduate Studies and Research," was the subject chosen for the 1930 contest. The medal was awarded to James C. LaDriere.

FATHER OTTING MEMORIAL KEY

The Father Otting Memorial Key was established last year in memory of the late Rev. Henry W. Otting, S. J., past regent of the university. It is given by the Eta Zeta Sigma sorority to that senior girl who has attained the highest scholastic average for four years of work.

The winner of the 1929 award was Iris L. Young, a senior in the Day School of Commerce and Finance. Miss Young's average for four years' work was 92.6 per cent.

CHI SIGMA PHI KEY

Chi Sigma Phi, prominent fraternity in the College of Engineering, provided a fund for the annual award of a scholarship key to that senior engineer who had the highest scholastic average for his five years of work in the engineering department. This award was inaugurated in 1927. Arthur W. Anderson, outstanding student in the Engineering College, had the honor of being the 1929 recipient of this much-desired tribute of scholastic supremacy.

CHI DELTA THETA ARCHITECTURAL KEY

In connection with its annual architectural exhibition, the Chi Delta Theta engineering fraternity this spring offered a gold key for excellence in architectural design. The award is made during Commencement Week.

Incidentally the key was designed by Herbert J. Wendt, a student in the College of Engineering. A bronze replica of the key is given for second place in the contest.

MAGI MEDAL

The Arts and Science Freshman who attains the highest scholastic standing during the entire school year becomes the proud possessor of the Magi Achievement Award or scholarship key.

Always leaders in campus activities the Magi offer this scholarship key as an incentive to greater scholastic effort. The key was presented last year to George Smith.

DELTA SIGMA PI SCHOLARSHIP KEY

The Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key was established at the University of Detroit in 1921.

A key is presented each year to the senior in each of the Commerce and Finance schools whose average is highest in his class for four years. Last year the dual award was presented to Leo S. Mittig, of the Day School, and Carl A. Carlson, of the Night School.

ALPHA SIGMA TAU KEY

The Alpha Sigma Tau Scholarship Key was established last year as an incentive for scholastic attainment throughout the whole student body of the university. It is an annual award, and is given to the male senior who stands highest scholastically in four years of university work. The key is presented at graduation and the winner is not announced until those exercises are completed. To William J. Maledon goes the unique honor of being the first winner. Maledon had an average of 96.6% for his four years work in the university.

ORATORICAL MEDAL

The Oratorical Medal was established in 1894 by the faculty of the University of Detroit. George Monaghan was awarded the first medal.

In the preliminaries, held before a regular meeting of the Philomathic Society, five of the contestants were chosen by the judges to compete in the finals. They were Ralph C. Johnston, James J. Britt, Benjamin Newton John Peister, and John C. Treen.

At the finals held on May 13th at Gesu Hall, Ralph C. Johnston was named winner of the 1930 medal, and James J. Britt was given second place.

LOYALTY AWARD

On every football team there is one player who is a constant source of cheer and inspiration to his team mates, who is a consistent football player, and who, through the power of his leadership and personality, proves his worth.

It is for this service that the Athletic Association of the university presents the annual Loyalty Award to that player who fills this particular place on the football team. This year, Lester Vachon, quarterback, was presented with the award at the annual Delta Sigma Pi football banquet held at the Book-Cadillac Hotel at the close of the football season.

OMEGA BETA PI SCHOLARSHIP CUP

The Omega Beta Pi Scholarship Cup was established last year as an annual award to the freshmen of the Pre-Medic department. Its purpose is to promote a high standard of scholarship in the first year of work in preparation for the study of medicine.

The cup was presented to James T. Carroll, who topped the scholarship averages of the freshman Pre-Medic class with an average of 94.2, a remarkable record for a first year student in any college of the university.

SKINNER MEDAL

Joseph A. Powers was presented with the traditional Skinner Medal for 1930 when he was chosen as the finest debater of the six university platform artists who participated in the annual debating classic.

The medal is awarded each year and is significant of the university's debating championship. It is sought for by members of the university's forensic organization throughout their four years of platform work.

An elimination tournament was held before the Philomathic Society in which twenty contestants took part. Six were chosen to compete in the Skinner Debate: James J. Britt, Edward Monaghan, Benjamin Newton, Albert J. Nagler, H. Walter Theisen, and Joseph A. Powers.

GREGORY CUP

William B. Gregory, during his term as president of the Philomathic Society, presented that organization with a loving cup on which is to be engraved annually the names of the members of the winning team in the annual debate tournament.

This year's final discussion found Albert J. Nagler and Louis Bridenstine supporting the affirmative side of the subject: "Resolved, that the government of the United States ought to recognize the government of Russia." The popular decision rendered by the members of the society gave this team the verdict over their opponents, Douglas Turrell and Wayne Swonk. Nagler was voted the best speaker.

ARGON TROPHY

The Argon Trophy, given by the Argon general social fraternity, is one of the most beautiful awards attainable in athletic activity at the University of Detroit. The winner is chosen by Head Coach Dorais for the greatest improvement shown in spring football practice.

William J. O'Neill received the trophy last year at the annual Argon Trophy Dance held at the Hotel Statler the evening of May 24.

The 1930 Argon Trophy was presented on May 23 at the close of spring practice.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI CUP

Alpha Kappa Psi, formerly Sigma Kappa Phi, national Commerce and Finance fraternity, last year established the custom of giving an award to that fraternity that showed the highest standing in scholarship for the entire year. The award is in the form of a loving cup of which any fraternity could well wish to be the proud possessor.

After the results had been carefully counter-checked and compared it was found that the Delta Pi Kappa had become the proud possessors of this coveted prize, with an average of 84.865. Alpha Chi with an average of 84.638, was a very close second.

SENIOR BALL

FOUR years of campus social life comes to a delightful end each year with the annual Senior Ball. It was held this June at the beautiful Grosse Ile Golf and Country Club, and proved a fitting climax to a period of association and friendship.

Approximately two hundred Seniors and their guests attended the party. Gathered around tables decorated with colorful June flowers, the Seniors celebrated with gaiety a parting of four years of social association.

The dinner was excellent, and of a quantity that caused many of the guests to linger in the dining room before partaking in the dance that followed. Jean Goldkette presented Jack McGay and his orchestra for the music and entertainment of the evening.

The program for dancing was an admirable souvenir to keep as a remembrance of this Senior farewell ball. It was covered in white leather with a design of Memorial Tower and the University seal imprinted in red, and was a pleasing favor. It was one of the little things, planned by an able committee, that made the ball outstanding.

Flowers also decorated the ballroom in profusion, and the air was laden with their scent. Coupled with the beauty of the club house and its surroundings, the setting was the finest possible for this conclusion of all university social events.

It is impossible to say that this party was the finest Senior Ball in the University's history. Those who are here now can remember at most but a few of them. But it can be stated, and with considerable certainty, that if not the best it was at least one of the finest. And certainly no better parting celebration could be given than was the Senior Ball of 1930.

JUNIOR PROM

ARTE MODERNE was the decorative scheme of the fifteenth annual Junior Prom, held in the Commandery Drill Room of the Masonic Temple on Friday, May 9th.

In an atmosphere fantastically modernistic, over eight hundred couples made merry at the gala affair. A sea of rainbow colors hung overhead; strikingly bizarre designs covered the four walls while the fraternity boxes were executed in the same highly imaginative vein. A powerful, indirect lighting system illuminated this variegation of red and orange and blue. In the booths, modernistic furniture augmented the decorative scheme.

At the stroke of twelve the Grand March got under way to the tune of "Dear Old U of D," played by Wayne King's lighthearted chevaliers and Jack McGay's merry musicians. The march was led by Elmer Ulrich, a Junior in the Night School of Commerce and Finance, and Miss Marion Spindler, both of Detroit. Each feminine guest received for her favor, a beautiful Dutchess Purse of tan Morocco leather, mounted with the University seal.

In accordance with J-Prom traditions a silver loving cup was presented to the girl traveling the farthest distance to attend the dance. The award was made to Miss Margaret A. Kendall, the guest of James J. Britt.

The fraternity boxes were scenes of small gatherings and more intimate association. Here friends gathered to exchange dances and to gossip over current university affairs. At the same time the radio was broadcasting the tunes from the two orchestras to those who could not attend the prom, to some who have never enjoyed such a delectable social event.

There is no logical reason why the Junior Prom should be an occasion for such general celebration among the students of the university. But the unassailable fact remains—it always is.

THE SOPHOMORES remembering the success of their Freshmen Dance determined to uphold their class name. With capable committeemen working toward one end, that of unprecedented success, there could be only one outcome.

The Fountain Ballroom at the Masonic Temple was the scene of the Winter Festivity on February 7th. The dance floor was filled to capacity every minute of the evening, with more than eight hundred couples in attendance. Jean Goldkette's Country Club orchestra provided the music and what syncopation!

The Soph Snow-Ball committeemen were: Clarence F. Falkner, general chairman; William E. Hutchinson, Joseph A. Lubinski, Albert J. Nagler, Thomas F. Benson, John B. Girardin, Jack W. Teubert, Joseph C. Slater, Michael A. VanDeKeere.

THE FRESHMEN of 1930 resolved to make their Frosh Frolic a precedent for university class dances. They set up an ambitious program and February 21st saw the realization of their fondest hopes. The entire second floor of the Book-Cadillac Hotel was reserved and nearly twelve hundred couples danced beneath the streamers, fraternity banners, university colors and balloons to the color-melting music furnished by Fletcher Henderson and Joe Kreklow.

Laurence V. Britt, general chairman, was assisted by Roland Denison, Joseph Malott, Joseph Beer, Lillian Dixon, Wallace Carson, John Connolly, George Francis, Charles Laurencelle, Francis Kelly, Henry Wich, George Rakovan, Adam Kronk, Thomas Bailey, Victor Miller, Rodman Marien, John Bennett, Mark Storen, Paul Vance, Helen Quick, John Dyer, Frank Richards and Raymond Newton.

THE newly organized Glee Club consisting of several tiers of gifted vocalists, Gene LaBarre and his phalanx of instruments, and several boxes of choice domestic ropes were all combined to the edification of a large number of students last fall, at the first of two Union smokers. The initial barrage was laid down at Gesu Hall, under the guidance of Arnold Mittig, where the band and the men's chorus entertained the assembled customers.

This nicotine orgy was followed by another for the special attendance of night school inhalers, given at the down-town gym. Both affairs served as mixers for unacquainted students on the campus, at the same time focusing attention and marshaling spirit for the football team, whose clash with Loyola University was imminent. Union smokers are a customary event during autumn months, and many novices are introduced to the deleterious effects of the weed in this way. This type of mass meeting provides one of the most enjoyable socials of the stag variety.

UNION DANCES — Following a policy inaugurated several years ago the Union Board of Governors again sponsored the dances which have become as much a part of the football season as the games themselves. These dances give the Freshmen an opportunity to become acquainted with the upper-classmen.

The Union Board appointed Jack Ratcliffe as chairman of these affairs and the first dance was given at Gesu Hall after the students had watched the Titans march victoriously over the team from Dayton University.

This dance proved to be successful socially as well as financially, and it was estimated that three hundred followers enjoyed themselves. Of course, one essential of every successful dance is the orchestra and this position was ably filled.

A second dance, given after the Tulsa game with Jack Ratcliffe again acting as chairman, was as complete a victory as the game which preceded it. It was attended by a large number of students.

Arnold Mittig

THE HALLOWE'EN DANCE, sponsored by the Women's League of the University of Detroit and held in the ballroom of the Detroit Leland Hotel on Friday, October 25th, was full of the mysteriousness, so typical of the annual fall holiday.

The ballroom, a rendezvous of witches, cornstalks, cats, autumn leaves, and the like, presented a weird spectacle. It showed evidence of much thought and time on the part of the decoration committee, and revealed much of the delicacy of the feminine touch.

More than 150 couples danced to the music of Mike Falk's Collegians. Refreshments served at the dance, proved a welcome diversion and a delightful feature of the Hallowe'en entertainment.

To Mary E. Friedl, chairman of the affair, must be paid the compliment of a successful organizer. She was assisted by Betty Montgomery, in charge of publicity, Frances Kline, decorations, Armella Friedl, music, and Vera Schulte, patrons.

Eileen Crowley

Mary Friedl

THE BELLE HOP was the sequel to the unusually successful Hallowe'en dance. The Masonic Temple was the site chosen for this affair, which was held on May 2nd. A modernistic motif was chosen for the decorations, a decision received with much favor. Most attractive programs were given the guests.

A large gathering was present when Myron Schultz and his Ramblers started the festivities. As a special feature of the musical part of the dance, the "hit" numbers from the recent Union Opera were played by the orchestra.

Eileen Crowley acted as general chairman of the dance and succeeded in making the affair a success. Miss Crowley was assisted by Mary Nelius, Florence Bernard, Margaret Meyers, Ava Hunt and Lucille Sullivan.

The Belle Hop represented a distinct departure from previous League dances and will probably become a regular feature of the Co-eds' social program.

William Murphy

THE FRESHMAN WELCOME DANCE, held at the Campus Ballroom, was given for the purpose of acquainting the Freshmen of the Engineering School with the upper classmen. The new arrivals on the campus appreciated this friendly gesture, for it not only provided them with an evening of entertainment, but it also fostered a bond of friendship between them and their fellow students.

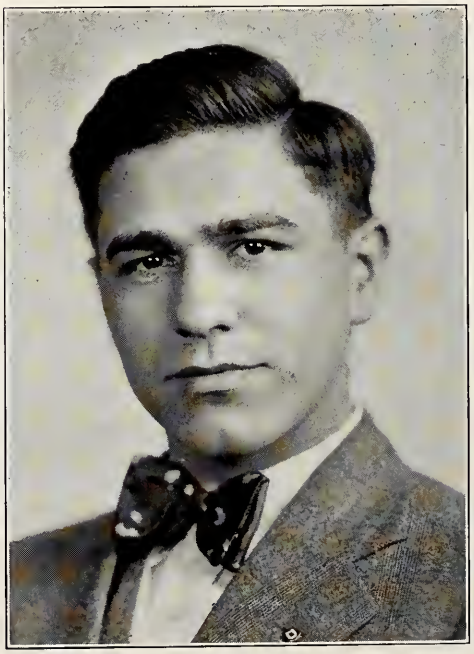
The dance was conducted under the general chairmanship of Henry Sternberg who, with the able support of Clarence Falkner, chairman of the ticket committee, and Joseph Slater, chairman of the reception committee, provided an evening of real enjoyable entertainment. Novel decorations in cubistic motif were employed. Ward S. Reilly and Clayton J. Pagot represented the faculty.

Every possible detail that would contribute to making the evening one of wholesome and entertaining revelry for the guests was attended to by the committee.

THE TECH BALL, annual social event of the Pre-Junior class, was held on November 29th in the Fountain Room of the Masonic Temple. William P. Murphy was chairman, assisted by Fred McRoberts and John Campbell.

To say that it was a success is meager description. The attendance was large and was drawn from all colleges of the campus. The Pre-Junior class entertained their guests unusually well, no small part of which was the excellent musical accompaniment of the evening furnished by Jack McGay and his orchestra of Detroit.

The motif of decoration was original. The affair being presented by engineering students exclusively, the Fountain Room was decorated in cubistic effects. Angles and circles, tripods and the mysteries of higher mathematics haunted the dancers and those who sat in the environs of this place of gaiety. Whatever characterizes an engineer, they certainly proved artists in conceiving a setting for their class dance.



Henry Sternberg

THE ASSOCIATED EVENING CLASSES Annual Dance, sponsored by the Night School, was held in the Knights of Columbus Auditorium on Woodward Avenue, February 13th.

The object of the dance, as well as all the activities promoted by the Associated Evening Classes, is to draw more closely together the men of the Jefferson Avenue campus. The particular purpose of the dance is to welcome the Freshmen into the night school and to make them acquainted with the upper classmen.

The dance was informal in tone. Save for the colors of the University artistically draped from the ceiling, no motif of decoration was followed. It was to the jazzy strains of Al Goine's Blue Blowers that those in attendance waltzed and fox-trotted their way into the wee hours of the morning.

Goodly compliments are due to Joseph A. Erdos, chairman of the event, and to his assistants, John Girardin and Thomas McIntosh. This social affair is eagerly looked forward to each year.

Ray Delaney

Joseph Erdos

THE PRE-MED BALL on January 31st saw one hundred and fifty couples dancing at the Fort Wayne Hotel to the gay music of Howard Bunt's "Syncopators." It is an annual event sponsored by the Omega Beta Phi fraternity and closed the first semester's round of university socials. Ray Delaney was chairman.

The ballroom was draped with university and fraternity colors. Red and white and blue balloons were strung over the dance floor. Combinations of skulls and bones, decorating the walls, reminded the frolickers that the future doctors were the hosts of the hour. The happy faces of the guests beside the decorations afforded a good study in contrasts.

The "Syncopators," besides providing the dance music, amused with several chorus selections and solos. The pledges entertained with a short skit and songs; the skit consisted of a dialogue between four pledges and the fraternity monitor and evoked much laughter from the spectators.

Frank Jenney

THE COLONIAL PROM, held in the Grand Ballroom of the Statler Hotel on the eve of Ash Wednesday, March 4, proved to be the most successful and best attended affair ever given by Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity. Benedict Henn acted as chairman of this seventh annual prom.

The motif was, by its very simplicity, beautiful. A few attractive decorations, appropriately placed, greatly enhanced the natural beauty of the ballroom. Vari-colored banners of the university fraternities, strung about the room, were a part of the impressive setting. Splendid music furnished by Joe Kreklow's orchestra served to complete an excellent program of arrangements.

One of the most colorful features of the Colonial Prom each year is the handsome banner given to the fraternity having the largest percentage of its members present. The possession of this banner has come to be an enviable one, and each year all the campus fraternities go to great effort to win it.

THE SCRIBES BALL, the annual Delta Pi Kappa Hallowe'en Dance, was held at the Masonic Temple on October 30th, 1929, with more than one hundred couples in attendance. Every amusing feature and novelty that could be obtained was arranged for the affair, and everyone had an enjoyable time.

The dance is an annual affair, given under the auspices of Delta Pi Kappa, the University of Detroit journalistic fraternity. The theme this year was more novel than any of the previous dances, what with pumpkins, lanterns and cornstalks distributed around the ballroom and creating a most weird effect.

The affair was unusually successful due to the efficient work of the committeemen, headed by Frank E. Jenney. The orchestra chosen was Herb Finney's Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. The annual Pi-I, the official "newspaper" of the dance, also made its appearance as per schedule, and made a big impression on the guests with its amusingly dry humor.

THE ARGON TROPHY DANCE held on May 23rd found the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Statler, crowded to capacity. This dance, which is an annual one, was the final social event of the school year.

The already highly enjoyable function was climaxed by the awarding of the Argon Trophy to that varsity football candidate, who showed the most improvement during the spring practice.

The ballroom was decorated with fraternity banners, balloons and streamers. It was a gala event and thoroughly reflected the real spirit of the Argon fraternity. The music was furnished by Joseph Kreklow and his bunch of melody dispensers.

The men responsible for the Argon Trophy dance were James Brennan, general chairman, Joseph Kreklow, William Storen, Charles Mangold, Philip Conway, C. Scott Howard, Howard Magrath, John Dyer, Kenneth Tiffany and Dale Devlin. Daniel J. Moynihan was faculty moderator.

THE TITAN FAREWELL FROLIC, the dance given annually in honor of the graduating members of the football team, was held at Hotel Fort Shelby on November 8th. The affair was sponsored by Theta Alpha Sigma fraternity, which each year thus honors the Titan gridiron veterans.

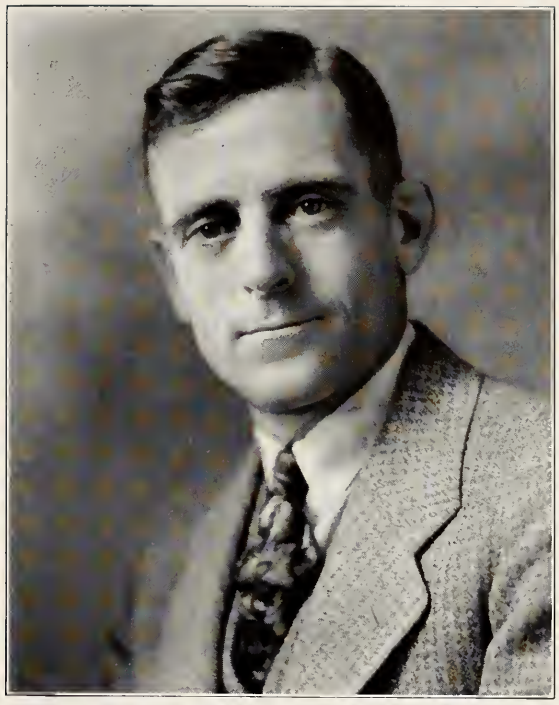
Bob Cruzet and his Cotton Club furnished the music. It was with difficulty that the committee headed by Harry Ryan managed to obtain the services of this excellent band. Last year the guests were so well pleased with the arrangements and music that this year saw a much increased attendance.

The presentation of gifts was not made at the dance as was the custom. Due to the lack of an open date later in the football schedule, the fraternity found it necessary to hold the dance on the only possible date, a time too early for the careful selection of gifts. The presentation was delayed till the evening before the Georgetown game, at the faculty building.

The Eiffel Tower Paris

Rising high above grand old Paris is the Eiffel Tower. It stands as a monument to the triumphant struggle of man over the elements. Thus we associate athletics with the mighty Eiffel. Athletics represent titanic contests between men of brawn, struggles that can be likened to this monument founded on the courage of man and the endurance of steel. It stands a symbol of physical strength and keen intelligence.

ATHLETICS



HEAD COACH CHARLES E. DORAIS.

COACHING STAFF

TO say that it is the caliber of the coaching staff that determines the success or failure of a university's sport teams is merely to apply to our athletic representatives the old axiom that it is the guiding force of an organization that is the determination of its efficiency. Surely the guiding force of the Red and White color bearers is Athletic Director Charles E. Dorais and his squad of able mentors.

It is customary to judge any leader by the results of his attainments. The past three seasons, an epoch in the history of University of Detroit athletics, have conclusively marked "Gus" Dorais as one of the outstanding figures in the collegiate football world of today. No word of explanation, no praise nor plaudit can ever overshadow the achievements he has created by placing an aggregation on the field to finish twenty-one of its twenty-two last games undefeated.

Dorais was aided in establishing this highly enviable record by the combined efforts of his assistants, "Bud" Boeringer and Harvey Brown, line coaches, and Johnny Fredericks, freshman coach.

Boeringer has won the undisputed title of "most colorful character connected with the Titan squad." And rightfully so, for who that knows "Bud" does not associate his name with the largest cud of tobacco on the squad, the gruff commands of a typical collegiate line-coach, and the all-around nomination for "best fellow in the world"? "Bud" learned his football at Notre Dame where he was chosen All-American center.

Brown and Fredericks are also Notre Dame men. Both are preparing for professional careers in Detroit, and have accepted invitations to aid Dorais and Boeringer in their spare time.

Much of the success of the Detroit teams of recent years can be credited to the careful handling and methods of conditioning athletes instigated here by "Dad" Butler, veteran trainer. Besides his work with the football and basketball teams, "Dad" has charge of the track team and although this is a comparatively new sport at the university, the improvement of his squad seems to undeniably state that it will not be long before the U. of D. will be a power on the cinder paths.

Louis Conroy showed that he was a very fine court mentor by developing a first-rate basketball aggregation in his first season. The opening portion of the schedule was disastrously sprinkled with narrow losses for the Titan quintet but as the season advanced the players became a smooth-working machine that finished the year with a record that boasted of more wins than defeats.

Co-ed basketball was recognized as a minor sport this year and the task of instructing the players was assigned to Ray Navin, former U. of D. varsity cager.

Eddie Kirk, Arts and Science Sophomore, coached the representative team of the University Golf Club. Kirk is assistant professional at the Dearborn Country Club.

STUDENT MANAGERS

AT the end of a successful season, sport writers and students heap laurels on the heads of the athletes. They seldom are as generous in the cases of the student managers, the students who perform so many important services to the team and the school.

Football, basketball and track are the three major sports at the university and Paul Curry, James M. Brennan and Albert J. Nagler, student managers of these sports, received the Varsity "D." George Crocker and Francis Starrs were awarded the Freshman numeral sweaters in recognition of their work as Freshman football and track managers, respectively. To Donald F. Carney, golf manager, and Fred Goodrich, tennis manager, the minor sports medal award was given. Florence M. Bernard received the Varsity "D" as manager of Co-ed basketball. Curry's assistants were Dale Devlin, who took over the managerial duties with the opening of spring practice, and John Holland. Next year's card of basketball games is being prepared by Robert Stefanowski who succeeds Brennan as manager. Ray DeRyck was assistant track manager.

CHEERLEADERS

GRADUATION left but two members of the 1928-29 cheerleading squad available for duty at the start of the school year last September, Head Cheerleader William Murphy and Joseph Lubinski. It was not long, however, before a tryout had been held and four new university yell-masters had been selected from nearly a score of candidates. These men were Newton Jackson, Thomas Muston, Charles Marion and George McNamara.

The work of the squad was not ended at the close of the grid card. They led the cheers at the Union Smokers and pep rallies as well as at the basketball games.

The Athletic Board of Control awarded Murphy the varsity "D" and elected Lubinski 1930 head cheerleader.

Captain Lloyd Brazil

WE praise this man for what he is and for what he has done in four full years as a son of Alma Mater. As retiring captain of the football team, he leaves on graduation a record of athletic achievement unequaled in the annals of university sport. He leaves also his classmates and a student body who are fired with honest admiration for this blonde giant of the Varsity.

No one can realize but himself the effort he has put forth in the cause of his university. We can never know this, but we have seen the tears in his eyes as he fought on the gridiron—have seen the flush of his appreciation in victory, the sorrow he felt in defeat. We have heard him cheer on his comrades when the crowd was silent, and we have watched him outwit the enemy when they formed for a puzzling play.

This alone wins for him the highest tribute we can give. But he is more to us than this. He is the man whom the nation recognized as one of her foremost athletes. He is the man who thrilled us so often as we sat in the stadium. No one will forget the ability with which he led the 1929 football team, how he played the general so cleverly. How can we ever forget his own unselfish individual performance? A keen mind and a versatile athlete, he is the object of our greatest esteem.

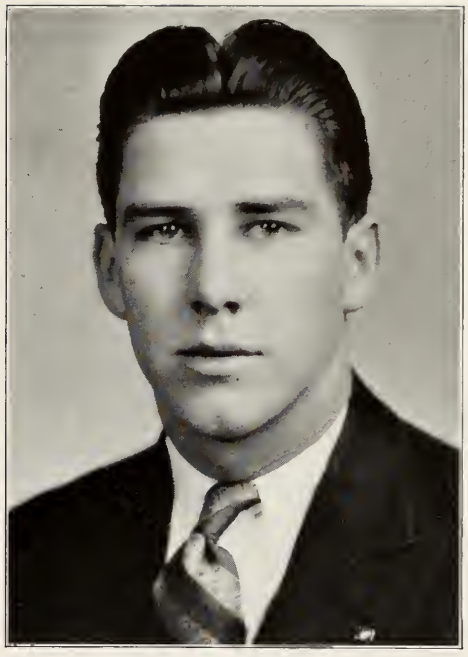
Mere words are empty praise for service such as his. But what we lack in words we possess in sentiment, and in the wealth of color which he has bestowed on our college days. Every university has its gridiron heroes who symbolize the spirit of its athletic achievement. But we will never admit that any were as great as Lloyd Brazil.

NEXT year Bill Storen will lead the fighting Titans in the pigskin battles. He has already proved his mettle as a member of the Varsity football team, and possesses that rare ability so necessary to a general of the gridiron.

His athletic attainment during the past year is well-known to those who witnessed any of the football games. For it was Bill Storen who filled so well the place left vacant when Tommy Connell graduated. The berth of fullback on a team is not a position which lends itself to colorful play. But it is one of the most difficult to fill, and one which needs a man of steel.

Storen has performed his task admirably. In those line plunges and hard drives through tackle so necessary in football strategy, Storen has been the central figure during the past football season. He has weight and speed, combined with a terrible power in hitting the line.

Who will forget that memorable victory, the Georgetown game? Certainly here Bill Storen proved himself to be worthy of his praise. For if it were not for the brilliant play of Storen and a few of his mates, that close contest might have ended much differently. Shall we say that he outdid himself under handicap? Or rather shall we say that in this game he promised us an athlete of great ability to captain the 1930 Varsity?



Captain-elect William Storen

We feel confident that the right man has been placed in trust of next year's gridiron fate, and know that the plucky Bill Storen will justify our confidence and the admiration which we now hold for his services.

DE PAUL

THE use of artificial lighting equipment by many important stadiums throughout the country is well past the stage of experiment, and in launching his football campaign last fall, the canny Dorais determined to take full advantage of his opportunity to introduce this novelty to Detroit gridiron fans. The attraction drew a record crowd to watch the Titans crush De Paul University, 27-7, in the season's opener.

Of course, the brand of football on tap at Dinan field is always the main drawing card, and the packed galleries which saw Captain Lloyd Brazil and his boys run riot against the Red and Blue found the locals in very satisfactory form for a season's opener. The Titans had beaten the same opponents in an opener a year ago and started as heavy favorites.

Dorais started his regulars for the first quarter. The novelty of nocturnal sport prevented scoring on either side, but the Detroit eleven began to function smoothly early in the second frame. Brazil was the first scorer of the season, taking the ball for a touchdown after an intensive drive had brought the pigskin from center field into scoring range. Snitz Ross added another tally a few moments later.

In the last quarter, Ross again succeeded in slipping off tackle for a touchdown, after Brazil's uncanny aerial attack had brought the ball to the nine-yard mark. Brown, substituting for Young at left end, was the recipient of another pass from the Flint flash toward the closing minutes of the game. He grounded it after a run of 25 yards. Parsaca's trained toe was good three times out of four, bringing the Titan score to a 27 total.

De Paul's scoring opportunity came as the result of a fumbled pass to a Detroit player. The "blue demons" recovered on the two-yard line, and it was carried across on the next play by Harrington, who also kicked goal.

Brazil, Ross, Parsaca and Storen were at their finest for Detroit, while "Skeets" Byers of De Paul gave the audience some tense moments. Johnson, De Paul fullback, also provided his share of excitement.

DAYTON

A WEEK before they invaded the motor city, the Dayton Flyers had uncorked their own season by a victory even more decisive than that turned in by the Dorais men when they slashed De Paul. A 33-0 score over Indiana Central marked Harry Baujan and his Ohioans as a formidable squad, and no argument was needed to convince the Detroit team that it was in for a strenuous evening.

Its unbroken string of victories was also a heavy burden for the squad to carry, and its weight meant an onerous mental handicap. But a week of intensive coaching had its effect. The team that had whipped De Paul was now even stronger. The line opened holes, the ends were down on the kicks, and time after time the Titan tackles and guards broke through to throw the Dayton backs for a loss. Polish and form told the old, old story, and the Ohio outfit which had given U. of D. such a scare a year before bowed to an 18-0 score.

A hair-rising sprint of 74 yards brought in the first score of the game. The nonpareil Ross shot off right tackle and ran the gamut for three-quarters of the field. Natural speed plus perfect blocking enabled Ross to score.

The Touchdown That Tied the Score in the Marquette Game

"Brazil to Young," that invincible aerial combination, was responsible for the locals second touchdown. The indomitable Lloyd passed, tossed, heaved, twirled and pitched the Titans to victory. Passing under artificial light is difficult at best, but the captain's magic never failed, and after advancing his mates to scoring territory, "Braz" signaled that the ball be snapped to him and he carried it across for a third tally.

Brazil was never more breath-taking than he was against Dayton. Ohio papers ran into columns showing why no team, Dayton or any other, could hope to win out against such a gridiron genius. The "Dayton Herald" announced in their banner "Brazil's Brilliant Play Beats Flyers."

Detroit made 10 first downs against six for Dayton, but she suffered heavily from penalties. Fifteen passes netted nine completions and 121 yards for the Titans.

TULSA

THE cluster of nocturnal battles which took the Red and White well into the heart of their 1929 grid schedule ended when the decisive score of 21-6 against Tulsa University conspicuously wound up the first third of the season at Dinan Field.

In winning their eighteenth successive gridiron clash, the University of Detroit, although playing on a slippery pasture, displayed a diversified and compelling attack.

Seasonal anti-climaxes are frequent in the football world and the "Golden Hurricane" was generally regarded as providing enough danger to be classed in the "anti-climax" division. The oilmen had already annexed three shut-out victories over strong western opponents.

The apprehensive attitude of spectators was strengthened when "Gloomy Gus" Henderson and his cow punchers took the scoring initiative. Benefiel, the hub of the Tulsa attack, took the ball on his own 38-yard line, crashed through tackle for the first breath-taking touchdown of a thrill-saturated game.

But the fears of astounded spectators were soon assuaged. Detroit rallied, massed her shock-troops, and settled down to prevent another occurrence of this disastrous sort. Soon after Brazil crashed over for Detroit's first six points, and Parsaca added the invaluable extra point. A series of rushes and passes netted another goal a few moments later when Brazil again found end territory and grounded the oval.

An exchange of punts brought Detroit's final touchdown. The ball was advanced by kicking to within 4 yards of the score-posts, and Young carried it across.

"Ring" Lardner, whose duties at center were sorely missed against Dayton and De Paul, returned to his line-up against the Oklahomans.

The memories of spectators will always retain vivid pictures of the playing of Benefiel, Ross and Brazil. Benefiel was indispensable to the "Golden Hurricane," and the sensational performances of Detroit's two backs was chiefly responsible for U. of D.'s eighteenth successive victory.

LOYOLA

IDEAL football weather, the prospect of a bitterly-fought contest, the advent of a strong highly touted southern grid machine, and the possibility that University of Detroit's unbroken record of 18 conquests might at length be shattered, brought a record crowd through the box office to watch Billy Storen and Lloyd Brazil fight it out with Junior Lopez, the ambidextrous quarter, in the first daylight grid session last fall.

Taking no chances in the early minutes, Dorais shrewdly inserted his regulars, who promptly proceeded to score as Brazil easily crashed through right tackle in an early play.

Action lagged until final minutes of the third stanza. Then Detroit's blonde gridiron giant raced around end for a second score after the opposition had been driven far back.

Although Ross is credited with Detroit's third goal, credit is due equally to Bill Storen, whose remarkable return of a Loyola punt placed his mates in a favorable scoring position. Vachon added two points to the total score with drop kicks, building the home total to 20.

Two Titans Demonstrate Business of Stopping Lopez

VanDeKeere Hess Loughrin

Loyola eked out a lone 6 points. With most of the Titan regulars on the bench, the Gulf City boys were playing an uphill battle when a lucky break placed the oval in the arms of Fannin, Loyola left end. Andy Maniere, who played impeccable football all afternoon, was wide by a matter of inches in a pass to Berg, and the ubiquitous Fannin scooped the oval into his arm and reeled off 67 yards for a solitary goal, making the score 20-6.

Brazil averaged seven yards on his plunges, but although few fans realized it, he was forced to retire because of his leg injury, an occurrence hitherto without precedent in the All-American's career.

Detroit's line behaved admirably; the first string wall was almost impenetrable. Anderson and Hart at tackle, O'Halloran and Buckman as guards, and Hackett and Long at the ends, all performed with a machine-like precision. Storen's activities at full back clinched this position for him permanently. Loyola provided the Titans with their 19th successive victory.

MARQUETTE

THE gods of chance often indulge in queer casts of their dice, and the football world was provided with an example of fate's capriciousness when the latter elected to bring University of Detroit's long string of triumphs to a close by allowing Marquette University to tie the invincible Titans, 6-6. Only one more conquest was needed to bring the magic chain of unbested football games to which the Red and White have been adding link after link for the last two and a half years to twenty, but this distinction was not in the books, for the Hilltoppers brought to Detroit's valiant gridiron warriors their very equals.

Perhaps, by releasing them from their spell, the "Golden Avalanche from the West" wrought better than they knew, for they removed the men of Dorais from the ranks of gods and restored them to gridiron normalcy, so that they were able to pursue their football course unburdened by this "undefeated" hoodoo.

Detroit's scant six points was placed on the score card by Brazil, but not until after Joe Sisk, fullback for the invaders, smashed off Detroit's right tackle from the 21-yard line and ran through the Titan secondary defense for a Marquette touchdown. Radicks kick was blocked by Hart for U. of D. who prevented his mates from suffering a 7-6 defeat.

A complicated succession of plays, including a fluke touchdown and many heartbreaking fumbles and referees' decisions, netted the Red and White their solitary score. Brazil, from his position a few feet from the goal, butchered his way across, but Vachon's place-kick was wide, and Detroit's chance for a twentieth victory passed from its grasp.

Brazil uncorked a barrage of passes in the later phases of the fray, but the Hilltoppers were successful in undermining this method of attack.

Although a powerful amplifier, placed so that fans might be appraised of the progress of the game, kept exhorting the Hilltoppers to quit stalling, the latter "lay low" after establishing their tie score, and the game ended as Corbett kicked to Ross in midfield.

MORGANTOWN

OUT on the banks of the Monongahela in the mountains of West Virginia, one smiling day last fall, the natives who believed that football began and ended with Morgantown University received an experience that still excites their drawling tongues. Whenever a group of villagers gather for a chat—whenever the learned professors of this cultured grove are at convention, whenever the fire in the village grocery beams forth its warmth upon the collected idlers on a winter's evening, they will stop to talk of that immemorial fall day when eleven northern huskies swept down upon their vaunted gridders and clashed, butchered, knifed and battled their southern foes to a 36-0 washout.

And they will tell strange tales of a roaring savage, blond warrior, elusive and electrifying, who spun out of the clutches of enemy tacklers; who punted, and passed, and ran and blocked and charged as though equipped with the shoes of Mercury.

And they will tell of another phantom,

A Mixup Way Down on the Banks of the Monongahela

whom they remember as "Snitz" Ross, a speed merchant the equal of which has never been seen upon the mountains.

But most frequently of all will they relate the amazing tale of how the air seemed alive with whizzing footballs, and how first Brazil, then Navin, then Ross, then Brazil again, kept romping through their papier mache defense, and how the score rolled skyward with incredible rapidity.

And they will nod their heads in awe and wonder as they recall a great lumbering giant in the center of the line, a tremendous hulk who pawed and toyed with their football best as though they were puppets.

In their ears will run a riotous rhythm, a rhythm taught them by the U. of D. musicians. It will signify football supremacy, invincible and unsurpassed. In their ears will throb the "March of the Titans" and they will ponder, "How can such things be?"

The Titans Stopping a Concerted Mountaineer Attack

MICHIGAN STATE

FOOTBALL enthusiasm swings its spotlight predominantly toward U. of D. each fall to the exclusion of almost every other gridiron controversy when Michigan State College is slated for the opposition. The two teams are keen rivals, and the annual pigskin clash is likely to develop a marked degree of sentiment.

Hostilities last fall were staged on foreign territory. Two thousand local fans made their exodus to shout for the Titans at East Lansing. There they saw Coach Crowley's eleven swamped by the largest margin in recent years. The score of 25-0 was a worse defeat than the agriculturists had suffered at the hands of the University of Michigan.

The exciting Lansing invasion and many of the impromptu scenes in downtown celebration that followed the game will linger in the memories of Titan followers for a long time.

The Red and White was never in more aggressive form than when it lined up last autumn before the agonomists. Michigan State had won five of its previous games and suffered the loss of three. She wanted above everything else, to prevent her traditional motor-city rival from tendering a third successive trimming, for U. of D. had been supreme in the two preceding onslaughts.

But the roaring thousands who gazed enrapt upon the velvety gridiron on this memorable afternoon soon realized that a State victory was not in the books. Their opponents were invincible.

Especially spectacular at this time was the work of Louie Berg, the sophomore flash. Had his period been longer, the rout of the capitol city lads might have been even more complete. Brazil played his usual versatile game, and the whole team seemed inspired to the height of football intelligence. When State threatened, as they did once or twice, the Titan line held like a wall of steel until finally the Aggies tired and gave up in despair. It was a gala occasion. Incidentally the games in the football rivalry with State are now all even, and next year's contest may well be called the rubber.

OREGON

IN the dance it's grace, on the bridge it's vigilance, and in the tight places, for the Titans at least, it's the triple pass. Detroit has won innumerable contests by resorting to this master strategy in difficult situations, and many a football struggle has been determined by the efficacy of the triple pass. But not so last fall, when the vengeful "Oregon Aggies" nosed out University of Detroit for the first time in nearly three years of unbeaten competition.

The opening sections of the game did not presage the fate in store for Detroit. Dorais' minions took the initiative from the start and with Brazil, Storen and Berg alternatively carrying the ball, they concluded a 62-yard march for a touchdown. Vachon made it seven by kicking goal.

Oregon retaliated in the second by scoring with her offensive. The "Nemesis of the East," also procured for itself an extra point when "Big Chief" Coquelle Thompson booted the oval accurately between the uprights.

With things evenly balanced at seven all and the game only half over, Oregon and Detroit settled down to a bitter duel.

Not the Spirit of Spring, but Young Stopping a Pass

Bohland Wiese I. Duggan

The Titans' defeat came in the third quarter, and it came directly as the result of a triple pass which went awry on the 20-yard line. The pass went to Storen, fullback, and thence to Hackett. From this point it was designed to reach the hands of Lloyd Brazil.

In the course of the play, however, McKalip, the rangy Oregon star, leapt into the air and was away with the ball before the astonished Detroit players could intervene. His 20-yard spurt to the goal was good and proved to be the deciding score of the game.

The Red and White rallied desperately. It tried rushing and passing. It attempted end plays and line plays, but all were repulsed by the cautious Oregonites. A fumble or intercepted pass would have possibly reversed the situation but Coach Paul Schissler's boys were not distributing any such entertainment.

Brazil played his last brilliant game with Oregon. Injuries were to prevent his participation in the season's final.

GEORGETOWN

MINGLED emotions swelled the hearts of loyal Titan supporters as the team which had so gloriously represented them for almost three seasons of matchless football gathered before the invading Hilltoppers for the last valiant gridiron engagement of their careers. As if in answer to the mourning spectators, the Titans staged one of their greatest football classics of all time.

Lloyd Brazil was not in the final line-up. An injured leg, despite the roars of the stands, kept Lloyd on the players' bench. In his absence, Robert Parsaca and Herman Young bore the burden of trouncing the Hilltoppers. Young blocked a Georgetown kick for the first touchdown, while Parsaca recovered a Georgetown fumble and galloped 42 yards for Detroit's other score. "Rocky's" gifted toe booted over both extra points.

Both of the Easterner's touchdowns were recorded in the second quarter. Hudak plucked the pigskin out of the air and tore half the field for one of the scores, and the other was the result of a fumble. The high wind literally blew the ball for a Georgetown tally when it was fumbled.

U. of D. entered the second half much in the manner it did a year ago. She had not yet scored while thirteen units were adorning the Georgetown scoreboard. The boys came back in the second half, however, just as they had in 1928, and emerged from the rear with a brand of football marked by passing, line smashing, trick plays, and every deceptive device in their bag of tricks.

Spectators who shivered and groaned the two hours of the Hilltoppers affair will remember the game for more reasons than one. It was so bitterly cold that many hardy patrons were forced to retire, and a bitter wind which swept the field not only made an aerial attack extremely hazardous but reduced the occupants of the grandstand to only the most indomitable spectators.

The icy pencil of Jack Frost paused long enough to paint the all-important score which spelled another and final victory for a great, beloved Titan Team, 14-13.

Billy Storen Retrieving Lost Yardage Against Georgetown

RESUME OF THE SEASON

By SAM GREENE

UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT has every right to "point with pride" to the achievements of its football team of 1929, and there is no particular reason for "viewing with alarm" the prospects of 1930.

Despite the loss of Lloyd Brazil, Merrill Lardner, Herman Young, Lester Vachon and others responsible for Titan success in the last three years, Coach Charles E. Dorais and his staff can be counted upon to present an aggressive, well-balanced team in September. Dorais was encouraged by the sight of more than 100 candidates at spring practice and from this record group he hopes to pick a squad capable of winning a majority of its games.

HERMAN YOUNG

It would be asking too much of the football fates to provide another Brazil. His individual brilliancy may not be replaced in Titan ranks for years, but that is no sign for the university's gridiron hopes to sag. The Titans showed in the closing contest of the 1930 schedule, with Georgetown, that they could win even with Brazil on the sidelines. They were no one-man team then and they intend to prove it anew in the coming autumn.

MERRILL LARDNER

The fine work done by the University of Detroit coaches and players last fall is readily evident from the record. Much lies beyond the figures, of course, but the figures are tribute enough. Nine games were played, of which seven were won. There was a tie with Marquette University and a defeat—the first since October, 1927—by Oregon State College.

Detroit's most impressive victory was scored against West Virginia when they ran up a 36 to 0 count on the Mountaineers. The Detroit team that day was at its peak. Its plays clicked with precision. The line opened holes and the backs dashed through them for long gains.

Many Titan supporters were disappointed that the team did not complete its second season without defeat. They can take solace in that ancient adage of sport: "They can't win 'em all." Every winning streak must end and the University of Detroit team, with sixteen victories, one tie and one defeat to its credit, is to be heartily congratulated upon keeping its own in motion so long. Perhaps another and even more successful one can be begun next fall.

FRESHMEN FOOTBALL

THE most strenuous period in a football player's struggle for collegiate gridiron glory is his year on the Freshman squad. Throughout a long season, he is used to condition the varsity team. He helps to furnish the representatives of the university with scrimmage practice and he is forced to learn the plays of the opposing elevens of the varsity so that these players may become better acquainted with their rivals' methods of play. Not only this, but he is compelled to forget one system in order to assimilate the plays of the next team.

A short schedule of games is arranged for the yearling squad but the frosh play under so many handicaps that success in these frays is nearly always slight. Their offensive system is unorganized and composed of the better plays of each varsity opponent, and their best hope for victory rests in their defensive strength developed in long and grueling scrimmages with the first-teamers.

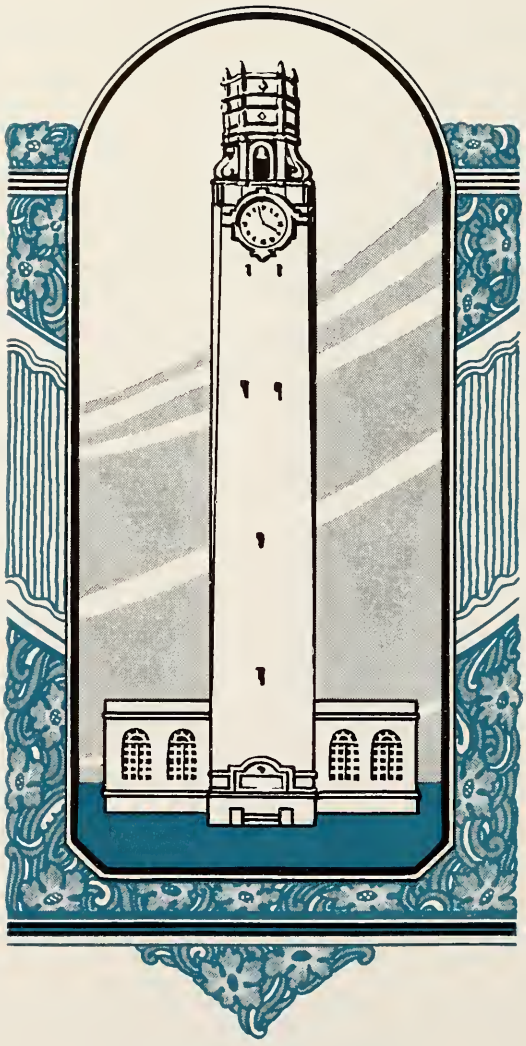
Port Huron Junior furnished the opposition for the yearling season opener. It was the brilliant aerial attack of the 1933 team that caused the final score to read 27 to 2 in their favor. Ray Cogan did most of the throwing with Wrathel and Cicotte alternating at the receiving end of his passes. The manner in which the frosh overwhelmingly triumphed over the "Junies" gave great promise of a successful season.

The next game evened the count of wins and losses when Fredericks' charges journeyed to Ypsilanti only to be given an 8 to 0 defeat by the Michigan State Normal Frosh. This game was played in a steady downpour that made passing impossible because of the slippery ball.

Jerry Flannery, a former U. of D. Freshman football mentor, brought his strong Ferris Institute eleven to Detroit for the third game on our yearling squad's schedule. The Titan freshies led throughout the game and saw an apparently sure victory seized from their grasp when a Ferris back scored a sensational touchdown with hardly two minutes remaining to play after a run of 85 yards. This brought the score to 13-13, the final count.

The final game of the season was played at East Lansing against the Michigan State College Frosh. This battle ended with the Staters in the lead by a lopsided score of 25 to 0.

After this final game the members of the squad were honored at a dinner.



Basketball

Captain Lloyd Brazil

WITH a new coach and a somewhat new system of play, the basketball organization fought this year through one of its hardest schedules. It succeeded in winning a bare majority of its games, but its success cannot be measured in victories or losses. For this year was a season of building a basketball team, and this process cannot take into account merely to win.

Two veterans of university basketball were found in Lloyd Brazil and Cy Aaron, and around this nucleus Coach Conroy sought to establish a net aggregation of strength. Whether he succeeded is not written in the records of the year, but can only be proven in the future.

Although not as brilliant as he appeared on the gridiron, Brazil proved an able captain and a steady player on the court. His generalship of the basketball squad is worthy of every commendation, and is a tribute to the versatility of this blonde athlete.

Brazil leaves the helm of the basketball squad to Cy Aaron, a brilliant net artist and a pioneer in the university's basketball ventures. Aaron's sensational play has been a feature of the Titan court performances, and his knowledge of the game, together with a distinct ability for generalship, should augur well for the management of next year's net contests. Next year should see the peak of his individual performance, and with the capable help which he seems sure of having in the players developed this season, the Titan basketball records of 1931 should show a distinct improvement. To the retiring captain the university extends its congratulations—in the captain-elect it places the charge of its future aspirations.

ASSUMPTION

ASSUMPTION College of Sandwich were the opening foes for Coach Conroy's basketeers of 1930. The game, considered a "warming up" contest, proved to be just the reverse. The Titans were given a blow in the face when Assumption edged out a 19-18 victory.

The chief alibi-cookers of the university got busy after the game and found out that one of the reasons for the defeat was the fact that it was played away from home—a thing that should never have been done in an opener. They also discovered that the Titan aggregation was composed largely of new material. Their crowning effort was the declaration that the Titan netmen were being schooled in a new type of play by Coach Conroy.

Detroit's performance was not nearly as bad as it seems. Conroy's men played a hard game and kept in the lead until the fourth quarter before they began to tire. After missing five free tosses in a row their defense sagged, while the Canadians rallied and took a position in the van.

ASSUMPTION

THE excellence of Assumption's net performance was effectively proven when they added another Titan defeat to run their string of victories up to seven. The contest was held in the Jefferson avenue gymnasium.

It proved a thrilling contest throughout, both teams playing a charging offensive game. Aaron and Aitchinson starred in the fray and amassed 23 of Detroit's tallies between them.

But it wasn't in the books for Detroit to win. When the final gun sounded there happened to be a tie, and even an overtime period decided in favor of the Canadians by a margin of only one basket.

The score tells of a hard-fought game. Assumption was very fortunate in being able to retain their lead, and in as close a game as this it is only the breaks that turn the fortunes of a team one way to victory or the other to defeat. Records are often untrustworthy accountants, and tell nothing of hard playing or sincere effort.

OLIVET

OLIVET College was the first victim of the Titans during the 1930 season. The contest was held in the Light Guard Armory and Detroit accomplished an easy victory.

Standing out in the evening's performance was the brilliant work of Ed Gracey, sophomore forward. In his first year of varsity basketball Gracey has proven himself an artist of rare ability on the court. His work alone in this fray made it really worth the witnessing. Neither team showed a brilliant form. Gracey scored 12 of Detroit's tallies alone and led the offensive all the way.

But, after all, it was Detroit's first victory, and from a student's standpoint that is surely enough to commend it. Against a better team it is doubtful whether it would have been a victory, but it's a win in the books and Ed Gracey earned his berth as a regular for keeps.

ST. JOHNS

THE Titans displayed a greatly improved brand of basketball in their fourth game of the season. St. Johns University of Toledo, Ohio, fell before the speed of their attack and were seldom able to penetrate an almost iron defense.

The victory over St. Johns placed the Titans' victories even with their defeats. Every play in this contest "clicked." The Detroit defense performed almost perfectly and the team-work on both attack and defense was unusual.

At the half Detroit held a 17-5 margin over the Toledo cagers. Each man on the squad performed in stellar fashion, with Gracey again leading the attack with his spectacular basket play. Gracey shot seven baskets for a total of 14 tallies.

Lack of ability to take advantage of foul shots accounts for the fact that in four games Conroy's men made only 17 free throws out of 45 attempts. And free throws are often the deciding factors.

MICHIGAN STATE

THE highly touted Spartans who confidently entertained the men of Conroy at Lansing were given quite a shock when they met a Titan defense that was thoroughly unexpected.

The Titans appeared on the floor as the under-dogs before a crowd of 3,500 fans. The main query of the audience seemed to be, "Will State double or treble the score of their opponents?"

The Red and White basketeers realized the quality of the team they were facing, and played a waiting game and fought off the Spartan attack repeatedly. They were not, however, able to penetrate State's territory enough to run up many tallies on their own account and succumbed to defeat by a margin of three baskets.

With, perhaps, a trifle more confidence the Titan's part of the score might have been considerably in excess of what it proved to be, but as it was the final gun announced a 26-20 victory for the Lansing hosts.

DAYTON

FOR the first time in the history of their athletic relations with the university, Dayton emerged a victor in the Titan's sixth basketball encounter. It was the fourth defeat of the season for Detroit and the first victory for the Flyers during the entire four-year athletic relationship.

Dayton found itself eight markers in the lead when the game ended. At the end of the first half the Conroymen were behind 11-4, and had only succeeded in netting one basket during the first two periods.

In the second half the Titans attempted a rally which resulted in amassing nine points to even the score. But their hopes were blasted when Lensch, star forward for the Ohioans, pierced the Titan defense for three goals in quick succession.

From then on the men of Conroy were unable to catch the flying heels of the Daytonians, and the game ended with Dayton leading 28-20.

ALBION

STUNG by two defeats in a row after they had seemingly hit their winning stride, the Titan cagers made a determined drive for victory against Albion College and defeated them by the narrow margin of 26-24.

The achievement was a remarkable one. The Presbyterians from Albion, Michigan, were M. I. A. A. champions and succeeded in placing two men on the All-Star team.

In the Albion fray Conroy's proteges displayed a complete reversal of form. The moody team, for such a title it seems to deserve, won this contest only through their ability to make good their free throws. Heretofore they had been extremely reticent about taking advantage of the charity tallies.

The Titans scored 10 out of 16 attempts from the free lane. The high scorer of the game was Ed Chapp, junior, playing at center. He accounted for 10 of Detroit's markers.

DE PAUL

IT was back to the defeat column for the Titans in their first game of the Illinois trip. De Paul University of Chicago reaped a partial revenge for their defeat on the gridiron in the fall by achieving a victory over the Red and White to the tune of 21-17.

De Paul paid close attention to its guarding in the first half and succeeded in holding the ambitious Titans to four tallies. Detroit had not succeeded in collecting a single field goal, while the Chicagoans had romped over the floor for 12 points.

In the second half the Titans plucked up a bit and were able to score 13 more points, but it was not enough to down the romping De Paulians who with the final gun had amassed 21 tallies.

The De Paul cagers divided scoring honors quite evenly, but on Detroit's side of the ledger Gracey stood out for basket-shooting.

LOYOLA

IN the second game of their western invasion, the Titan net artists lost to the renowned Loyola basketeers by the margin of one basket. It was a contest marked in the later periods by superior defensive play on both sides, and a two-counter lead held by the Loyolans could not be broken.

The Lions centered their attack around the stellar Charlie Murphy whose fame has few rivals on the national court. Ed Gracey and Kenneth Fournier won the playing honors for Detroit, scoring seven points between them.

Experience and a winning form were the factors contributing to Loyola's success. Two different styles of play were used, and each team solved the other's style resulting in an almost basketless last quarter.

It was a foul that decided the game. Charlie Murphy was fouled in the act of shooting and was allowed the basket as well as two free throws. Another free throw shortly afterward, and the Detroit lead of 10-7 had been wiped away.

MARQUETTE

IN the Hilltopper's gymnasium at Milwaukee the Titan cagers fell before a golden avalanche that would not be denied a victory over their traditional rivals. Sports enthusiasts declared the 30-21 defeat another evidence of the mystic "jinx" that Marquette harbors for Titan athletes.

In the first half by brilliant play and accurate shooting the Hilltoppers ran up a lead of 12 points over the Red and White. It was a brave effort on the part of the Titans, featured by stellar basketball on the part of Pearson and Gracey, that enabled the Titans to close this gap and even the score in the third quarter.

A Hilltopper rally in the fourth ended Detroit's hopes, however, and a lead was built up that proved too difficult to overcome or even approach.

The defects of the Titan basketeers were revealed plainly in this contest. That they did not reach their form until their opponents had piled up a formidable lead was the chief cause of this defeat.

ALBION

ALTHOUGH the second game of the Albion series was not as close as the result of the first contest it was, nevertheless, equally as well-played. The Titans, having barely managed to eke out a 26-24 verdict in the opening game of the series, were on edge for the final fray, and as a result, they took the lead at the start of the game and held it all the way.

Again the Titan scoring was rather evenly divided, with Gracey leading the way with 8 points, followed by Brazil with seven and Butcher with six. The Titans followed the instructions given them by Coach Conroy, and played a strictly defensive game, only shooting for the basket when an opening presented itself. Albion was forced to play for the ball and the Titans were given many scoring chances on account of this.

Gray was the high-point man of the game, scoring five baskets and three free throws for a total of 13 points. Brazil and Aaron played a wonderful game.

MICHIGAN STATE

THEIR lack of accuracy at the foul stripe probably cost the Titan basketeers their tilt with the Michigan State quintet, the Spartans eking out a 21-18 victory.

But for missing three successive fouls in the last two minutes of play, the locals might have been able to tie the score and force the game into an overtime. State failed to show its best brand of cagery and had they not put Lloyd Brazil and his mates in a trance by annexing a 6-1 lead early in the contest, the outcome might have assumed a different aspect.

The U. of D. attack was led by Aaron, at guard. He scored two field goals and five charity tosses. Brazil and Pearson followed with two baskets apiece.

State's highly reputed zone defense was discarded in this affair, the Green and White employing the man-to-man type of defense. The Spartans left-handed loop wizard, Haga, scored six points for his team. Roger Grove returned to form and got second high scoring honors for State.

MARQUETTE

CASES of prostration and nervous collapse were intimated at the Armory last winter among the spectators who witnessed the harrowing court duel between Marquette and U. of D.

As the game was about to close, Marquette, which had trounced the Red and White earlier in the season, was again leading, 21-19. A free throw by Cy Aaron reduced the margin to one point, and then Brazil, with twenty seconds to play, sank another perfect birdie and forced the affair into overtime periods.

At the end of three extra stanzas the Titans finally emerged, 30-21.

The contest was featured by an array of long shots; Brazil, Aaron, Butcher, Gracey, Kyniasty and others whipping them in from all corners of the floor. O'Donnell, Marquette's mainstay and high point man, performed with his usual brilliancy, but was held to a lone field goal, due to Brazil's fine guarding.

ADRIAN

IN a game that featured a shower of baskets the Titan netmen crushed Adrian on her home court with a score of 42-32. It was Adrian's first defeat at home for five seasons.

Detroit displayed its best offensive of the year and both teams exhibited unusual scoring combinations.

Adrian's downfall can be attributed to the Titan maneuvers in the second half when they drew out the opposing defense and rushed the basket. A fast passing and dribbling play coupled with accurate shooting characterized the Detroit offensive in this game.

Gracey was the outstanding star of the contest scoring 13 points. Butcher, Brazil and Aaron turned in fine performances both on offense and defense.

The Adrian game evidenced a new Titan cage organization, one of finish and excellence. The indeterminate starts of early games were gone and our netmen took the offensive at the start and slashed their way to the basket.

ST. JOHNS

THE Titans added another victory to their ever-growing string when they defeated St. Johns College, 40-15, in the second game of a home and home series.

Coach Lou Conroy substituted freely in this contest, as the opposition was not very strong and it gave him an opportunity to gauge the ability of his substitutes. As a result, the scoring was evenly divided among ten of the twelve men who got into the fray. With the exception of Eddie Gracey, who accounted for thirteen points, no outstanding star could be named. Gracey played longer than the rest of the team, and consequently managed to gather four field goals and five charity tosses. Butcher and Aaron followed.

The St. Johns quintet, although behind from the start, fought desperately all the way. Costello, center for the Ohioans, garnered three field goals and one free throw.

LOYOLA

ALL the pre-game dope which had been smeared about here and there and which picked U. of D. as a set up for Loyola of Chicago was quite unexpectedly and conclusively refuted when Coach Lou Conroy's quintet smothered Len Sachs' boys by a 23-20 score.

The Windy City loopers were prepared to meet a strong defensive outfit here. They remembered the first game of the series, which wound up with a 12-10 score, Loyola high.

Detroit altered her strategy to include a definite offensive attack along with her usual defensive tactics. Both halves were at a speedy pace.

Detroit had a decided disadvantage in that her opponents took away every tip-off from center. There was no Titan capable of out - jumping the Chicago pivot man, Charley Murphy, who was the main cog in the invaders' offense. Many of the 2500 fans who packed the Armory were out to see this stellar All-American perform.

ST. XAVIER

IN the first contest of a home and home agreement St. Xavier College of Cincinnati trimmed the smiting Titans neatly to the tune of 23-18. It was another defeat in the see-saw fortunes of a newly-built basketball organization, another evidence of the moodiness of the Titan basketeers who at one time seemed almost invincible and at another seemed puny and ineffective.

Only one of the Titan warriors earned more than one basket, Les Butcher sank two of his shots. Aaron and Fournier both recorded goose-eggs for the evening's performance. The St. Xavier defense was performing excellently, and the Detroit wall was not quite strong enough to hold the battering rams from Cincinnati.

The biggest gun of St. Xavier's attack was the redoubtable Sack, who in forward position made six baskets and two free throws. To Sack goes the greater share of credit for St. Xavier's victory. Butcher starred for the Titans.

ADRIAN

FANS watched the curtain begin its descent on Lloyd Brazil's phenomenal collegiate athletic career when he appeared before the home audiences for the last time against Adrian College. Lloyd's last efforts before a friendly crowd were gratifying to spectators, who packed the Jefferson gym to capacity to watch their captain sink eight of the thirty-seven points which beat Adrian by seven points.

Brazil shone brightly for the winners, but the real star of the evening was undoubtedly John Kyniasty, forward, who split honors with his stellar team mate. Kyniasty, a midget, proved himself the fastest man on the Detroit squad and played a heady game.

Detroit, characteristically, got off to a poor start, but found its pace in later stages of the game and piled up basket after basket. Its defensive apparatus should have proved sufficiently bewildering to Adrians' cohorts to keep the latter's score in the cellar.

DAYTON

CONROY'S lads wreaked vengeance on the Flyers in the second fray with Dayton. For the first five minutes, however, it looked as if the Ohioan's victory was about to be repeated. They scored six points immediately after the tip-off.

Then Detroit began moving and displayed a well-balanced team capable of hitting the net regularly. At half time they were leading the Flyers 15-6.

Les Butcher proved the focal point of the Titan rally. By excellent team work and brilliant basket shooting he led Detroit to a margin that was never overcome. Not once in the remainder of the game did Dayton threaten the Titan lead. Cy Aaron and Brazil performed stellar work, and the entire team contributed to the victory with efficient team co-operation.

Dayton's leading threat was held scoreless by Brazil who guarded him at the expense of his own glory.

ST. XAVIER

DETERMINED on a vengeful policy toward those who had previously defeated them, the Titans retaliated St. Xavier's earlier victory by presenting them with a 36-24 defeat. In this game the Titans proved that the Armory contest loss was due only to inexperience.

At the half Detroit was in the van, the score being 18-6. St. Xavier was held to a lone field goal during this period. In the meantime every Titan starter had scored at least one goal for his team, with Aaron leading the attack with five points to his credit.

The half-time margin proved too great for Xavier to menace, and though they fought at an even pace with the Titans for the rest of the way they could never overcome Detroit's advantage. Each team scored 18 tallies in the last half.

The Titans flashed their best form in this game, each man on the team sinking a proportionate share of baskets.

BLISS COLLEGE

THE Titans closed their 1930 season with a defeat at the hands of Bliss College. They were not overwhelmed but they lacked the punch that characterized their two previous contests. Some felt that a string of victories had caused over-confidence, others that the Titans were tired out. But the fact remains that Conroy's men were not up to par with their previous performance.

In the second half Bliss gathered three field goals in quick succession, and the Titans were never able to catch up. A good defensive team, the tired Titans let it sag and did not possess a strong enough offense to fill the gap.

The Titans would have fared worse than they did had it not been for Butcher who kept Detroit in the running during the entire second half.

The stellar playing of Woodward of the Blissmen accounted for their victory. He scored nearly half of his team's tallies, and led their attack during the whole game.

RESUME

THE team that "comes back" is the team that receives the plaudits of the crowd. That the 1929-30 squad of University of Detroit varsity netmen formed a winning combination would be a pleasant story to tell. Their season presented no noteworthy achievements that will be material for stories in the future. But the 1929-30 team did "come back."

The early portion of the schedule was as discouraging as it was disastrous. Four games were won in the first twelve contests carded for the Red and White tossers. And none of the vanquished fives were representative teams of major opponents.

With the ending of the first half of the schedule, the Titans' manner of playing changed completely. No longer were doggedly defensive tactics employed to avert another apparently certain defeat. Rather the team played a confident game of offensive basketball that fairly astonished their opponents who believed the Titans an easy "spot" on their schedule. The change brought the desired result for the charges of Conroy won seven of their last nine games and succeeded in defeating the championship Loyola University team led by Charley Murphy, All-American center.

TRACK

HAVING completed its third year of intercollegiate competition on track and field, the University of Detroit looks forward to the future for greater successes in this line of endeavor.

Seventy-five candidates answered "Dad's" call for material early in January, among them but four veterans from the previous season, John Labadie, Ed Chapp, Duke Kiefer, and Archie Yeager. These men made up the 2-mile relay team that had set records during two years of competition, first as freshmen, then as varsity regulars.

To this quartet has been added the names of many potential stars: Battat, Carey, Green, Kull, Mohardt, O'Neill, Hackett and Straiger.

The indoor practices this year were held on the indoor boards at Northwestern and Central high schools while the outdoor warm-ups were taken during the month of April on the Central High quarter-mile oval. The athletic association at the University of Detroit wishes to express their thanks and gratitude to the authorities at Northwestern and Central high schools for the use of their tracks.

The first meet entered by the varsity tracksters was the most important tourney to be held in Detroit during the last fifteen years, namely the annual National A. A. U. Track and Field Championship meet at the Olympia on February 22. Allowing for inexperience and the fact that the entire squad was not fully conditioned as yet, the Titan speedsters did fairly well. In the 1,000-yard run, Yeager led the field for a few hundred yards but was overtaken on the last lap by Vanzke, of the Finnish-American A. C., and was forced to accept a second, finishing 15 yards behind the winner. Kiefer went to the finals of the 600-yard run, and then proceeded to run a beautiful race to place third to Roll, of the Newark A. C., and Bloor, of Ohio State.

A week later, March 1, the varsity speedsters journeyed to East Lansing to take part in the Michigan State College tenth annual indoor track carnival. They emerged with seconds in the 300-yard dash and the 2-mile relay. Kiefer ran for time in the 300-yard dash and when the seconds were compared he placed second to Lewis, of City College. In the most thrilling event of the evening, the 2-mile relay, the crack Michigan State Normal quartet, nosed out Battat, Chapp, Kiefer and Yeager, and, as a result, broke the old meet record by fully six seconds.

The fourth annual Central Intercollegiate track and field meet held March 7, was the next scene of activity. Three men competed for the University of Detroit, but none placed.

The competition was very keen and many new meet records were set. The preliminaries were held on Friday and Yeager won his heat of the 880-yard run to qualify for the finals, while Kiefer was barely nosed out for a qualification place. In the meet on March 8 Yeager again led the field in the half-mile run but was beat out in the final by 50 yards. He failed to place because at the start he drew a far-away position and used up all of his energy to get out in front. Labadie ran the mile but did not place in anything.

The Illinois Relays were next. Archie Yeager and John Labadie represented the University of Detroit in the 1,000 and 1,500 meters respectively. At Champaign, Illinois, on March 15, Yeager distinguished himself by placing third in the 1,000-yard run. On the merits of his work in this meet Yeager can be accorded the high rate of third in the 1,000-yard run among intercollegiate track athletics. Martin, of Purdue, won this event when he set a new carnival record in the time of 2:16 4-10. Yeager was nosed out for a second place when Hinshaw, of Kansas, finished the race like a 50-yard dash man to beat out the Titan runner by barely five feet.

The fourth annual Michigan indoor track and field championships on March 22 at Central High School bid "adieu" to the indoor season for the U. of D. speedsters. Coach Butler entered the largest number of Titan thinclads since the introduction of track at this institution and they responded by amassing the greatest amount of points ever made by a U. of D. track team. Out of the sixteen Titan entries six either won or placed in their respective events to garner 18 points. One Titan athlete divided individual meet honors with Beatty, of Ypsilanti. Yeager had his own way in winning the 1,000-yard run in 2:29 1-5. He also tied for first in the 600-yard run. The speedsters ran for time in this event and Yeager and Beatty ran a dead heat of 1:20 2-5. Kiefer gained a fourth in the 600-yard run while Carey ran the 300-yard dash in 36 seconds flat to place third. In the field events Kull placed third in the 30-yard low hurdles. The remaining points were made by the freshmen.

The 1929 two-mile relay team that startled the mid-west with their flashy running was forced to contend with a jinx this season when two of its members, Kiefer and Chapp, were forced out of competition for the time being. The former, through an unfortunate case of ineligibility, while Chapp has never been the same since an injury to his foot. As a result the Red and White runners were not able to participate in the Kansas Relays on April 19. So the Titan speedsters swung into action on the outdoor cinder paths for the first time this year in the Drake Relays on April 25-26.

The remaining outdoor track and field championships in which the school was represented were the Ohio Relays on May 3, the Albion College dual meet on May 10, the State Intercollegiate at E. Lansing on May 16-17, and the Central Intercollegiate at Milwaukee on May 30. In June "Dad" took a squad of picked runners to the National Intercollegiate in Chicago.

FRESHMAN TRACK

THE 1930 Freshman track squad, the third University of Detroit yearling team, has just completed the most successful season ever enjoyed by a group of thinclads running for this University.

The call for freshman track candidates was answered by thirty aspirants. Duke Kiefer, the varsity middle distance man, was appointed by Coach Butler to take charge of the yearlings. The group included fourteen members with high school experience.

In the National A. A. U. meet held at the Olympia on February 22, Wright ran the 1,000 yards and placed fifth, a very creditable showing for a freshman. Mike Mohardt and Tom Burke ran the 300 and 600 yards respectively and made fine showings.

In the Michigan State relay carnival, a two-mile relay composed of Toppin, Burke, Mohardt and Wright finished third in the special freshman event.

The Michigan A. A. U. meet at Central High school on March 22, marked the third and final indoor meet for the yearlings. Burke, Mohardt, Metras, Costigan, Toppin and Wright composed the list of entries. Metras earned a third in the sixteen pound shot put with a throw of 40 feet, 5 inches, while Wright gave Yeager a big scare in the 1,000-yard run when he placed second.

Mike Mohardt ran the 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes while attending Emerson High of Gary, Indiana. "Dad" is building Mike up into a fast 880 man and also expects to use him in the 440.

Stan Wright, former track captain of Southwestern High, came to the U. of D. with the best high school reputation of any of the candidates. Lane and Lentine, former milers from U. of D. High, loom as promising material for future varsities along with D'Amour of Southeastern; Jarwarski, of Hamtramck; Hawkins of Northwestern; and Shirmer of Southwestern.

The Frosh participated in the two dual meets with Highland Park Junior College on May 15 and 20, and a dual meet with Michigan State. Coach Butler also sent a medley relay to the Central Intercollegiate meet at Milwaukee on May 30, and the two-mile quartet to the State Intercollegiate at Michigan State on May 16-17.

All in all the Freshmen enjoyed a good season and show much promise; all that is expected of a yearling team.

VARSITY HOCKEY

OF the thirty men reporting when the initial call for hockey was issued, only three veterans from the 1929 sextet were available, Howard, Shubnell and Doyle. The aspirants included Douglas, Simonich, and Moenart, of the 1929 freshman team. Scotty Howard was chosen to captain the squad.

Duke Keifer acted as manager for the squad, it being his particular business to see to it that his team was supplied with skates, sticks, gloves and what not at all practices and games.

This year's hockey team was fortunate in having two forward lines of almost equal ability. The University of Detroit's first string sextet consisted of Doyle, goal; Captain Howard and Shubnell, defense; LaBreque, center; Sullivan and Sampson, wings. The reserve forward line included Moenert, center; Douglas and Erickson, wings. Simonich alternated on the defense as well as taking a turn on the forward line.

With only three days of practice the Titan icemen engaged the more experienced Michigan State sextet on January 23, and sent them back to Lansing with a 2-1 defeat. The victory for the Detroit puck team marked the initial hockey win for a U. of D. squad in the history of the school. Moenart won the game in the final 70 seconds of play when his carefully aimed long shot eluded the Spartan goalie and dropped through the net for the deciding goal. Sullivan scored the initial Titan point. The U. of D. completely outplayed the Lansing sextet in defense and in stick handling but were outshone by their rivals in the skating department.

The Detroit pucksters met the Staters in a return game at East Lansing on February 6 and were defeated in a contest played in the rain on the mammoth Michigan State rink. The final score was 2-0.

The University of Detroit hockey team played many practice games during the eight weeks of their season. Scrimmages were held with Parke Davis & Co., U. of D. High and the Night Commerce and Finance school.

Attempts were made to schedule other teams but old man winter could not see it that way, so the plans were broken up, due to lack of ice and good cold weather.

The players were coached in the art of stick handling by Coach Arthur "Bud" Boeringer, who had a quite a reputation as a hockeyist while attending Notre Dame.

GOLF

THAT the highly successful record of the 1929 golf season would be equaled by the 1930 University of Detroit golf team was hardly expected when Coach Eddie Kirk published his roster of candidates. Only one member of the championship links aggregation of last year, Captain Billy Breault, had escaped elimination from the ranks of the university's golf team through graduation.

There was no hope for the sensational match to emulate the Georgetown conflict of '29. Followers of the team did not dare to predict another upset of the nature of the one handed Maurice McCarthy of the Washington school by our No. 1 man, Francis Ryan. There was even whispered apprehensions that the schedule of matches arranged by Manager Donald F. Carney would be too difficult for the inexperienced team to cope with effectively.

However, as the old saying has it, there are always new men ready to take the places of those who step from the ranks. No sooner had Coach Kirk, a Sophomore student in the College of Arts and Science and assistant professional at the Dearborn Country Club, announced try-outs when innumerable students joined the squad.

Try-outs were staged at the Bob-o-Link Course and the scores made on a day that called for heavy overcoats and fur-lined gloves rather than for par-breaking golf, gave the first insight as to the possibilities of the new men.

Their mettle was further shown in the first match against St. Johns' University of Toledo, which resulted in a Titan victory by the score of 12½ to 5½. The team that played in this match was composed of Captain Breault, George Smith, Jack Mooney and Charles Marion. These men won one foursome and three individual matches.

After this match, the team settled down to regular competition. The Detroit Golf Club was met on May 11 in a special match and the following schools all were met before the season was declared closed: Notre Dame, University of Michigan, State College, St. Johns of Toledo and Western State Teachers' College.

Started but a few years ago the University of Detroit golf team has enjoyed steady progress marked by an ever-growing number of victories. While rated as a minor sport it closely rivals other campus sports in popularity. Students to a greater extent than ever are beginning fully to appreciate its many advantages.

CO-ED BASKET BALL

THOUGH not having a fair string of victories to their credit the co-eds, nevertheless, were pleased with the results of their second year of basket ball.

The discouraging problem of locating a convenient gym all but dashed the hopes and ambitions of the athletic enthusiasts. A satisfactory solution was finally attained at the opening of the second semester, when a change in schedules throughout the city made it possible to get the Burton School gym at Peterboro and Cass.

Many recruits, the majority of whom had never played on a court and had only a meager knowledge of the rules of the game, turned out for the opening practice. This was the problem with which the coach, Ray Navin, had to cope in organizing his team.

The first game was scheduled with the Gesu girls for Sunday, February 16th, in the Gesu gym. This encounter was lost in an exciting scurry, when the co-eds were outplayed in the first half and the Gesu team kept the lead to the end, winning by a score of 19-9. The co-eds put up a stiff fight, but in this game the opponents were superior. A return game was played the following Thursday evening in the Burton gym.

The unexpected defeat of the first game was better than a tirade from the coach or a plea from the captain. With the fast, skillful playing of its captain, Monica Kondratovicz, and her forward, "Mickey" Sullivan, the points began to mount up, and at the end of the first half, the co-eds were leading. Despite the advantage of height and weight of the opponents as well as their quick offensive playing, the co-eds kept the lead and the game ended 17-7 in favor of the co-eds. This was the Gesu girls' first defeat of the season.

The third game was played with St. Ambrose and it is to the credit of the co-eds that they kept their flashy, snappy opponents, champions of 1928, to their lowest score of the season, 17-9. In this game, there were plays in which the co-eds displayed flashes of real form. The last game of the season was a return game with St. Ambrose, a rather inglorious defeat for the co-eds.

Monica Kondratovicz was re-elected captain with Margaret Meyers as manager-elect. Letters were awarded to Monica Kondratovicz, Florence Bernard, manager, Mickey Sullivan, Eilleen Cross, Carroll Nussey, June McDougall, Marcel Frenette, Eileen Crowley, and Dolly Bauser.

TENNIS

THE inception of Tennis, at the University of Detroit during the past season, resulted in a surprising show of interest and brought forth an extraordinary amount of ability.

The campus tennis tournament offered Manager Fred Goodrich, who deserves a great deal of credit for his untiring efforts, an opportunity to assemble a group of players who could make an excellent showing in the dual meets and tourneys which were held during the season. The squad of candidates included many men with amateur experience and when the tournament smoke had cleared away these same racket wielders made up the tennis squad representing the University of Detroit.

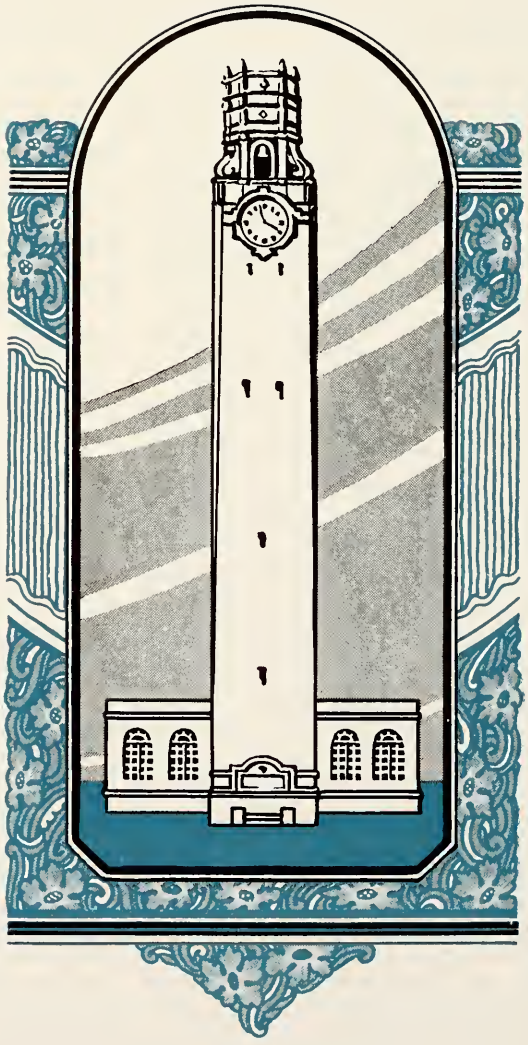
The initial meet was a dual match with the more experienced group from Western State Normal College, played on the latter's courts on Friday, May 2. The score was 8 to 1 in favor of the Kalamazoo net men. The Titans made a fine showing for the short time that they practiced. In the doubles F. Leion and F. Ruysser won the only match of the afternoon for the U. of D., when they defeated Bradford and Wolfe, 6-4, 8-6.

The Titan tennis team then traveled to East Lansing. The result was a 7-2 victory for the U. of D., Goodrich, Leion, F. Ruysser, and Kelly winning their single matches while the Titans scored a slam in the doubles.

The remaining matches engaged in included a dual meet with St. Johns of Toledo at the Tennis Club on May 9; the invitational meet at Chicago on May 15, 16, and 17; the Detroit Tennis Club on May 18; St. Johns at Toledo on May 20; the Western State Normal invitational at Kalamazoo on May 22, 23, 24; Western State Normal in a dual meet on May 26 at the Tennis Club; a dual match with Michigan State on May 31 at the Tennis Club; and the State invitational at East Lansing on June 5, 6, and 7.

The U. of D. Freshmen tennis team that began practice after the season progressed met Highland Park Junior College on May 22 and the Michigan State yearlings on May 28.

Much interest has been manifested by the students in this lately revived sport. When the call for players was issued, some seventy candidates presented themselves. Although the season cannot be called unusual from the standpoint of victories, it does reflect creditably on the efforts of the participants.



Intramural Sports

A. E. C. BASKETBALL

THE A. E. C. Basketball League has always furnished one of the biggest attractions for the Night School students during the winter months. This year was no exception, and the league reached a new high level of achievement under the direction of Sullivan and Greenberg. The league is composed of one team from each of the four classes.

After a month's practice following the Christmas holiday, the teams began a hard elimination contest to decide the championship of the Night School. This brought out some closely fought and tight games, best of which were the contests between the Juniors and the Sophomores. The end of the season saw these two teams tied for first place, with but one defeat each. In the play-off the Juniors clinched the title by defeating the Sophs 16-12.

This season was the first in several that the Frosh were unable to win the championship. The present Juniors had won in their Freshman year, and the Sophs likewise in theirs; but the Frosh were too weak and were early outdistanced by their upper class rivals.

Always a pioneer in university activities, the A. E. C. has taken a big step forward in the promotion of intramural sports with its fine athletic teams. Chief among these is the Basketball League which has always had the whole hearted support of the students.

Founded in 1927 by Eddie Ottenbacher and Clarence Grix for the purpose of forming a closer relationship between the students of the Night School, the A. E. C. basketball league has advanced to a remarkable degree. This year the league enjoyed its most successful season and was instrumental in promoting and strengthening an excellent school and departmental spirit among the students.

By the development of such finished teams and by providing such healthful recreation and entertainment for the Night School students the basketball league is well in keeping with the highly commendable precedent set by the A. E. C. a few years ago. The benefits which accrue from the season of fast play fittingly climaxed by the championship games are manifold. The efforts of the winners are rewarded each year by the presentation of a gold watch charm as a tribute to their fine, fast, clean play. The presentation of the prizes was made this year at a dinner dance held shortly after Easter.

A. E. C. HOCKEY

THE hockey team organized for the first time this year furnishes another page for the calendar of A. E. C. sport activities. It was organized in response to Bud Boeringer's request for an inter-departmental hockey league. No other departments furnishing teams, the A. E. C. looked for competitors among outside teams.

The forward line was composed of Bert Johnson at center and Robert Olsen and Joseph DesRosier at wings. Johnson and DesRosier, both Canadians with previous experience, turned in very good performances. Olsen showed the greatest improvement, getting away to a poor start but finishing with a rush to tie Johnson for scoring honors. Both got six goals and several assists apiece. The stick handling of Olsen was the feature of the last games. The defense was taken care of by William Schmidt and John Bizall, both of whom had had previous experience and gave good account of themselves. Heavy body checking discouraged many over-ambitious forwards. John Paling in the nets made many brilliant saves and was the main reason for A. E. C. wins.

Any team is fortunate in having a strong reserve. The A. E. C. had an entire team to substitute to conserve the strength of the first team. The reserves were composed of John Birney at center, Paul Clement and Fred Lyons at the wings, and John May and Brill at defense. This combination performed excellently and should prove valuable material for next year's squad, for they certainly proved valuable men in many of this year's games.

Five games were played: three victories, one defeat and one tie. All games were closely fought, but the most outstanding victory was the Davey Coal Company game which was won by a score of 8-1.

Special mention should be made of Schmidt who played his regular position as well as acting as captain, coach, and general manager. It is Schmidt who was largely responsible for the success of A. E. C. hockey this year.

Despite poor equipment and lack of a place to practice, the first season of Night School hockey can be termed a brilliant success; not only in games won, but in spirit developed and interest shown.

Losing but two players through graduation, Brill and Clement, the prospects for a winning combination next year are very good.

A. E. C. BOWLING LEAGUE

WITH the beginning of the school year 1929-30, came the demand for the resumption of the league organized in 1927. A call was issued and about fifty men responded at which time the Cadillac Alleys were again selected as the scene of battle because of their proximity to the downtown school. Games were played every Friday night following dismissal of classes. Six teams of representative strength were made up from among the original candidates. How well the teams were matched can best be explained by the fact that the three-quarter mark found the Bears, Coyotes and Lions grouped at the top of the standings.

The six teams and their captains were as follows: Bears, Jack Gilhooly; Coyotes, Joseph Erdos; Lions, Leo Esper; Wolves, Robert Haight; Panthers, Anthony Lennert; Tigers, Arthur Lorenz.

By consistently good bowling Leo Esper led the list of individual averages, followed by Paul Massura, Herb Spencer, Arnold Zeschin and Anthony Lennert.

As a climax to a season of keen "friendly" rivalry, a banquet was given at the conclusion of the schedule at which time officers were elected for the following year. The retiring officers extended their best wishes for a continuance of the success which has rewarded their efforts.

The bowling league of the Associated Evening Classes was founded for the purpose of forming a closer relationship between the students of the Night School. Since its inception in '27 the league has enjoyed the spirited backing of students and its success has never been in doubt.

At the present time a great effort is being made to provide an intra-mural calendar which will offer to every student an opportunity to participate in some form of athletics. It has been the complaint in the past that university sports were open only to a few and that the average student was unable to engage in competitive sports.

In this great move for the extension of athletics at the university it is particularly noteworthy that the Associated Evening Classes have been leaders. By the introduction and sponsoring of bowling they gave an impetus to intra-mural sports the value of which is difficult to estimate. Bowling is fast gaining in popularity throughout the country and especially in the state of Michigan since the season opens at that time of year when practically all sports activity is at a standstill.

INTRA-MURAL BASEBALL

NEARLY 200 students participated in the playing of the first university inter-departmental indoor baseball league. Twelve teams, representing the classes in the colleges of Arts and Science, Commerce and Finance and Engineering, were entered in the organization directed by "Bud" Boeringer, director of intra-mural athletics.

The schedule of games was started immediately after the Easter recess with teams in the Arts and Commerce schools competing for the right to play the leading nine in the engineering college's league for the university championship. Four games were played each week, with the carefully-chosen umpire calling "Play Ball" at noon on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays of each week.

At the opening of the contest, no trophy had been provided to honor the final winning combination. But as the schedule neared completion, the interest manifested in the games, made the continuance of the contest in future years a certainty and the Athletic Board soon announced that the name of the winning team would be recorded on a cup to remain in the permanent possession of the school.

FROSH-SOPH GAMES

THE feud between the Freshmen and Sophomores came to an end for 1930 when the annual class games and flag rush were held on the campus May 1 and 2. Nearly 400 students participated in the traditional events, characterized each succeeding year with scratches and bruises, torn and muddy clothes, and occasional darkened eyes or bleeding noses.

The flag hunt resulted in an ignominious victory for the Sophs. The Freshmen, nearly three hundred strong, could not find the flag. It was hidden at the base of a sign in front of the Science building. On the next day the Freshmen succeeded in carrying off the honors and overcame their losses of the previous night, winning the games by a score of 54 to 52. A meager victory that speaks more to the credit of the Sophomores who were outnumbered nearly three to one, and who certainly held their own.

INTER-FRATERNITY BASEBALL

IN the first organized fraternity sports contest the Argon fraternity emerged as indoor baseball champions of the campus. Ten fraternities participated in the league and completed a regular schedule of games.

The teams represented were from the Argons, Pi Sigma Phi, Delta Sigma Pi, Ayha Kappa Psi, Tuyere, Epsilon Sigma Phi, Alpha Epsilon Pi, Epsilon Tau, the Alida Club, and Barlage Hall. The Argons completed the season undefeated after playing every team in the league.

The championship game was held Sunday afternoon, April 26, at Dinan Field. The Argons, with no defeats, overcame the Tuyere aggregation who had been beaten but once during the season. The score for seven innings was 6 to 1 in favor of the Argons. Bucky O'Neil performed stellar pitching for the winners, and made a record number of strike-outs to lead his team to victory. The Argon bats worked overtime in collecting their winning brace of runs.

With the first sport venture between fraternities a signal success, further athletic relations between campus brotherhoods and organizations are planned for future years.

The Campanile of Giotto of Florence

To catch the spirit of the renaissance market, with its bustle, its color, and the jabbering of many tongues is to know the meaning of a great organization which brought the products of the world to a common center. The glamorous city of Florence, grand estate of the Medici, opulent, magnificent, can only be imagined; but we feel that it demonstrates the power of organization in bringing together many talents in common effort for progress.

THE University of Detroit chapter of the Alpha Sigma Tau honorary fraternity was begun in 1924, exactly nine years after the original chapter was organized at Marquette University. This fraternity has increased in size until now nearly every Jesuit college in the country has a chapter.

Membership in the fraternity is limited to those students who have achieved notable success in their scholastic activities. Few are so honored, and they are the recognized leaders of the scholastic life of the campus. The successful candidates become members in the latter part of their Junior year and their active membership continues until graduation. As only eleven active members may belong to the society, membership is a distinct honor.

The selection of new members rests with the dean of each college and the president of the university. Each college may elect two men each year, while the president is allowed to choose three men from the university at large. Due to these strict eligibility requirements, membership in the Alpha Sigma Tau is one of the hardest honors to attain. There are many candidates for nomination to the fraternity, but only two may be selected from each college.

During the past year the organization held its annual banquet at the Wolverine Hotel in Detroit. The affair was held February 27th, and George Weins was chairman. With the exception of the annual initiation held sometime during the last week in May of each year, this is the only social activity sponsored by the fraternity.

DURING this, its third year of operation upon the campus, the Interfraternity Council has clearly demonstrated its ability to promote the general interest of the University and the particular interest of the several fraternities represented therein. The Council has been instrumental in insuring proper cooperation between the various fraternal bodies and subsequently between the fraternal bodies and the college authorities.

Early in the year the Council amended its constitution to make attendance at its meetings compulsory and thus secure true universality of representation. Following this action, the Council moved to eliminate the unnecessary confusion and competition among the fraternal social events. Other activities included a move to assure the proper continuity of administrative action.

ONE of the most consistent fraternities on the campaus is Alpha Chi, founded in March of 1926. Since then it has steadily grown in size and increased the scope of its activities. Its members are selected from every department of the university and only those who are recognized leaders in school activities are chosen. A high scholastic average is also required.

The main objective of this fraternity is to bring the campus leaders together and afford them the opportunity of understanding one another's aims and projects. Alpha Chi stands out as the fraternity that has done much for the annual Union opera.

A very ambitious program of events was carried out during the past year by Alpha Chi. On September 28th, the organization opened its social season with a dinner-dance at the Northwood. This was followed by two more similar affairs at the same place, on October 5th and 22nd. On November 20th, a formal dinner-dance was held at Oakland Hall, with John Mooney as chairman. The dance hall was decorated in a colonial setting, with seasonal flowers lending color to the scene.

The fraternity held its annual pledging on January 15th. Several new students were chosen for membership, following out the program of expansion outlined by the fraternity last year.

Several smokers were held throughout the year at Webster Hall. Frank Potts and Karl Schechter acted as chairman for the affairs.

The Alumni members of the organization gave a smoker near the end of January. It was attended by all the members, both active and alumni, and plans for the future of the fraternity were discussed.

FIVE years of hard labor was rewarded on the evening of May 18th, 1930, when twenty-five undergraduate and thirty-five alumni members of Sigma Phi Lambda became charter members of Xi chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi, national Jewish fraternity.

The nationalization banquet, which was held at the Book-Cadillac Hotel, marked the passing of another great milestone on the fraternity's rise to prominence in fraternal and scholastic standing on the campus.

Since its organization in 1925 by a group of seven men who saw the need of such a society to foster friendship among the Jewish students of the University, Alpha Epsilon Pi has taken an active interest in university affairs. To bring these men into a firm body to co-operate with the university in its activities, has been a great part of the fraternity's program.

The year 1929-30 saw this aim carried out. Alpha Epsilon Pi attended the 1930 Union Opera, "Hello Stranger," in a body and helped to make the opening night the glorious success that it was. The members occupied a box at the Junior Prom, and the fraternity was at all times a strong supporter of the Inter-fraternity Council.

The main social affair of the year was the Formal Football Prom held at the Fox and Hounds Inn. This was a closed dance with Dean Carl H. Seehoffer and Prof. Janes as honorary guests. The motif used in the decorations, programs, and invitations was suggestive of the many gridiron victories of the Titan team.

The fraternity held a smoker soon after the start of the school year. This served as a general get-together for alumni and undergraduate members and also as a welcoming party for the new Jewish men on the campus. A similar affair was staged in March. At both of these smokers, which were held at Webster Hall, Dean Seehoffer, the fraternity's faculty moderator, acted as principal speaker.

BETA THETA CHAPTER of Alpha Kappa Psi, National Professional Fraternity in Commerce, was installed at the University of Detroit on May 20, 1930. The installation ceremonies were held at the Hotel Statler. Prior to this date Beta Theta Chapter was known as Sigma Kappa Phi, founded as a Commerce and Finance Club in 1918 and incorporated as Sigma Kappa Phi in 1930.

Socially the Beta Theta Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi has enjoyed an unusually active season. During the summer the calendar included an outing to Put-in-Bay and a moonlight excursion. At the close of the football season, the alumni gave a Football Finale, and in December a Testimonial Banquet to Captain Lloyd Brazil. At an initiation in February, honorary membership was bestowed on Professor Joseph A. Luyckx. A dinner-dance was given at Eastwood Inn, numerous smokers and bridge parties, and their annual Colonial Prom at the Hotel Statler concluded the season.

Alpha Kappa Psi Scholarship Cup was established in October, 1928. It is awarded to the fraternity with the highest scholastic standing.

UPON receiving the required sanction of the faculty in 1928, Argon fraternity began its career of vigorous participation in university activities, and since that time has taken a prominent place among the fraternal organizations on the campus.

The greatest contribution of Argon fraternity to the university is the annual award of a trophy to the player who, in the opinion of the coaches, has displayed the greatest improvement during the long and disagreeable spring practice. The presentation this year was made by Coach Dorais at the Argon Trophy Dance held in May, an event which has assumed a prominent place on the social calendar of the university since its inception in 1928.

November 3rd marked the date of the first pledge dinner of the year. The dinner was directed by John Lipscomb, and it was at this affair that the first group of prospective members began their pledgeship. The first initiation on February 8th was held at the Cadillac Athletic Club. At this event, a well-tried and long-pledged group was introduced to the secrets of the fraternity. The second initiation was held in May, and a second group received their pins after proving their worthiness.

On October 6th, a fraternity outing was enjoyed at Pine Lake. On November 16th, the fraternity held a dinner dance at the Chinese Princess. The event, under the chairmanship of Francis Quinn, was a pleasant affair and proved highly enjoyable to the fraternity members.

A bowling tournament between the members of the fraternity was begun at the Cadillac Athletic Club on March 16th. Argon was also represented in the tennis tournament which was started on March 30th. These are but further proofs of the promotion of athletics which has always been stimulated by the members of Argon fraternity.

IN its second year on the campus, Beta Sigma Pi fraternity, one of the most active organizations of its kind at the university, surpassed its admirable record of last year when four very successful affairs were held. This club, composed of students of Polish extraction, is an earnest backer of all the doings of the student body and the university. The frat was organized to aid the Polish students in expressing their spirit in the university and to bind them into a co-operative unit to work for the progress of the Alma Mater.

This purpose has been carried out in their accomplishments of the past year, and the club has welded its members into a group that has given consistent support to all university activities. Beta Sigma Pi stands high in the scholastic ranking as well as socially and academically.

The first social activity held by the frat was an outing given during the summer vacation at the Sunnybrook Country Club. John Sauk, as chairman of the event, made the day a most entertaining one for the members and their friends. Beta Sigma Pi has inaugurated a new and unique precedent in holding social functions during the summer season, and according to present plans will continue to follow out this policy.

The first event of the regular school year was a dinner and smoker held at the Century Club. Walter Dziesko was chairman. The fraternity proved itself to be very active by holding the first event of the school year. The smoker was well attended and everyone had an enjoyable time.

The first big affair of the season was a dance held at the Maccabees ballroom on November 10th with over seventy couples in attendance. Walter Jakubowski was the chairman of the event, which was as elaborate and successful as any affair held by the club.

The final event of the fraternity's social season was the formal initiation held at Webster Hall April 7th. At this time, several new members were admitted to the club, and became part of the group.

To further prove the loyalty of this group to the school, the club entertained nearly fifty couples at the annual Union Opera during Easter Week.

ON September 1st Chi Delta Theta, architectural fraternity at the University of Detroit, established its headquarters at 16823 Monica Avenue, just four years after its inception as a campus organization.

It was founded in the Spring of 1926 to bind the students of the architectural department of the Engineering College more closely together socially. While primarily social it set for its purpose a higher goal, which its members have since tried to carry out to the best of their ability. Their aim is to promote a high standard of scholarship among the students of architecture, to instill a spirit of devotion in them for their Alma Mater, and to foster an active participation in all activities of the university among the entire body of architectural students. That a warm spirit of enthusiasm prevails among the body is attested by the fact of their marvelous growth.

Chi Delta Theta opened its social season with a smoker at Webster Hall on September 24th, 1929. A series of pledgings, open meetings and monthly bridge or theater parties were held during the course of the year. The three professional meetings consisted of informal talks by men prominent in the building field.

The brilliant feature of the social calendar was the dinner dance at Tuller Hotel, March 4th, 1930. Willard Root was chairman of the affair.

An architectural exhibition was sponsored late in the second semester. It was the first of its kind ever to be held at the university and was open to all members of the architectural department. An outcome of the exhibition was the Architectural File, a reference library in which is kept all information pertinent to architecture. Contributions to the file have continued in a steady volume during the year and quite an interesting collection has been made.

CHI SIGMA PHI, an engineering fraternity, was organized at the University of Detroit early in the year 1922. Enrollment in the regular prescribed engineering courses which lead to engineering degrees, is a necessary requirement to active membership in the fraternity. Honorary membership is given only to men who have been successful in the practice of the engineering profession.

In Professor John Caton and Professor David P. Gilmore, the fraternity has the best representatives of the engineering profession. The ideals of the fraternity, character and scholastic ability are best embodied in the work of these two men.

On October 18th, Chi Sigma Phi initiated a select number of pledges in the order. The first social event after the adoption of the new members was a Prospect Party held in the Masonic Temple on October 23rd. This party was followed by a closed dance at Clinton Valley Country Club, which proved to be a most enjoyable affair. A banquet was held on February 22nd at Masonic Temple, after which an initiation of the remaining pledges was held. In May, the Chi Sigs sponsored a dance at the Masonic Temple which duplicated their earlier social achievements. The fraternity concluded its social season with a banquet given at the Masonic Temple on June 7th.

Chi Sigma Phi each year offers an Honor Key to that senior in the Engineering School who completes his five-year course with the highest scholastic average. This award was inaugurated in 1927, and each year it is presented at graduation exercises.

THE reorganized Delta Alpha Phi fraternity completed a successful season during the past year. Three major social events were held during the school year, in addition to several informal meetings and smokers.

The club was reorganized a year ago, and has made rapid strides both socially and academically. The members are whole-hearted in their support of student activities, being one of the many fraternities to attend the Union opera in a body on the opening night.

Among the activities of its members are offices on the Union Board of Governors, membership on the debating teams, managerial capacities on the Union opera personnel, athletic monogram men, and positions on the Varsity News staff. Such is the material of which a fraternity should be composed to make it of value to the university.

Delta Alpha Phi pledged several lower classmen during the past year. The fraternity makes a practice of choosing only those students who are campus leaders, which accounts for the club's activities. This year the initiation banquet was held May 3rd at the Fort Shelby Hotel. Charles Shires was chairman of the event.

The first important social function of the year was a dinner-dance held at the Oriole Terrace, February 27th. William Guarnieri, as chairman, succeeded in making the affair a most enjoyable one. The annual spring formal dinner-dance was held this year on May 21st. The Fox and Hounds Club was the location and a committee of three men took charge of the event. This dance celebrated the eleventh anniversary of the fraternity, Delta Alpha being one of the oldest on the campus.

The past year was the first complete season under the new system installed by the fraternity, and it proved to be a great success. One year ago, the club's morale had seemingly failed completely, but under the reorganization, the members picked up spirit and Delta Alpha Phi once more resumed its rightful place in campus affairs.

DELTA PHI EPSILON, national foreign trade fraternity, is represented at the University of Detroit by Theta chapter. Begun in November, 1919, at the Georgetown University, D. C., its chapters are established at universities in all parts of the United States.

The fraternity's purpose is to promote good fellowship, honor, scholarship, and excellent citizenship among its members; to inspire a spirit of loyalty to respective Alma Maters; to aid each member in the realization of his ideals; to support the Constitution of the United States of America; to aid in the development and maintenance of the international commerce of the United States; to encourage and foster relationships of friendliness and good will between the United States and other nations.

Being a professional fraternity, most of Theta chapter's activities are of a professional nature. Two meetings are held each month, one a business meeting and the other a dinner meeting held on the third Monday of each month. The dinner meeting is devoted to discussions and talks relating to foreign trade by men active in that field. This year, such places as the Palmetto Hotel, Strikers, and the Seward and Statler hotels were the centers for these gatherings.

The social calendar of Theta chapter began this year with a Pledge Dinner given in January at the Mansion. On February 14th, 15th, and 16th, initiation of the neophyte class into the chapter was held at the Hotel Statler.

Theta chapter presents the Rev. Henry W. Otting gold award each year to the most deserving student in the foreign trade department of the College of Commerce and Finance. The award is given to honor the memory of the late Rev. Henry W. Otting, S. J., past regent of the university and past honored member of Theta chapter.

Growth in membership made a home for the organization on the campus a necessity. The chapter's house was opened this fall, and is located at 630 E. Jefferson.

DELTA PI KAPPA, the only journalistic fraternity on the campus, is a leader in every university activity. Although one of the smallest it has achieved a position that few fraternities anywhere can equal.

The social calendar of the Quillmen was dotted with some of the most outstanding affairs of the year at the university. The initial event was the Scribes' Ball, most colorful and most successful. This dance, sometimes called the Pi-I-Pirate Ball, was held October 30th, at the Masonic Temple. Frank Jenney was chairman of the affair. The liveliest and most amiable crowd of young people, that ever attended a fraternity dance was present at this Pi-I festivity.

On December 12th the fraternity held its first open house meeting. John Cashin was in charge of the meeting at Webster Hall.

On January 17th, Don Carney and Phil Stackpoole engineered the fraternity's bridge party, at Webster Hall.

Pledging was handled by Ralph Boone, on January 30th, at the Seward Hotel. Following the pledge meeting came a succession of enjoyable meetings, during which time, the Cubs, as Delta Pi Kappa's pledges are known, performed or didn't, just as the superiors dictated, much to the enjoyment of the active and alumni members. The scene was the Seward Hotel.

Initiation of new members was held on May 4. The Quillmen pledged their support to both the Union Opera and the Junior Prom. The members attended the opera in a body.

The social season was brought to a close by Delta Pi Kappa's annual Dinner Dance, under the chairmanship of Phil Stackpoole.

Delta Pi Kappa is represented in every University activity, whether journalistic or otherwise. Its members are to be found on the publications' staffs, the opera personnel and every other worth-while activity.

WASHINGTON'S birthday saw the installation of a new chapter of the Delta Sigma, a national fraternity, on the University of Detroit campus. The old Delta Club about which little was heard became the Eta Beta chapter of this large fraternity. This organization is one of the largest national fraternities in the country, having nearly one hundred chapters.

This organization was formed from the small band of the Delta Club. It was only after much preliminary work that they were finally accepted as a chapter of the national fraternity. The nine organizers, Frank Weaver, Michael Kilbane, Carl Rothenberger, Richard Downing, Richard Benn, Marion Beer, Oliver Perreault, Edward George, Joseph George and Tom Ryan, are the charter members of this fraternity.

The installation, which took place February 22, was handled by Jack Rose, deputy commissioner of the third district of the fraternity. He was assisted by Robert Elmes, William Paulimus, and John Wessels. The first three are members of the Pi Nu chapter located in Buffalo, New York, while Wessels came from the Gamma Lambda chapter of St. Louis, Missouri. The ceremonies took place at Webster Hall and were climaxed by a banquet at which all the charter members of the local chapter were present. Frank Weaver was in charge of the banquet.

On March 18, the first open meeting of the Delta Sigma fraternity was held under the chairmanship of Carl Rothenberger. As this organization has not yet been able to procure a fraternity house the meeting was held at Webster Hall. Michael Kilbane was in charge of the second open meeting which took place March 30, at Webster Hall. The pledges were received April 27, at Webster Hall, followed by a formal banquet. Frank Weaver presided over the pledging and arranged the banquet. On three successive days, June 6, 7, 8, the informal initiation and the traditional Delta Sigma banquet for new members were held at Webster Hall.

The officers of the Delta Sigma for this year are Frank Weaver, president; Michael Kilbane, vice-president; Carl Rothenberger, recording secretary; Richard Downing, corresponding secretary, and Richard Benn, treasurer.

THETA Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, international Commerce and Finance fraternity, is one of the largest and most active organizations on the campus. Founded in January, 1921, the fraternity has since taken a leading part in the many social and scholastic functions of the university.

The social season opened with a smoker at Webster Hall, September 30th. John F. Collins was in charge of the arrangements. It was followed by a dinner dance at Hawthorne Valley, pledging of the neophytes at Webster Hall, and an initiation banquet at Fort Shelby Hotel on February 9th, 1930.

In December the fraternity feted the football team with its third annual football banquet held at the Book-Cadillac Hotel. L. Gordon Goodrich was chairman. The fifth annual basketball banquet sponsored by the organization was held at Fort Shelby Hotel, April 3rd.

Following its usual custom, the fraternity pledged a second group in March. The initiation ceremonies were followed by a banquet in honor of the new members. The social functions of a year replete in activity closed with a formal dinner dance at Hawthorne Valley.

DELTA THETA PHI has completed a year of intense activity. The Hosmer senate, University of Detroit chapter of the national law fraternity, has taken an active part in all of the major events of the university and has expanded in numbers as well as in influence.

As in the past, many of the activities of the chapter have been carried on in conjunction with the two other senates located in the city. A formal dance was given in December by the three senates at the Book-Cadillac Hotel. The party was well attended and proved to be one of the most enjoyable events of the social season at the Law School.

One of the finest and most successful events of the year was a formal initiation banquet at the Statler Hotel on March 8th. At this time, twenty students of the Law School were added to the roster of the fraternity. Following the initiation ceremonies, a large group of the three senates enjoyed a sumptuous banquet, at which Harry M. Crooks, L. L. D., president of Alma college, was the principal speaker. Due to the past successes of this function, it has become an annual event. At this same time, plans were also discussed and formulated for holding the 1931 national convention in Detroit.

At numerous times throughout the year, the senate sponsored smokers for the members. These events were always carefully directed and were always social successes.

The final event of the organization before the close of the school year was their annual Founders' Day celebration in the latter part of May.

Delta Theta Phi was honored this year when Donald Gilbert, of the Hosmer senate, was selected as one of the commission appointed by Governor Green to codify all the Condemnation Laws.

OCTOBER, 1929, saw the beginning of the Epsilon Sigma Phi, a fraternity which is fast becoming popular among the undergraduates. To Ned Monaghan, Ben Newton, Jack Cannon and Jack Goetz must we pay the credit for establishing this new social organization. The movement toward nationalization, encouraged by Doctor Muttkowski and readily sponsored by the many fraternities on the campus, has caught up the Epsilonians and promises to add them in the near future to the group recently gone national.

On Lincoln's birthday, Epsilon Sigma Phi held their first formal dance at the League of Catholic Woman's club house. Of this affair Ned Monaghan was appointed chairman. The dance, considering it the initial social event of the fraternity, was an unusual success. The guests expressed themselves as highly pleased with the many tasteful appointments.

Although Epsilon Sigma Phi is less than a year old, it was able on March 16 to open a fraternity house at 16851 Stoepel Avenue. A formal opening of the house was held, followed shortly by a congenial smoker. At the present time, ten members of the fraternity live in the new club home.

This spring, fifteen pledges from the various colleges were initiated into the organization. Thus, from a numerically humble beginning, Sigma Phi has grown in a short time the equal in strength to the average-sized, but long-established fraternity.

Epsilon Sigma Phi numbers among its membership men interested in nearly every university activity. Its roster includes those engaged in athletics, forensics and the like.

EPSILON TAU, Jewish literary fraternity, established its Beta chapter at the University of Detroit in 1927. At the close of the school year, the chapter suffered a serious depletion in its ranks due to the graduation of a majority of its members. This loss necessitated a complete reorganization, a laborious task to attempt, but with admirable organization Beta chapter once more assumed a prominent place among the fraternities of the campus.

Early in the first semester, a smoker was given by the fraternity for sixty guests. The smoker, under the chairmanship of Max Radom, was held at the Lee Crest Apartments; a buffet luncheon, entertainments, and speeches contributed to the pleasures of the evening.

November 15th marked the date of the first informal initiation of the year. On November 22nd, the first formal initiation was conducted at the Imperial Hotel under the supervision of Max Radom. After the initiation ceremonies, a banquet was enjoyed by forty guests. The banquet, with Edwin Elk acting as toastmaster, was followed by speeches and entertainment, so that a really fine time marked the first initiation of the year.

The first social event of the new year was an informal dinner dance at Bal Taberin, Addison Hotel, under the chairmanship of Max Radom and Edwin Elk. The affair was sponsored by the alumni body and was attended en masse by the members of Beta chapter. Decorations in the fraternity colors and school colors adorned the hall. Souvenirs in the form of decorative dance programs were presented to the ladies in attendance.

As the social season drew to a close, the fraternity made plans to terminate its activities with a formal dinner at the Redford Country Club. The party was held on May 25th and far surpassed any event ever sponsored by Beta chapter. Beautiful favors and smartly designed programs were presented to the guests. The clubhouse was gaily decorated with the fraternity emblem and colors.

Showing its interest in the activities of the university, Beta chapter was well represented at the Junior Prom, at the Frosh Frolic, and at the Sophomore Snow-Ball.

THE Eta Zeta Sigma sorority had a banner year in 1929-30, for on the first of December, 1929, their house was opened. The event had been looked forward to by the members of the club, and the realization of this ambition was very gratifying.

Despite their small numbers as compared to the thousands of men students, the co-eds have managed to make themselves a prominent factor in campus activities, and no small share of the honor should go to the Eta Zeta Sigma sorority. The organization was enlarged during the past year, and with the entrance of several new members, the club has increased its scope of social activities.

The first social event of the year was a mixed bridge party held at the Union rooms on Jefferson Avenue, at the old University of Detroit. Marie Bunetta was appointed chairman of the event.

On February 24th, the initiation was held at the sorority house at 16249 Petoskey. On the following evening, a formal initiation dinner was given at the League of Catholic Women. The entire roster of members and pledges attended this affair, which was voted a real success.

Something novel in the way of social entertainment was given three days later, when the entire sorority went for a sleigh ride. The final social event of the season was the annual dinner dance given this year at the Detroit Yacht Club. The hall was fittingly decorated in a yachting motif, and everyone approved of the unique decorations.

The sorority also sponsored a series of weekly teas given each Sunday afternoon during the school year. Both the girls living at the house and those living at home attended these affairs, which were reported very enjoyable.

The sorority holds as its aim the promotion of a high standard of scholarship, and endeavors also, to promote a spirit of comradeship among the co-eds of the school. The ability to aid in the fulfillment of these ideals is a qualification requisite to an initiate of the sorority.

FOUNDED in October, 1929, the Gamma Epsilon Phi fraternity has slowly but surely become prominent on the campus. Organized for the promotion of the professional, social and scholastic interests of Jewish engineers, the club has succeeded admirably in its aim.

Four social events were held during the school year. The first of these was a skating party held in Windsor, Ontario on January 5th. Later in the month, a social meeting was held at Webster Hall. All the members attended and plans for the future of the club were discussed. On February 16th, a bridge party was given at the Wolverine Hotel, the affair being a big success. The final social event was a smoker held April 6th at Webster Hall.

Although not sponsoring a very large social program, the fraternity has succeeded in joining the Jewish engineering students together both socially and academically. It is planned to increase the membership and thus make the fraternity more prominent in campus life. This being its first year on the campus, the organization was not well enough organized to sponsor any university activity. However, with the passing of a year, the club will be more firmly entrenched in the affairs of the school and consequently will be more active in the social life of the campus. The real meaning of this club can only be appreciated by its members but the good work of uniting men in a common interest can be appreciated by the school-at-large.

It is the clubs, fraternities and social organizations of a university that keep life flowing in its veins and it is through such fraternities as Gamma Epsilon Phi, young as it is, that we feel the pulse of the school. Campus life is kept from stagnation not by the separate activities of individual men, but by the organized efforts of united groups and it is their sponsorship of and participation in social activities that keep the campus alive. It is only through the students' co-operation with one another that a school may grow powerful and thus it can be seen that a vital need is felt for more young clubs such as this.

THE University of Detroit chapter of the national law fraternity, Gamma Eta Gamma, was established in 1919. The original chapter was founded at the University of Maine in 1901, and since then the society has grown until at present there are 35 chapters in the country.

A very ambitious social schedule was undertaken by the Mu chapter and all the events were complete successes. The first was a dinner held at the Cosmopolitan Club, August 28th, a few days before the opening of the fall term. Edmund Engleman, as chairman, succeeded in making the event a success. On the 23rd of October a rush meeting and smoker was held at Webster Hall. Boyden Janjatovich supervised this affair.

Anthony Handloser was chairman of the next two events, a pledging ceremony and the Fall Formal Initiation and Dance. The pledging ceremony was held in Judge Bartlett's courtroom November 12th, while the formal dance was given at the Detroit Leland Hotel a week later.

A combination smoker and card party was held at Webster Hall on April 1st at which plans for the future of the society were discussed, and the names of new pledges were announced. William Kane was chairman of this event, and also supervised the second banquet and initiation which was held at the Fort Shelby Hotel on the 24th of April.

The last major social function of the fraternity was held during the run of the Union Opera. All the active and alumni members of the society attended the affair in a body. George Weins was chairman of the theater party and managed to make a great success of it.

In addition to this long list of social affairs, the fraternity also sponsored a regular series of bi-monthly luncheons, held in conjunction with the alumni. James Hunt, recording secretary of the fraternity, acted as chairman for these events, which have been established as annual affairs for the society.

THE KAPPA BETA PI, national legal sorority, was established to serve as a means of combining the women law students, and has increased in importance until it now has assumed a position of importance among the fraternities and sororities on the campus.

Socially the sorority has been very active, beginning their season with a breakfast at Colony Club in honor of Miss Evangeline Hursen and Miss Clausey, prominent women attorneys of Chicago. On December 20th, a Christmas party and dinner was given, at which time eight of the law neophytes were pledged. The initiation was held at the Cosmopolitan Club with a luncheon. In February a dinner was held at the League of Catholic Women, and in March a reception at the home of Lula Powers Bachmann, Dean of the sorority. In April Mrs. Teresa Doland entertained at a benefit bridge.

The social season was climaxed in May when the sorority were hostesses to the Province Convention at the Hotel Statler. During the convention a dinner was given at the Detroit Athletic Club, with Judge Genevieve Cline, the only woman on the United States Federal Court Bench, as honored guest. The day following the banquet, the members of the convention drove to Ann Arbor as guests of the Ann Arbor Chapter where tea was served at the Women's League Building.

Kappa Beta Pi contrives to bring together those women students having as a common interest their study of law, and to act as an aid to those graduates who are just starting out in their careers.

With the number of campus sororities so small, this organization has a great mission to fill in the downtown division of the university. The past year has been one of great success and its members feel that they have gained the social privilege and help which is the purpose of every sorority. It is through Kappa Beta Pi that the women of the Law College have contributed their ability and force to the activity of the university, and their effort has accomplished a real service to the Law College and to the women students who have come within its fold.

THOUGH one of the smallest fraternities of the university, Kappa Sigma Delta is by no means inactive, and has, during the past scholastic year, enjoyed success phenomenal to so young an organization.

The fraternity was founded by nine students of the College of Engineering who felt the need of organizing their friendship into a body that could offer its advantage to other students, and could occupy a place in the activities of the university. A charter was drawn up and the fraternity formally became a campus entity in the fall of 1927 when it was approved by the Faculty Board.

At the outset rigid requirements were inserted in the constitution to protect the fraternity and make it a body of students valuable to fraternal life on the campus. This close discrimination, though a wise policy, has retarded the growth of the fraternity; but it has resulted, on the other hand, in one of the most active groups in the university.

The annual outing held on August 10th gave the fraternity its send-off and was the harbinger of a successful social season. It was followed on November 4th by the installation of officers and a dinner at Webster Hall. Both affairs were enjoyable ones and well-attended.

A banquet at Diana Inn on January 20th and pledging ceremonies on January 31st opened a series of social events for 1930. A smoker was held at the Wardell before the informal initiation on March 10th. A banquet was given in honor of the pledges who were then instructed in their duties to the fraternity. Their initiation added new energy to a growing organization.

The annual dinner-dance under the direction of Orville E. Cullen was staged early in May. The en masse attendance of the fraternity and their many friends together with the excellence of the arrangements made it a memorable affair in the history of Kappa Sigma Delta.

June 4th witnessed the climaxing of an outstanding social year. The keenly anticipated Senior Dance was held to the ultimate satisfaction of the many Seniors and guests.

THE Magi fraternity enjoys the distinction of being the only Arts and Science fraternity on the campus. It was founded in 1919.

A successful dinner-dance opened the social season for the Magi on November 27th. The affair under the direction of David McHardy was staged at the Lee Plaza hotel.

The next event on the Magi calendar was a theater party held on February 17th at the Civic theater. Edward Hayes, chairman, spared no effort in preparations and a well-attended and enjoyable party rewarded his efforts.

A fraternity reunion at the Wolverine Hotel on November 19th proved to be a great success and stimulated the members to carry the organization to new heights. The reunion is an annual affair and one to which the old members look forward with keenest anticipation.

Two open meetings for the examination and entertainment of prospective members were held at the Wolverine Hotel on February 2nd and 25th. The pledges who withstood the rigid requirements of the fraternity were formally pledged on March 18th at the Masonic Temple.

The feature of the Magi's social calendar was the annual spring dinner-dance. It was one of the best attended affairs in Magi history, a red letter day.

The Magi fraternity because of its high scholastic standing and outstanding achievements has earned an enviable position on the U. of D. campus. Last year it was awarded the Sigma Kappa Phi interfraternity scholarship trophy, and this year the "Wise Men" won the Sigma Kappa Phi banner for the largest percentage attendance at the Colonial prom.

The Magi are second to none in sponsoring university activities. The annual Magi scholarship awarded to the Arts and Science Freshman having the highest scholarship standing has become one of the most sought-after awards in the university and has augmented the esteem in which the Magi are held by all.

OMEGA BETA PI, Iota chapter, the first national affiliated fraternity in the College of Arts and Science, was established in 1928 with nine charter members. The purpose of the fraternity has been to aid its members during their scholastic days as well as in their subsequent professional careers. During the past year Iota chapter has established itself as one of the most active organizations on the campus.

Early in September, the fraternity informally opened its new house at 16803 Prairie Avenue. On October 7th, the fraternity opened its social season with an open smoker at the new house. On October 9th, the formal opening of the chapter house took place. On October 21st, the Pre-Meds held their first pledging at the Seward Hotel, at which time twenty-four men took their pledging oath. On October 29th, the chapter's annual informal closed dinner dance was given at the Hawthorne Country Club. On November 29th, a closed party was given at the chapter house in honor of the alumni.

On December 9th, founders' day was celebrated by the chapter by a banquet at the Hotel Fort Wayne, at which event the "Loyalty Award" was presented to James Carrol. On January 31st, the annual Pre-Med Ball was given at the Hotel Fort Wayne, and proved to be the finest event ever sponsored by the Iota chapter. The Pre-Meds held their formal initiation ceremonies at the Barlum Hotel on February 17th. Eighteen new men were received into the organization. The Omega Betas concluded their social season with a strictly closed formal dinner dance.

ORGANIZED in May, 1928, the Phi Upsilon Chi fraternity has advanced very slowly, but with a definite purpose in mind. Organized to aid students of Polish extraction in establishing social contacts with their fellow students, the club has succeeded so far in carrying out its objective.

The fraternity's strict entry requirements have necessitated a small membership, and consequently the club did not sponsor any major social event during the year. However, several lower classmen have been pledged to the club, and when admitted, will make Phi Upsilon Chi a prominent social factor on the campus, an accomplishment that could never be completed with a small membership.

The fraternity did lend its aid to the Grand Chapter of the organization in staging its annual dance. The Polish fraternities have not been long established on the campus, and it is necessary for them to unite to make the social season a success. With the coming of next year and the many new members, Phi Upsilon Chi will be more stable and will be able to carry out an ambitious social program for itself.

The president for this year is Joseph S. Brzostowski, a pre-Legal student. The secretary is also an Arts and Science student, the position being held by Walter Siepierski. The charter members are, in addition to the officers, Edward Babula, from the college of Commerce and Finance; John Kmiecik and Chester Lulenski, both from the Arts and Science department.

The majority of fraternities have a period of doubt and struggle when first organized, and the Phi Upsilon Chi is in the midst of that time now. However, the fraternity has been organized to serve a definite purpose in the life of the University of Detroit, and will undoubtedly succeed in making its presence felt on the campus.

Membership in the fraternity is restricted to students of Polish extraction, but there is no restriction made as to the college the student attends. A high scholastic average and a desire to work for their Alma Mater, is all that is required. Undoubtedly the fraternity will become a potent factor in the University of Detroit before another school year has passed.

THETA ALPHA SIGMA, general social fraternity was first launched on the University of Detroit campus, in October of 1927.

On October 15th, 1929, under the direction of J. H. Madigan, Theta Alpha Sigma sponsored a smoker at the Tuller Hotel.

The Titan Farewell Frolic, November 8th, 1929, was held at the Fort Shelby Hotel under the chairmanship of Harry Ryan and further attests to the activity of the fraternity. On December 18th, 1929, in the Faculty Building, Theta Alpha Sigma presented handsome gifts to the football men in appreciation of their efforts on the gridiron.

An informal dinner dance was held on January 15th, 1930 at the Oriole Terrace. H. B. Ryan was chairman of the affair.

Following the dinner dance, a smoker for the pledges was held on January 29th, 1930, at the Tuller Hotel. This affair was extremely popular with the guests. Frank Douglas was chairman of the pledges' smoker. In accord with its policy of ceaseless activity, the fraternity continued its social functions, with a card party on February 18th, at the Tuller Hotel. This event was one of the most successful of the year and Charles Borchard, chairman, should receive his due share of credit in assuring its success by his tireless efforts. The pledges were initiated at K. of C. Hall, on March 26th. Dick Flynn was master of the event.

The fraternity proved its loyalty to the university by securing a box for the Union opera, "Hello Stranger," which the members attended en masse. The Junior Prom was the keynote of social activity, and again the familiar faces of Theta Alphs were in evidence. The fraternity had a box for this affair.

The fraternity formally closed its activities for the current year with its formal dinner dance at Grosse Ile Country Club, on May 22. Installation of officers also took place at the dinner dance. Theta Alpha Sigma's many activities assure its stability in the fraternal system at the University of Detroit.

TUYERE fraternity, one of the most active organizations on the campus, was founded in 1918. Socially and scholastically the fraternity has maintained a prominent position in the activities of the University of Detroit and has merited exceptional praise for its fine work.

Tuyere's social season has been really active and the members of the fraternity have realized the benefits and pleasures to be derived from an active fraternity. The organization opened its social season with a mixed house party on October 18th, after the Tulsa football game. William Murphy had charge of this event and he conducted it in a brilliant manner.

On November 15th, a combination smoker and card party was enjoyed at the Tuyere house on Monica Avenue. The final event before the Christmas holidays was a swimming party and smoker at Webster Hall, held on December 11th.

Tuyere inaugurated the new fraternal year with a stag party held at the fraternity house on January 24th, and on February 7th a similar party was given at the same place. On March 14th the yearly pledge banquet was given at the Lee Crest Hotel. This is one of the major events of the organization's social year, and this year the dinner was exceptionally successful.

A theater party was given by the fraternity at the annual Union opera which was held this year at the Shubert-Lafayette. The fraternity was well represented at the show and the members highly enjoyed "Hello Stranger!" Of course the event that every fraternity looks forward to and takes great delight in is its annual initation ceremonies, and so on March 24th and 25th Tuyere held the greatest initiation party of its existence. The new members were received into the organization after having proved their value through a long and arduous pledgeship. On June 20th Tuyere concluded the scholastic year with a fitting dinner dance which was under the able supervision of William Murphy.

It is an assured fact that Tuyere fraternity has held up its noble purpose and have proven its worth, not only to the Engineering department but also to the university.

Clubs and Societies

THE ADSPIRERS CLUB, formed in September. 1928, has enjoyed a success which, for so young an organization, is remarkable. It has done much too, to acquaint students with the importance of advertising in the modern marketing scheme.

The purpose of the Adspirers is to bring students who are interested in the art of advertising in contact with men actively associated with advertising and who have a thorough knowledge of modern methods. To obtain this end the club at regular intervals brought before the student body of the college of Commerce and Finance men prominent in the advertising world. Such men as Floyd Allen, assistant president of General Motors; John S. Reynolds, vice-president of the Union Trust; J. C. Yenke, assistant president of MacManus, Incorporated; and Roger M. Andrews, president and publicity manager of the Detroit "Times," impressed upon the Adspirers that advertising has taken a dominant and major position in twentieth century business.

The Adspirers have fulfilled a long-felt need. The officers were: Paul Lilly, president; Edward Stenger, vice-president; Harold Dumanois, secretary and treasurer; and Lyndon O. Brown, faculty advisor.

THE AERONAUTICAL SOCIETY of the University of Detroit was organized in 1922 by a group of fifteen engineering students with the purpose of promoting interest in aeronautics and of carrying on research along those lines.

The organization is a member of the Inter-Collegiate Aeronautical Association and is also represented every year at the Inter-Collegiate Air Conference. The University of Detroit delegates to the last meeting of the Air Conference were: William Murphy, John Malone, Ray Lewis and Thomas Davis. Also during the past year the members of the club have been privileged to hear eminent leaders in the aeronautical field, among whom were: Capt. R. Collins, Director of the Michigan Board of Aeronautics; Leroy Manning, Chief Test Pilot for the Ford Motor Co.; Arthur Saxton, Chief Engineer of the Stinson-Detroiter Airplane Co., and many others.

At the election of officers for this year, Wm. Murphy was chosen president. John Malone, a very consistent student was elected vice-president; Ray Lewis was elected secretary, and James Woodhouse, treasurer. All through the year the club was under the careful guidance of Professor Peter Altman, who was chosen Faculty Moderator.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS—In its third year on the campus, the University of Detroit branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers fostered a very ambitious program of events. Founded in the fall of 1927, the branch has grown rapidly, and has assumed a prominent position among the technical societies of the University. The Institute is a national organization, and students' branches are established at those schools where the faculty members belong to the Institute.

The society was formed for the advancement and dissemination of the knowledge of electrical engineering.

The University of Detroit branch sponsors a regular series of informal luncheons, in order to foster interest in the club. A program of bi-monthly lectures is carried out each year. At each talk, some man prominent in his particular field of endeavor lectures on some timely and interesting topic.

The officers for this year are William F. Haldeman, president; Raymond J. Abele, vice-president; Walter R. Moyers, secretary, and Roman L. Sailer, treasurer. Professor Harry O. Warner of the Engineering College is faculty counsellor for the society.

THE ARCHITECTURAL SOCIETY was originally known as the Senior Architectural Society and was composed solely of the Senior Architectural students. It was organized in October, 1927, with a membership of ten students. Professor Bert N. Blakeslee acting as advisor.

In October of 1928 the Architectural Society was founded and all architectural students were eligible for membership. It was formed with the purpose of uniting its members in fellowship and to promote the aesthetic, scientific and practical efficiency of its members in the architectural profession. The society is guided by the officers and an executive committee under the direction of Professor Bert N. Blakeslee.

The business meetings of the society are followed by talks on architecture and its allied arts. The speakers are chosen for their knowledge on the subject to be discussed. These lectures are oftentimes accompanied by illustrations. The social activities for the past year were limited to a banquet and a dance. With the profits from the dance the society sponsored an architectural exhibit.

The officers were Carl E. Simek, president; George E. Henk, vice-president; Raymond J. Franklin, treasurer; Albert E. Flemming, secretary.

THE ASSOCIATED EVENING CLASSES organization has, since its inception in the fall of 1927, become the leader in constructive endeavor in its department of the University. Representing every student in the evening classes, it has bound them into an effective unit to act for the night school in the life of Alma Mater.

This organization was the first to take a constructive step towards the development of intramural sports. Two of its greatest successes are the bowling and basketball leagues. Hard-fought games were held at regular intervals throughout the season. A hockey team, started in 1929, provided much recreation and entertainment for the members. Spurred on by its well-received athletic program, the Associated Evening Classes formed a tennis team which proved its skill on several occasions.

Socially, the activities of the organization met with equal success. A well-attended smoker held in the University gymnasium in the early fall, opened the social season. A dance given at the Knights of Columbus Hall on February 13th, drew an attendance of more than two hundred persons. The year was brought to a fitting close with a dinner dance.

The officers chosen to head the association during the year just past were: Chairman, John F. Collins; vice-chairman, Joseph A. Erdos; secretary, Fred W. Lyons; treasurer, John B. Girardin.

THE CHEMICAL SOCIETY, organized in January of 1929 for students studying chemical and metallurgical engineering, has proven to be of great value to the students and the school. It is a social and professional society enabling the students to come in close contact with men recognized as leaders in chemistry.

The purpose of the organization is to promote an interest in the development of chemical industries and to create a feeling of good fellowship among the students. In order to attain these high and commendable ideals, a number of meetings were held at which interesting and educational lectures were delivered by men distinguished in their particular fields.

As is characteristic of University organizations, the Chemical Society has co-operated with the others on the campus in activities of benefit to the University. It is especially connected with the Detroit Engineering Society and has given ardent support to the various functions sponsored by this organization during the past year, a practice that will be continued in the future.

The officers of the society are students very capable of carrying on the good work. They are: Raymond G. Kern, president; Thomas T. Castonguay, vice-president; James Murray Decker, secretary; and John DeMunik, treasurer.

THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS, organized in the spring of 1928 under the guidance of Professor D. P. Gilmore, has just completed the second year of its existence upon the campus. Its purpose is to promote knowledge in all matters relating to civil engineering, to further fellowship among student engineers.

Essentially a product of the Civil Engineering Department, a division of the Engineering College, the society limits its membership strictly to civil engineers and to their professors who possess a civil engineering degree. It is primarily professional in scope. Prominent men of the city frequently address the members at gatherings marked by ease and informality of procedure. This practice has been pronounced fruitful of much good by the members.

That the organization has in two brief years proven its worth, there can be no doubt. Fellowship among the engineers naturally suffers under the month school and month work plan. The club has served to knit the members of the Civil Engineering Department more closely together and to create among them a feeling of unity.

During 1930, James Fredrick Nellis, a senior student of civil engineering, presided as president, Vincent A. McGuigan was vice-president, Joseph A. Fisher secretary and treasurer, and Norbert J. Hornick assistant secretary and treasurer.

THE UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT ENGINEERING SOCIETY is known as "the mother of all engineering societies."

The membership is strictly limited to students of the College of Engineering. In addition to successfully running its own affairs, the society has fostered several of the more important clubs organized by the Engineers. The Aeronautical Society, product of the Department of Aeronautics, and one of the newest and most successful clubs, is sponsored by the Engineering Society. The Architectural, Chemical, and Civil Engineering clubs have also had their beginnings in this society. The Society of Automotive Engineers and the student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers are under the guidance of the Engineering Society.

The most important social event of the Engineers' season is the banquet held in the spring of each year. This is a gathering of all the societies and clubs in the Engineering School, and is conducted by the mother club. In addition to the dinner, the various societies hold monthly meetings at which topics of interest to technical students are discussed.

Officers of the Engineering Society are headed by Leon J. Gibbons, president; Lloyd Toler, vice-president; Joseph A. Fisher, secretary; and Ralph W. Boone, treasurer.

THE GLIDER CLUB of the University of Detroit was founded on January 19th, 1929.

After several months of effort the glider was completed and from that time on the club members made rapid progress in the art of flying. Several successful flights having been made, the glider enthusiasts made preparations for entrance into the National Air Races held in Cleveland, August 27th to September 2nd, 1929. Carr had been selected as contest pilot and by his skillful handling of the glider was awarded the handsome Aero Digest Trophy.

Upon returning from Cleveland the Glider Club continued activities at the Pontiac Airport. Altitudes of four hundred feet were regularly attained and several proficient pilots were being developed when an unfortunate mishap demolished the ship. Fortunately, however, none of the members were injured and maneuvers were continued in a ship graciously loaned to them by the Gliders Inc. of Orion, Mich. In this same ship K. H. Carr and W. J. Perfield placed second in the auto-towing contest held in Detroit in November, 1929.

The officers of the Glider Club are all charter members and prominent in its activities. William James Perfield is president; Kenneth H. Carr, secretary, and Raymond E. Lewis, treasurer.

THE PHILOMATHIC SOCIETY, the oldest established student organization on the campus, is a forensic society specializing in public speaking, debating, and oratory. It has been highly instrumental in furnishing the intercollegiate debating teams with speakers who have carried the school to a position of distinction in the collegiate debating world.

Following its past policy, the society conducted a series of debates which lasted until Easter. The entire enrollment was mustered into two-man debating teams, and a schedule was drawn up by Mr. Bacon, the faculty moderator.

The Philomathic Society has diligently sponsored all intercollegiate debates. Since 1894 the organization has conducted the Annual Oratorical Contest, and since 1897 it has fostered the Annual Skinner Debate, which is the greatest event in forensic activities at the University.

Ralph Johnston, Ellis Duncan, and Ora Labadie served the society as president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer, respectively, during the first semester. Ora Labadie succeeded to the vice-presidency and David Leahy to the secretary-treasurer's position at the beginning of the second semester, while Ralph Johnston was re-elected to the office of president.

S. A. E.—Left to Right—Miller, Havas, Kosel, Simms.

THE SOCIETY OF AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS was organized in May of 1928 as a branch of the national society with headquarters in New York City. This organization is one of the largest in the University, with about one hundred and seventy-five members. The membership is limited to students of the Engineering College.

The purpose of this society is to further the interest of students in the automotive industry and to enable the students to make the acquaintance of those prominent in this particular field. This organization obtains as speakers, chief engineers, executives, and others conversant with matters concerning this industry or associated with it. As a result of this policy, the members become acquainted with the ideas of the leading professional men in their chosen field, and they receive a knowledge of what is expected of them after they have obtained their degree.

The officers are: Alfred Haves, president; Herbert Kosel, vice-president; George Miller, secretary; Manuel Simms, treasurer. Haves, who has been a prominent member since the society was organized, is a mechanical engineer. Kosel is an automotive engineer, Miller and Simms are chemical and aeronautical engineers respectively. Professor Linsenmeyer is the honorary chairman.

THE SYMPOSIUM, a philosophical club, which was organized during the first semester of the present school year, is among the newer organizations on the campus. The society is the realization of the earnest work of certain students who saw the need for open meetings instead of the usual closed philosophical discussions. Much interest is evidenced by the members in these discussions.

The purpose of the organization is to foster appreciation for the philosophies of the various schools by delving into their origin, development and merits. At each meeting, one of the members reads a thesis on some phase of philosophy.

The society sponsors two public lectures each year, at which some noted scholar gives an informal talk. On May 15th, the club celebrated the 39th anniversary of Pope Leo's Encyclical on Labor. Early in April, the club held an interesting vote on prohibition among the students and faculty of the University.

John L. Cashin, prominent in the school's literary and forensic affairs, is president of the society. Paul Hillebrand is vice-president, and Ora Labadie, secretary. The treasurer is Charles Shires, and James La Driere is historian. Rev. Fr. Frederick Meyer, S. J., is moderator.

THE GOLF CLUB of the University of Detroit was organized this year by a group of students interested in the sport of the greens and fairway. Its purpose is to promote interest in golfing as a minor sport on the university's athletic calendar, and to furnish a suitable organization for continued promotion in the future.

At the first meeting William Breault, captain of the golf team, was elected president. C. Scott Howard, for several years a member of the athletic organization of the university, was chosen for the secretaryship; and Donald Carney, prominent for his university activities, was elected manager and treasurer.

Membership in the organization is open to all students interested in golf. The club has assumed the place of official sponsors for the golf team of the university and actively engaged in securing the schedule of intercollegiate golf matches for this year. The club is affiliated in this capacity with the Athletic Association, golf being now recognized as a minor sport on the university's athletic calendar. The Golf Club also sponsors intramural tournaments, and has planned for a golf meet to determine the individual champion of the university.

THE Motor Cycle Club held their first meeting at a lunch at Peter Pan on Nov. 4. The club was the idea of Karl Otto, who, after getting the approval of Fr. Scott, proceeded with the work of organizing it. As far as it is known at the present U. of D. is the first university in the country to have a lively Motor Cycle Club that is fully recognized by the faculty board as a student organization.

The purpose of the club, which is to send representatives to every important out of town U. of D. athletic activity, is worthy of an organization of the university. The members of the club were among those present who saw U. of D. trounce West Virginia and later run rough shod over Michigan State.

In the near future the club is going to stage a field day for the members in which stunt-riding, hill-climbing and races will be on the program. Next year they intend to enter civic events in competition with other riders when sanctioned by the proper school authorities.

The officers of the club are: President, Karl Otto; Vice-President, Robert McCahon; Secretary and Treasurer, Donald Nauman; Road Captain, Bibiano Timada.

THE ALPENA CLUB, in its second year on the campus, became a potent factor in the social life of the University. With its membership restricted to students from Alpena, Michigan, the club was necessarily small, yet successfully conducted two major social events during the school year.

The first of these was the Christmas dinner-dance held at the Owl Cafe in Alpena. The Syncopators entertained a large number of members and their friends. It was the first important event sponsored by this young club, and was a great success. The second social function was the dinner-dance held March 10th, at the Oriole Terrace in Detroit. This affair, one of the pre-Lenten functions, was also well attended.

The purpose of the Alpena Club is to foster interest in the University of Detroit among the high-school graduates of Alpena. To further this aim, the club sends bulletins and information about the University to all prospective students. In this manner, the club has made itself known in Alpena and on the campus.

The officers for the past year included Gerald LaLonde, who served his second year as president of the organization; Stanley McDougall, vice-president; and Frederick Oles, secretary-treasurer.

THE BUFFALO CLUB, one of the many new organizations on the campus, was founded immediately after the Christmas holidays, with an enrollment of twenty-five charter members. Although just beginning its career, the club has outlined an ambitious program.

The club plans a house near the campus in the immediate future, and in addition, hopes to sponsor a nationalization program among the Buffalo clubs of universities and colleges.

At a dinner held at the Seward Hotel last February, the members discussed the future of the club, and its aims and purposes. Professor Edward T. McCarthy, mathematics teacher in the College of Engineering, was elected Faculty Moderator. It was agreed upon by the charter members that, in order to foster and promote the interests of the University of Detroit in Buffalo and the surrounding territory, the club would offer such assistance as they could to prospective students.

Lawrence G. Riley was honored with the first presidency of the club, while Clarence F. Falkner was chosen vice-president. Albert Driscoll is the recording secretary, and Chester A. Schintzius is the corresponding secretary. George A. Gambert was chosen for the office of treasurer.

THE CLEVELAND CLUB was organized in November of 1929 by a group of fifteen students from that city. The club later admitted twenty Marygrove students as members and have succeeded in establishing a common relationship.

The club has for its purpose the social advancement of University of Detroit students from Cleveland and vicinity, and in addition, they send out booklets and information to prospective university students.

The club sponsored several smokers for the male members, and in addition, held a number of informal luncheons, which were attended by both Marygrove and Detroit members.

The club also sponsored a basketball team which competed with other fraternities during the season. The members have shown their willingness to aid in any movement sponsored by the university, and appear to have the proper qualification for a successful and prominent organization.

The officers for this year are James Brigham, president; William Sonnhalter, vice-president; Grace Crider, secretary, and Thomas Thornton, treasurer. Donald J. Moynihan is the faculty advisor for the organization, while Fathers Scott and Brickle are honorary members.

THE GRAND RAPIDS CLUB is one of the several clubs formed at the university during the past few years for the purpose of furthering the interests of the university by the members in their native town.

These clubs form a welcoming body to those students who come from cities other than Detroit and promote a spirit of good-fellowship among them that makes for unity in their work at the university. This idea has proved so successful for the students and school alike that many other organizations of a similar nature have been established.

During the social year this club contributed their best support to the major functions of the university by a large attendance at the class dances and Union opera. They themselves staged several social events, the first of which was a smoker that served as a reunion after the summer vacation. A holiday dinner-dance was given in Grand Rapids during Christmas vacation and proved very successful. Another enjoyable dance was given at Easter and the annual banquet climaxed the year.

The officers of the Grand Rapids Club are Nicholas P. Bekema, president; George F. Brown, vice-president; George E. Clark, secretary, and Raymond J. Franklin, treasurer.

THE SAGINAW CLUB formed a few years ago, and temporarily disbanded, was re-organized in September, 1930. New energy put into the club is responsible for its rapid growth and the place it now occupies on the campus.

Primarily a social club it has for its purpose the promotion of good-fellowship and wholesome social activity among the students at the university who have their homes in Saginaw. To this end the members have worked industriously

A dance given on December 19, during the Christmas holidays, officially opened the season. The en masse attendance of the members together with their many friends and the excellency of arrangements made it a memorable affair. The success of their first venture spurred the Saginaw club to hold many more throughout the year. Informal get-togethers and smokers were held at regular intervals. They were well-attended and proved to be a source of great enjoyment. Eager to continue the friendships formed during the school year the members are planning a dance for the summer months.

Those chosen to head the club were: John D. Malone, president; Raymond Beyer, vice-president; E. L. Beyer, secretary; and Daniel Izzo, treasurer.

THE WILKES-BARRE CLUB was formed in the fall of 1929 by a group of students from that city. By the forming of such an association, the Wilkes-Barre students follow a precedent set by similar organizations within the past three years.

Although only in its first year of existence, the Wilkes-Barre Club has become a real social force on the campus and has earned for itself an enviable reputation. Following to the letter an original intention to make this organization an active one, the members carried out an extensive and successful social program. Lively and well-attended meetings and social affairs were held each month. The year was opened by a smoker given during November. This was followed by an enjoyable dinner-dance staged during the Christmas vacation at the Airport Inn in Wilkes-Barre. The members, en masse, and many of their friends were in attendance. A dinner given at the Savoia Club marked the cessation of activities for the season of Lent.

THE COSMOPOLITAN CLUB grew out of the belief of a number of students that there were enough different nationalities represented in the University to warrant the formation of such a club. Faculty aid was enlisted, prospective members were approached, and as the outcome of this preliminary work, the Cosmopolitan Club is now an active University organization. This organization is less than a year old, being formed during March, 1929.

The purpose of this organization is to promote a more friendly feeling and good fellowship among the cosmopolitan group attending the University of Detroit. It was determined that the best means of attaining this end would be a planned series of social gatherings, the keynote of which would be informality. As a result, the club has held quite a few smokers.

Notwithstanding the limited student body from which membership can be recruited, the Cosmopolitan Club is esoteric in nature. Its maximum membership is fifty. When the number of nationalities on the campus is considered, it becomes obvious that entrance into the society is a distinct honor.

Joseph A. Lubinski is president of the club; Edward Skorupski is vice-president; Ben Lisowski is secretary, and Michael Bida is treasurer.

THE FILIPINO CLUB of the University of Detroit was founded in February, 1928, to better unite the Filipino students of the university and to aid them in serving their Alma Mater. The club has succeeded in making the Filipinos a vital part of the university life, and has promoted an understanding for them among the student body.

The constitution of the club was adopted in March, 1928, and a set of by-laws to regulate its future activity were drawn up at the time.

Early in the history of the organization, the members of the club adopted for its motto: loyalty, love and service to their Alma Mater. The entire organization constantly works for the promotion of fellowship according to the American social scheme.

Professor Bert N. Blakeslee, who, having lived among the Filipinos as a missionary for a number of years, has given the club his whole-hearted support and has contributed invaluable aid to the success of the club.

The foremost social event was the dinner party given at Professor Blakeslee's home to welcome the new members. Horacio Rodiquez is president; Joaquin Palisoc, vice-president; Eustaquio Mesina is treasurer, and Tranquilino Macali. secretary.

THE CO-ED CLUB had its beginning in February of 1929 when a group of freshman co-eds conceived the idea of organizing a club so that they could really become better acquainted with members of their own class.

The membership in this club is limited to freshmen and first-semester sophomores.

During the past year, the club sponsored an informal dinner-dance at the Oriole Terrace. This was the first big affair to be given by the club and was almost unanimously attended. Dainty programs delineating the Thanksgiving season were given as favors. Eileen Crowley, a sophomore, was the chairman.

The club's officers are elected twice a year. Only sophomores may hold office during the first semester and only freshmen are privileged to do so during the second. The officers for the first semester were Frances M. Kline, president; Mary L. Nelius, vice-president; Hortense Marlow, secretary, and Ava R. Hunt, treasurer. For the second semester Lucille Sullivan was elected to the presidency, June McDougall to the vice-presidency, Marie Szumiak to the secretaryship, and Marcel Frenette was chosen as treasurer.

SENIOR GIRLS' CLUB—To promote friendship, to create a better understanding, to bring about unity and harmony among the Senior girls of all the colleges of the University, so that mutual agreement on all senior topics might be attained, was the motive for the organization of the Senior Girls' Club in 1925.

Because of the many and various activities of the first semester, the Club did not hold its first meeting till November 21st, in the Women's League room of the Law School.

The Club's varied social calendar included a breakfast at the League of Catholic Women, January 12th. This was followed by a Saint Patrick's bridge in the Union Rooms on Jefferson.

Margaret LeFevre, president of the club, entertained the members with an afternoon tea and bridge at her home, Sunday, May 18th. The club concluded its social calendar with a dinner and a theater party at the Wilson.

Margaret LeFevre, a night Commerce and Finance student, was elected president. The Law School had its representative in Gladys Catherwood, as vice-president. The day Commerce and Finance was represented by Eilleen K. Cross, as secretary, and Florence M. Bernard, as treasurer.

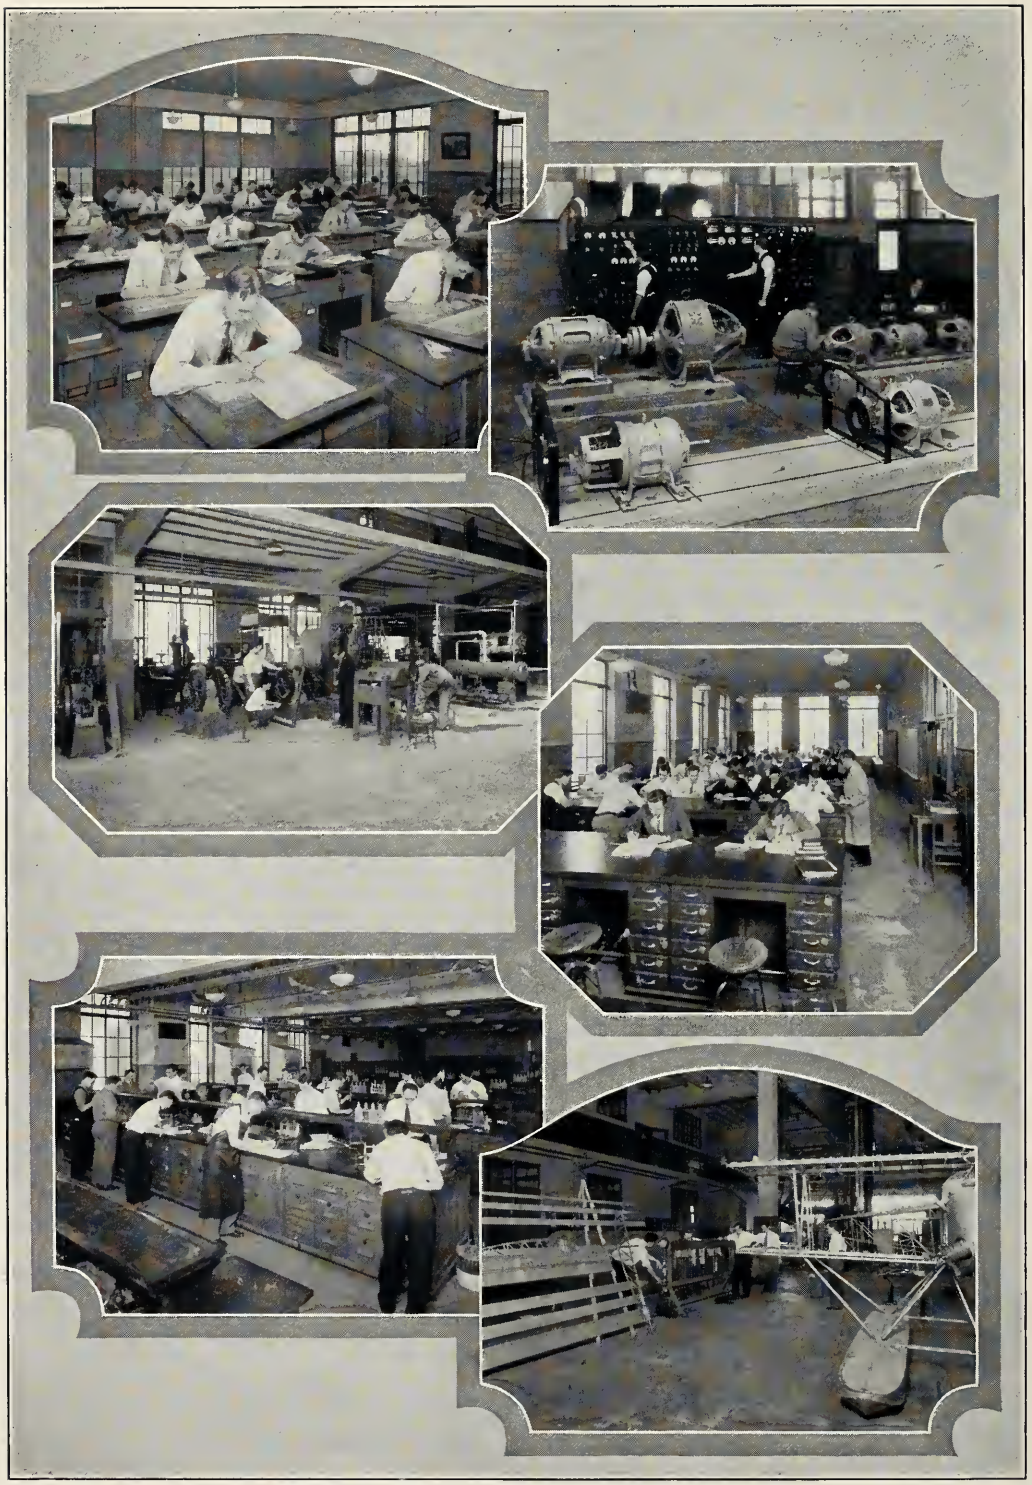
The Bok Singing Tower Lake Wales, Florida

Silver-throated birds call to each other in the everglades. And in this primitive setting of brilliant color stands the Bok Tower, built by Edward Bok as a sanctuary for birds and dedicated to his mother. The edifice stands serene and tall, at peace with nature and in sympathy with the free spirit of its setting. There has never been so odd a tower built for such a purpose. It is a feature in the curious and beautiful spots of the world.

FEATURES

CENTERS OF ACTIVITY

The Union residence where students meet to plan and play—The "A" House in which are located the offices of the university sport mentors—Professor Victor Mitchell, censor of publications, at his desk at work on the Varsity News—A scene in the editorial room of the publications' offices—In the inner sanctum; heads of the university's publications, the Tower and the Varsity News.



TECHNICAL AND SCIENTIFIC PRACTICE

It is in the laboratories of the university that knowledge of practical value is obtained—Here we have a few of those workshops where science and industry are taught and practiced—Drawing, electrical engineering, manufacturing methods, biology, chemistry, and aeroplane construction are viewed in the photographs of student experiment above.

THE FACULTY, BOOKS AND WHAT NOT

Professors of the College of Engineering pose for photographers on the steps of their edifice—The Commerce and Finance teaching staff outside their building—Priests and lay professors of the College of Arts and Sciences—In the Law Library—And here in the Peter Pan where the hungry gather at noon and night to eat, and make merry.

THE FUN OF BEING AN ENGINEER

Some scenes from the University of Detroit civil engineering camp where study and play in the great outdoors made both an equal pleasure—Can you imagine the tri-section of an angle associated with swimming and fishing?—Building a wing in the aeronautics laboratories, where theory and actual practice work hand in hand—Experimental birds in a cage.

THE TITAN CHAMPIONS OF THE AIR

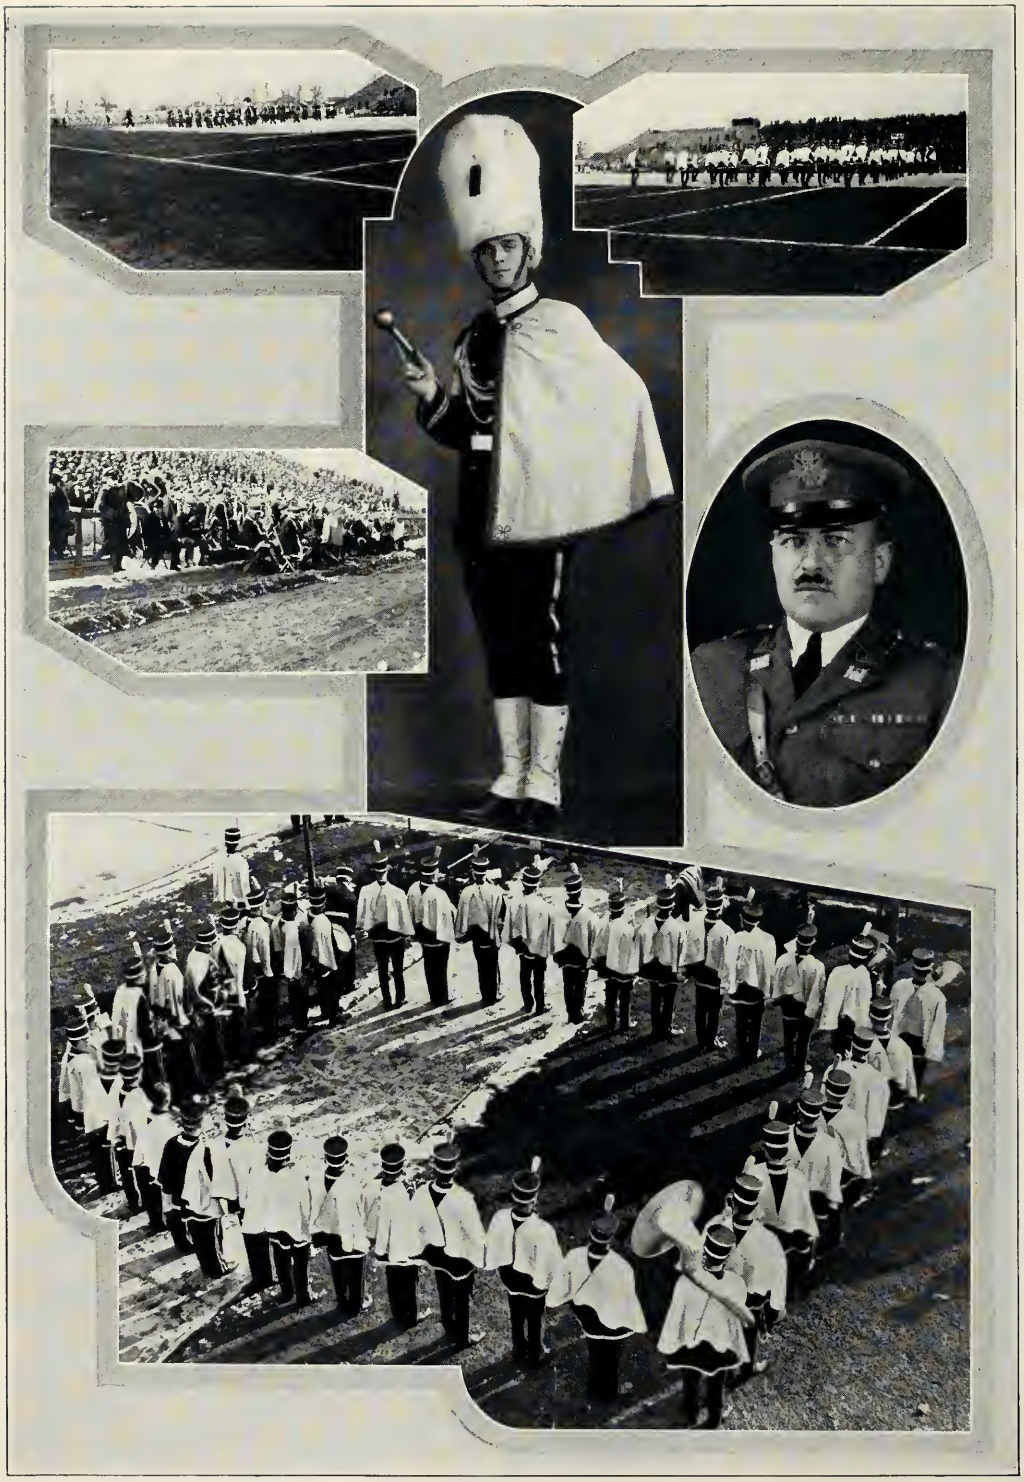
Two U. of D. gliders off on the winds to soar the clouds—What a glider does without a pilot—The trophy of glider supremacy, symbol of the Titan glider championship—All set to be taken off—Kenneth Carr in the proper glider pose—The safest way of gliding is loading the glider on a truck, although the enthusiasts argue otherwise.

DOINGS IN THE NIGHT

Snitz Ross performing at a night gridiron circus—A bonfire of pep, blazing for victory—Some of those who gathered round the fire to shout encouragement—A tangle in a night fray—Preparation for the scene of barbaric festivity—The Titans rushing under the arc-lights—A foreign band parades the field.

WHEN THE TITANS STORMED MORGANTOWN

The main street of Morgantown University in festive array to receive the Titans—"Varsity" stirs a foreign throng—The red and white band marching on the field of battle—West Virginia trumpeters serenading the crowd—Two scenes in the station going to and coming from the battle of the century on the banks of the Monongahela—The seal on the victors' train.



THE BAND

Harbinger of Victory, Cantor of Defeat—Sending "Dear Old U. of D." in concert to the skies—Leading the voices of thousands of students and supporters in an inspired "Varsity"—Ensconced in the stadium—Rod Marion, high-stepping drum-major—Major Van Antwerp, stern general of the drill—The band in formation before the Chemistry Building, preparing to invade the stadium.

NEW HOMES WERE BUILT THIS YEAR

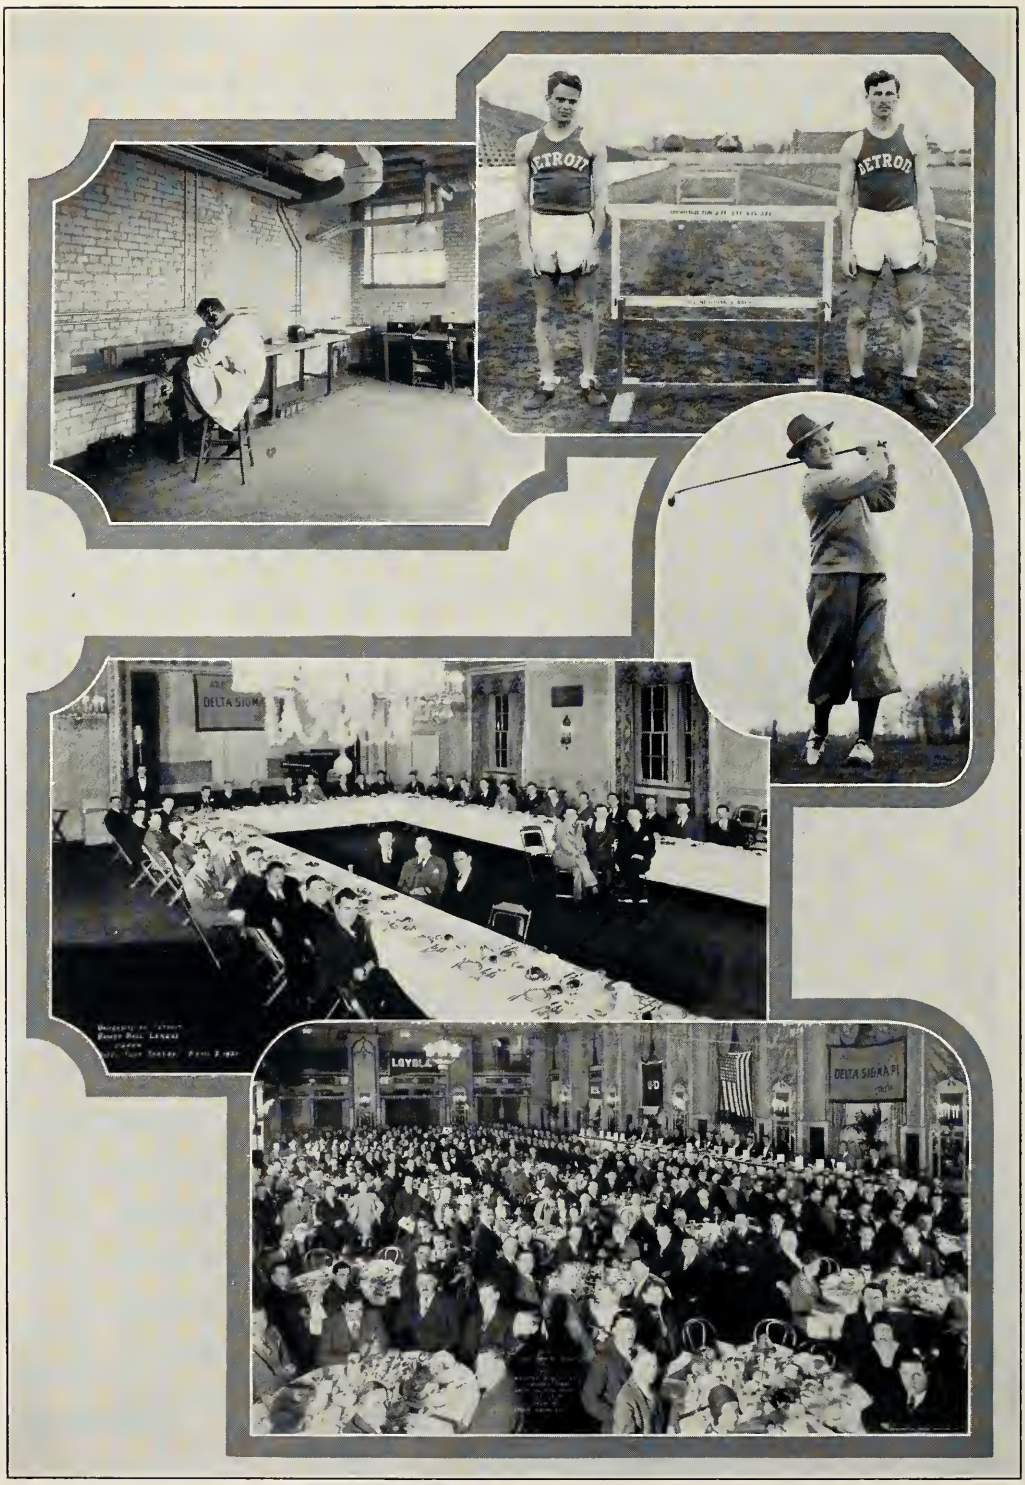
Omega Beta Pi doctors have artistic as well as scientific tastes—Eta Zeta Sigma's living room reveals a quality quite feminine—It is the second year the Tuyere have occupied their manse—Here are the Omega lads on their front porch—Chi Delta Theta's new abode—A new home for a new fraternity, Epsilon Sigma Phi—Exterior of the Eta Zeta Sigma sorority house.

THE PETER PAN TOURNAMENTS

C. Scott Howard, George Harrigan, and Lawrence Dowd, champions at hand-ball—The sought-for fraternity athletics cup—Members of Alpha Epsilon Pi won the tennis tournament—The Argons, champions of the season's indoor baseball—The best fraternity golf players came from the Tuyeres of the College of Engineering—Basketball honors went to Epsilon Sigma Phi.

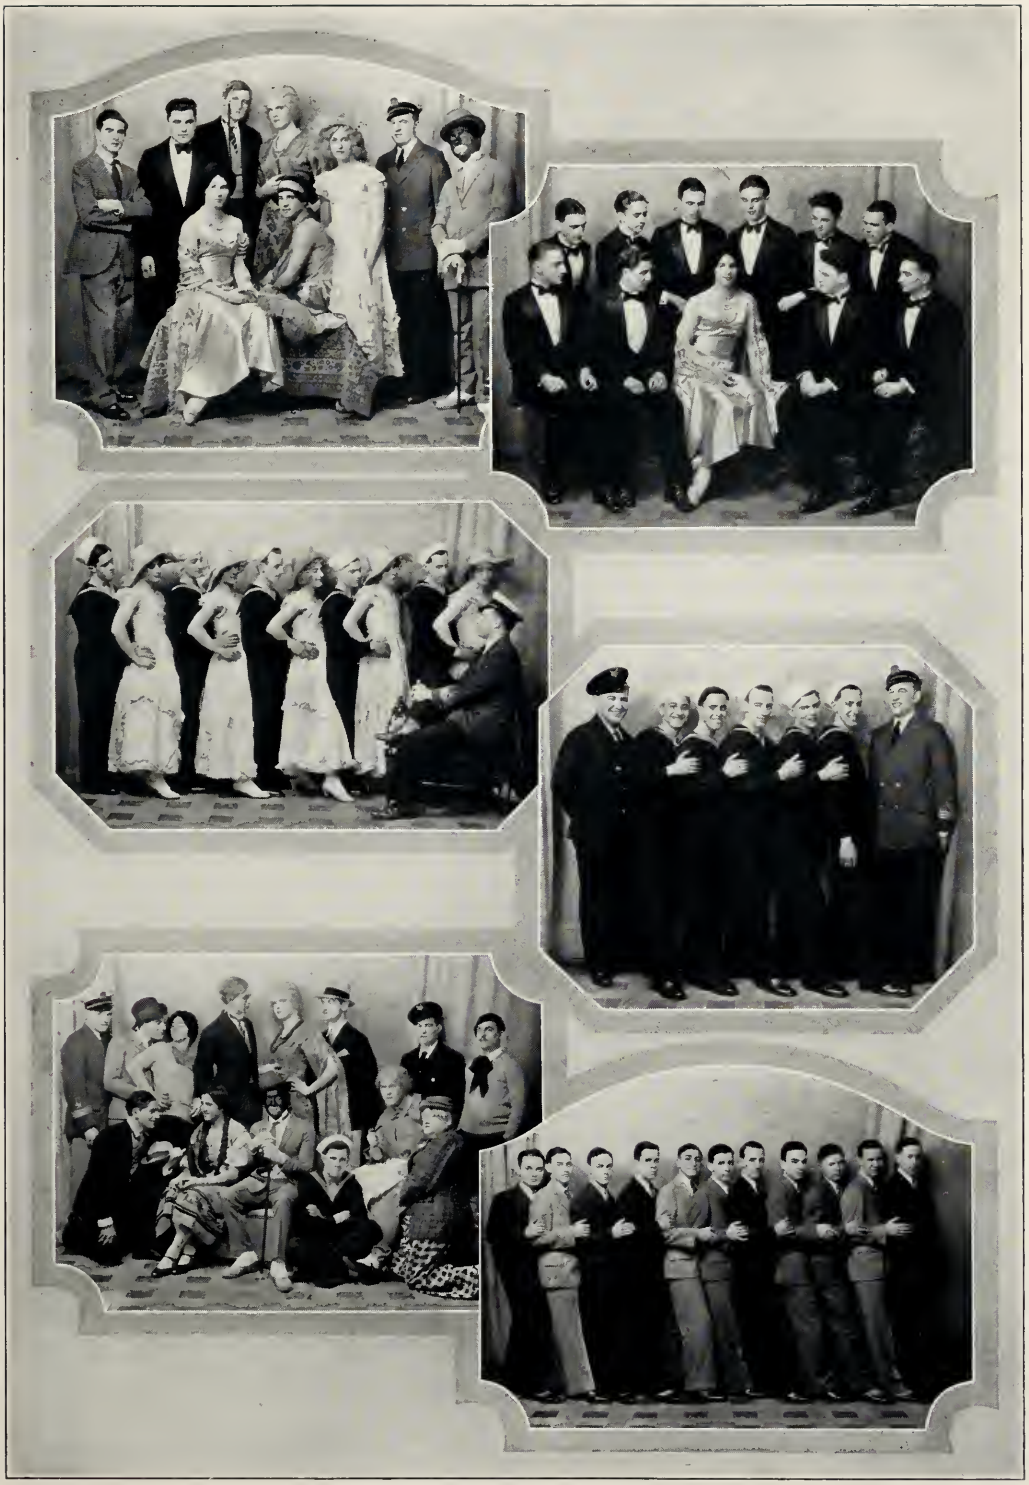
BARBAROUS REVENGE!

The frosh whipped the sophomores in the annual class games. At the top right is a scene from the beginning of the festivities, the baseball game. The photo at the lower right reveals the appearance of four contestants at the finish. The tug-of-war through Tower Lake ended in a mud-battle, and the rest of the illustrations are the familiar rough and tumble.



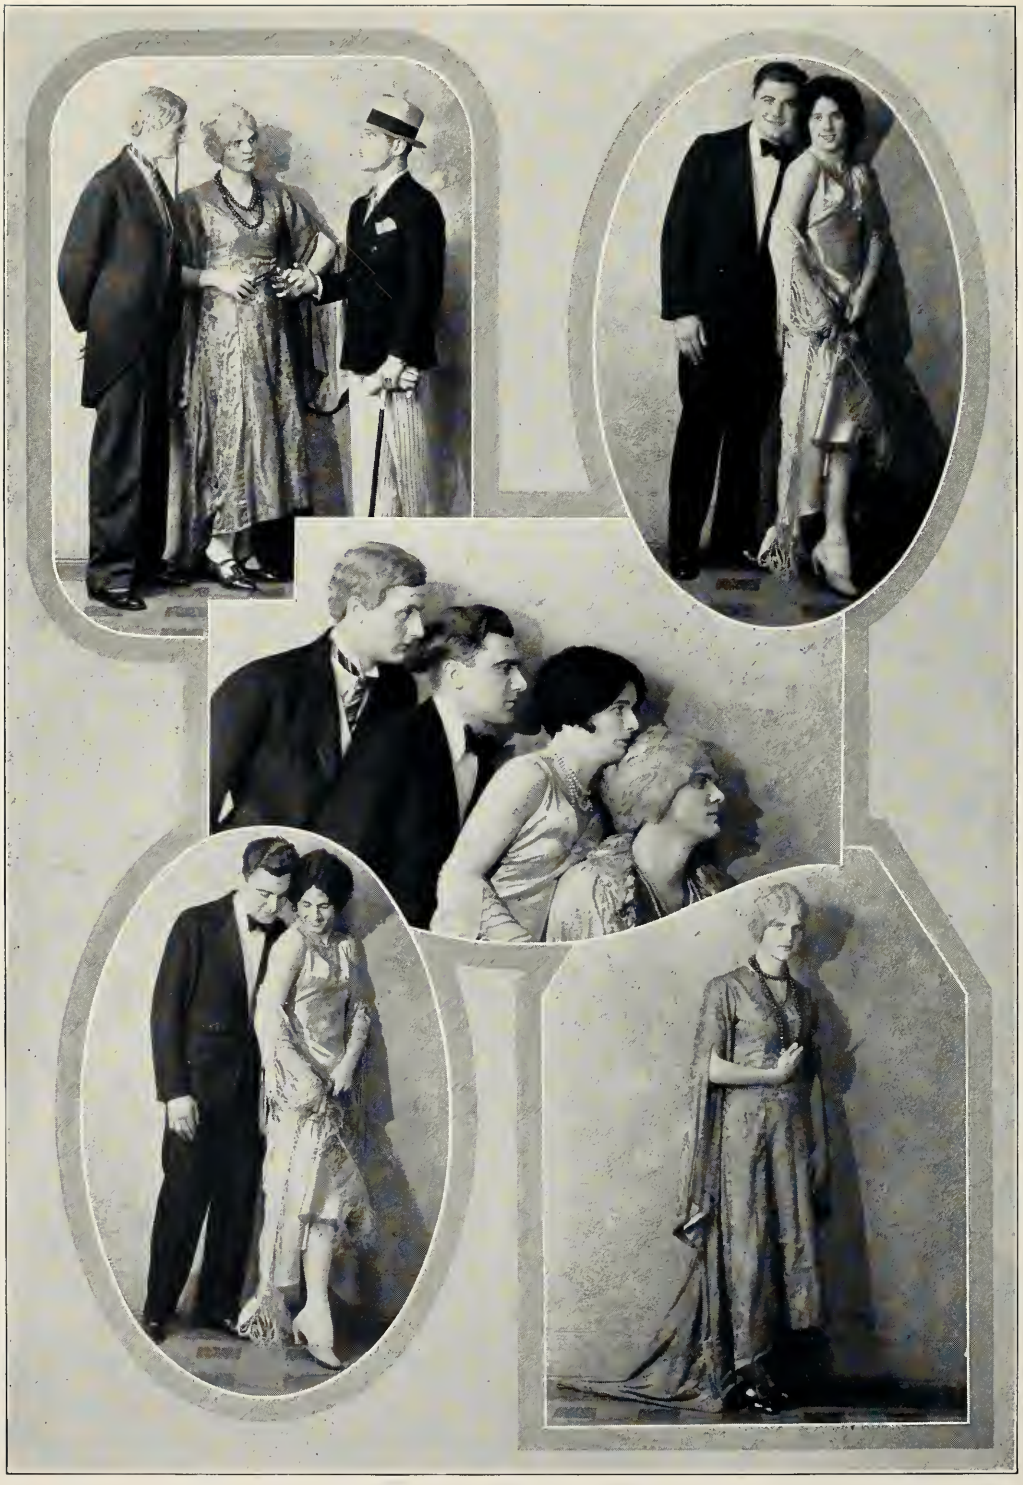
HERE AND THERE

At work in the broadcasting station in the physics department, an innovation of the physicists this year—Just two leapers and runners of the hurdling squad—Billy Breault, captain of the Golf Team, driving off—The Delta Sigma Pi basketball banquet—And below, the great banquet for the football team given by the same fraternity at the Book Cadillac.



GAY "HELLO STRANGER"

The stars of the homogeneous cast—Demure Jack Teubert surrounded by a group of admiring singers of the chorus—Sailor lads stepping with port maidens in a chorus scene—A tough Customs man, sailors and captain—All together and none so marked as Shuffles—None will ever know but these how heavy hoofs were forced to dainty tread



INDIVIDUALS OF THE OPERA

Two wolves in sheep's clothing are Woolworth Wilma and Jack the Beanstalk talking to a philanthropical detective—Seamus and Marie, the romancers—The leads in heroic and villainous roles, Girardin. Leahy. Teubert and Pouliot—Teubert displays a neat ankle for the benefit of Dave Leahy—Pouliot as Mrs. Haute-Monde, giant lady of the opera.

SCENES FROM THE SHOW

A poor German trying to declare a jug—Do crap games occur aboard ship? Tsk, tsk!—"Me mother was right about women!"—"Ah aint got nothin' 'gainst you, brothah! Hones' ah aint!"—Johnny Galbo as the inimitable "Shuffles"—Joe Tocco played the part of a tough dago, Guido Espinosa—George Nebus in the role of Hossenpfeffer, night club magnate.

FAMILIAR SCENES FROM NEW ASPECTS

The stadium as viewed from the Union House—A bird's-eye, or perhaps a hotel window's eye, view of the campus and tower—The plaza and the Commerce Building—The beautiful hotel de faculte—Tulips blossom under the spring sun on the plaza before the Chemistry Building—The Science Building and a campus buried in snow.

Now You Can Advertise In Our Publications

on the same business basis as in other mediums

▲ ▲ ▲ An entirely new method of handling advertising makes this possible. For the first time, the newspaper, alumni magazine, football and opera programs, and all other publications have been centralized in one advertising department. In this new achievement, the University of Detroit pioneers.

▲ ▲ ▲ One department, under the supervision of a faculty member and employing only students, handles the advertising for all university publications. You deal with one organization instead of six or ten. You deal with a responsible organization, the University itself.

▲ ▲ ▲ You buy space sold on its merits, represented in a business-like way. Your money is invested, not donated.

▲ ▲ ▲ We hope that you will feel proud that the University of Detroit—your University, whether as student, alumnus, or friend—has shown the way to every college and university in the country in placing its publications on a sound business basis. They are truly Class Publications of Merit, reaching the rich market of University City.

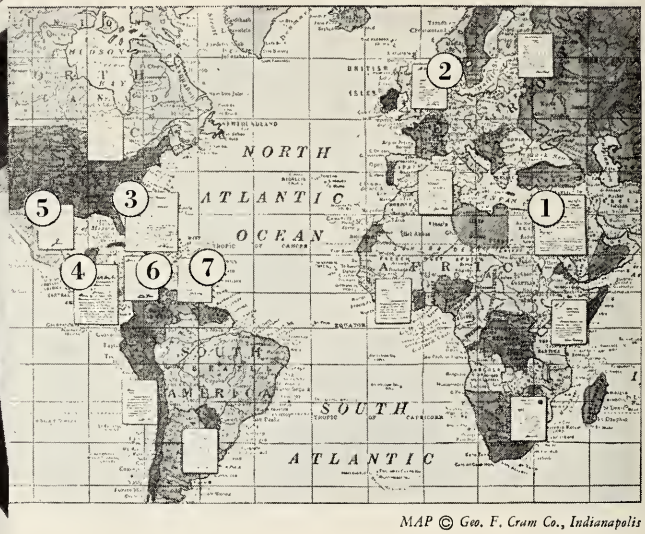
BUICK— World-Wide Preference



MAP © Geo. F. Cram Co., Indianapolis

—and in America, people buy more than twice as many Buicks as any other car priced above $1200.

Day after day, while the motorists of America are buying twice as many Buicks as any other car priced above $1200, fast ships and trains carry other thousands of Buicks to Europe, to Australia, to the Orient, to all parts of the world. . . . And back from these places come letters—like those reproduced below—saying the same fine things about Buick that you hear in America.

It takes this kind of car—IT TAKES A BUICK—to win the praise of the world as Buick has won it in increasing degree throughout a quarter-century. It takes the impeccable beauty of Bodies by Fisher. It takes known performance leadership. It takes flawless reliability. It takes the all-round value that you know you get in the Buick car.

You want a new car this spring. You think mighty highly of Buick. World-wide preference, expressed in Buick's dominant sales leadership over any other fine car, assures you that you are right!

1 I have been running my Buick continuously for 11 years and have made 285,000 miles without repair. It is the most wonderful car anybody can get. It is the first 7-passenger car that came to Syria—and the oldest car—but it's running every day.

M. W. Fadlellah
Tripoli, Syria

2 I have driven many cars but I have never had so much satisfaction as I get from the 1930 Buick. It is simple, it is marvelous.

Mme. Jane Zander
Brussels, Belgium

3 I own a 1927-1928 Buick model and assure you that in regard to features, operation, material, comfort and attractiveness, it is one of the best cars to be found the world over.

A. George
Central Soledad, Guantanamo (Oriente) Cuba

4 You will be pleased to learn that before I owned a car I pledged myself to own none other but a Buick; and I will, whenever I can afford it, own no other.

W. N. Clarke
Kingston, Ja., B. W. I.

5 I have owned various motor cars during the last 15 years and have derived satisfaction from some. I may frankly state, however, that my "happiness" has been complete since January, 1926, when I bought my Buick 26-47 from your dealers in Mexico. This car has not given the slightest trouble, has always been ready for service and although it has covered 78,500 kilometers, is still in excellent condition.

Joaquin M. De Uriarte, Engineer
Puebla, Puebla, Mexico

6 I have been using Buick cars for several years and it gives me pride to state that I have always been highly satisfied and have always preferred this make.

Joseph Cardoze
Curacao, D. W. I.

7 I am very much satisfied with the performance and service which I have derived from this car, which, as you rightly state, is recognized as unexcelled the world over.

V. Echeverria D.
La Guayra, Venezuela, S. A.

8 My first Buick was purchased in 1920. It served me seven years and was in good condition when I turned it in on another Buick in September, 1927. I may live to buy another though I am pretty old (78th year), but if I do I promise you it shall be a Buick.

T. C. Wills
Honolulu, Hawaii

9 According to very recent statistics of the Shanghai Municipal Council, it is stated that out of every six cars one is a Buick. Moreover Buick owners are mostly the leading men in China. They have hereby signed their honorable names recommending the new car to the Chinese public.

—From a testimonial signed by twenty of the leading statesmen, bankers and business men of China.

10 You can imagine in what regard I hold Buick's performance and quality. I have given the name of my favorite car to my favorite Arab race horse.

A Proving Ground in a Circle of Service

Since 1886, Westinghouse has been the proving ground for everything electrical. Through its extensive research facilities and broad engineering experience, Westinghouse has discovered and applied basic electrical principles which have been far-reaching in their economic effects.

Westinghouse was founded on the policy of service. Time has tested and proved the worth of that policy. That Westinghouse skill in design, care in manufacture, and follow-through in service are valued by our customers is shown by the fact that the circle of service is expanding every year.

To all University of Detroit Students, especially those in the

we extend a most cordial invitation to visit our new business home.

Here you will observe, at first hand, the many modern mechanical processes employed in the production of printed advertising and publications. And, if you are interested, a detailed explanation will be gladly given concerning the numerous operations required to complete this issue of the "Tower", which came from the presses illustrated above.

For those who wish to supplement class work with a knowledge of practical practice we are of the opinion that a visit to our plant will be well worth while.
